Livestock prices up, output down in 1986

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Despite an overabundance of cheap corn, red meat supplies will continue to decline through 1986, as prices increase moderately. That was the prognosis given by Dennis Steadman of Chase Econometrics at the Pennsylvania Livestock Association's annual banquet at Harrisburg's Sheraton-East on Nov. 8.

With U.S. farmers producing about 15 million more acres of corn than necessary, the government's inability to absorb the surplus will undoubtedly trigger a lower support price next year, predicted the economist.

At the same time, beef production will drop five percent, veal will be down nine percent, pork will drop three percent and lamb and mutton supplies will slide about six percent, Steadman said.

"But poultry will fill most of that gap," said the economist, pointing out that the poultry industry, continues to grow at an astounding rate. Per capita poultry consumption will surpass beef within two to three years, he said, attributing the trend to poultry's lower prices, successful promotion and new product development, and increases in producer productivity.

"The cattle herd is shrinking rapidly because of lack of profits," said Steadman, pointing out that the current herd is estimated at 106 million head, compared to 132 million a decade ago.

Despite a like reduction in pork production, pork prices have failed to rebound, due primarily to Canadian imports, Steadman observed. With Canada supplying about seven to eight percent of the total U.S. consumption, imports are costing American swine producers about two to three dollars per hundredweight, said the economist. "We really haven't done anything to shut it off," said Steadman, pointing out that the import duty in force pertains only to live hogs, allowing pork

Farmland Trust head helps launch land preserve drive

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

LANCASTER — Friends of Agricultural Land Preservation, Lancaster County's new farmland preservation group, received an impressive send-off Wednesday evening, as about 200 members braved the fog to get the infant organization off to a good start.

They heard an address by Ralph Grossi, the president of the American Farmland Trust, who compared the local effort with the national undertaking designed to preserve America's most fertile soils.

A dairy farmer from Marin County, Calif., Grossi told the group that ag land preservation actually began there because of pressure from environmental groups. And farmers initially resisted the effort, he added.

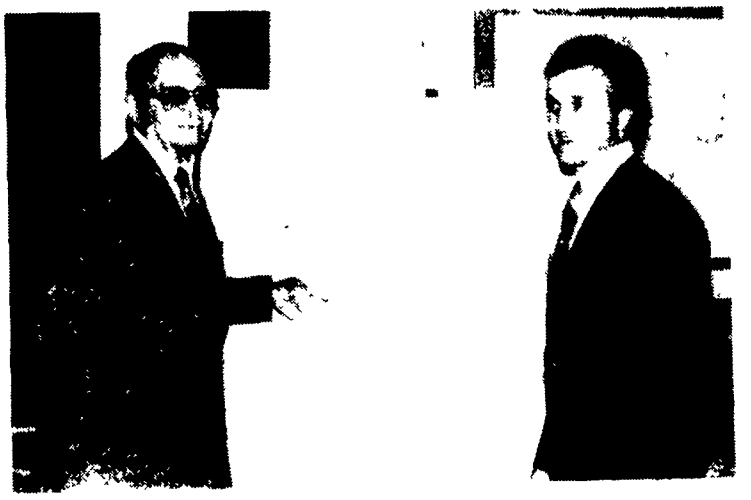
As soon as growers and producers realized their common bond with environmentalists, he noted, they forged a "powerful political coalition" that has benefitted both the environment and the local ag industry.

Grossi says his group currently is designed as a public education clearinghouse for information on agricultural land preservation. It also addresses public policy issues and, where funds permit, it engages in "conservancy actions" to preserve some of the best farmland from development.

After the meeting, Grossi said the Lancaster County "Friends" organization is a "very progressive group that is off to a tremendous start."

He noted that the group already embraces a broad cross-section of interests in the community, and thus the public education process required to bring other groups into the effort may not be necessary here.

The public recognition of the importance of agricultural land



Ag land preservation advocate Amos Funk, left, shows American Land Trust President Ralph Grossi some of the farmland preserves in Lancaster County.

"has already happened in this county," he said. And the group's penetration of both the community groups and the local political subdivisions is "extremely impressive," he added.

In his speech to the group, Grossi called on community planners to consider farmland preservation as part of the normal planning process.

"Most of the time, they view farmland as open space just waiting for something else to happen — like development," he said.

He pointed out a study his group conducted in Loudoun County, Va., to determine the impact of urban sprawl.

After evaluating the relationship between taxes paid and the amount of municipal service required, he said, the group determined that farmland consumes 17 cents of services for every dollar of taxes paid. Meanwhile, he said, suburban areas required $1.32 in services for every dollar paid.

"It shows that the farm community is already subsidizing suburban development," he said.

In other action, the group unanimously accepted a slate of officers, including the election of James Jolly, a Millersville State

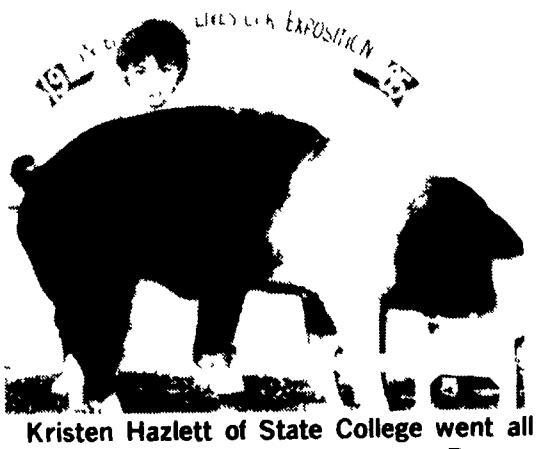
LOUISVILLE, KY — A winning National Dairy Bowl team, a number of national awards, and some excellent prices for top animals were among the highlights of the North American International Livestock Exposition here last week.

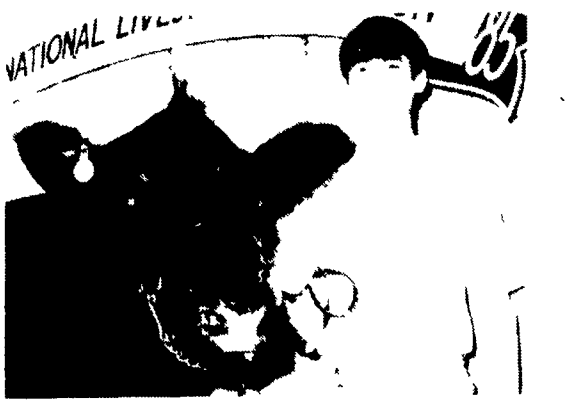
Coverage of that event begins on page A24 of this week's edition of Lancaster Farming. Additional reports will follow in next week's issue.

The KILE story: find it all in this issue



Kristen Hazlett of State College went all the way to the top in the Junior Barrow Show. Results of KILE's Barrow and Breeding Swine Shows can be found in Section B, pages 18 and 22. For draft horse coverage, turn to C-2.

Andrea Sellers of Churchville, Va., had both champion and reserve lambs in the Junior Market Lamb Show. Find out what happened in KILE sheep competition in Section D, pages 10, 12 and 17.



Mike Messick, Middletown, followed his sister's example from last year and won KILE's Junior Steer Show. The KILE beef story can be found on pages 22, 23, and 26 of this section.

F.O.B. Plant: .22-.23.

Thursday, Nov. 14
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds is tapering but most plants managed to clear offerings satisfactorily. The bulk of trading on part items is generally marked by sharp discounting and slow movement, particularly on breast and leg items.

Live supplies are at least adequate. Weights were trending lighter but still in a full range. Slaughter schedules are being trimmed and were very light in total. The undertone was at least barely steady.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices were unchanged on U.S. Grade A at .54-.61 cents.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000).

Estimated 11/14 1,700,000; Actual 11/07 1,977,000.

To "Push The Pencil"

Farm records are a very important part of modern farming; they are needed for tax purposes and for the benefit of farm planning. Since we are at the end of the cropping season and of the calendar year, it might be a good time to do some office work and determine the best enterprises for the past year. You'll need to consider any unusual circumstances.

Time spend in analyzing farm records and planning the future based upon these records should be very worthwhile. Major decisions are hard to make but are very important in today's farming. We hope that good farm records can contribute in these decisions.

To Repair Machinery During The Winter

Most of the outside field work is finished for this year. I also know that every farm has machinery that needs repair and service. If you are planning to have this done at your machinery dealer, it would be wise to contact him in the near future so it's on his work schedule.

I'm aware of the spring rush next March and April; and I know your local serviceman will appreciate the work during the fall and into the long winter days. It can also save time in case parts need to be ordered to complete the job. The objective is to be planning for this repair work now. Have it done so you're machinery is ready to go early next spring.

To Be Aware of Wild Birds

Most livestock producers have faced the problem of wild birds during the fall and winter months. These birds come by the thousands and feed from livestock bunks and feeders. They not only eat feed but their droppings present very unsanitary conditions for everyone. Also, since the birds fly from farm to farm, they are a definite source of spreading various diseases.

Unfortunately, we do not have a real good cure for the problem. They can be screened out of confinement buildings. One farmer obtained results by dipping a half inch rope in creosote, then tacking it to the top of the roosting area, giving discomfort by irritating the feet.

Another farmer suggests using a shallow pan with about a half inch of salt on the bottom with a thin layer of lard over the salt so as the bird pecks through the lard they pick up the salt. In buildings without livestock, a rotating light makes the birds dizzy and they will not stay long. In any event... good luck.

To Order Small Fruit Plants Early

This may strike you as premature, but this is a good time to order small fruit plants for next spring. Although you won't put them in the ground until April, you should be flipping through the catalogs now. Ordering early assures you of a wide selection of the best varieties.

Companies begin filling orders with their best stock... if you delay you could be stuck with what is left over. Ordering early also means you'll get your strawberries or raspberries or whatever at the best time to plant.

So, dig out those catalogs now... get your order in... and be prepared for delicious fruit from your planting.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE WE STILL "PLAYING CHURCH"?

November 17, 1985

Background Scripture:
Ephesians-4.
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 2:8-15.

I don't know about you, but when I read the fourth chapter of Ephesians, I feel a deep sense of shame. The words are beautiful, but their power to judge us is fantastic. You don't even have to read the whole chapter to know what I mean:

"...forbearing one another in love, eager to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace..." (4:2,3).

"There is one body and one Spirit,...one hope... one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all..." (4:5,6).

"...the whole body, joined and knit together by every joint... makes bodily growth and upbuilds itself in love" (4:16).

"Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, with all malice, and be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you" (4:31,32).

NO LONGER CHILDREN

Read each of those passages along with your daily newspaper and you cannot escape the terrible knowledge that Christ's people on earth are projecting anything but the image of the Church described in Ephesians. "Maintain the unity of the Spirit"? What unity? "Be kind to one another"? No, Christians are not kind to one another, they are contentious, judgmental, and devisive. "There is one body and one Spirit"? Hardly! There are many bodies, and it would seem, all contending that they alone possess the [illegible] Spirit.

Oh, to be sure, sometimes the Presbyterians, Methodists and U.C.C.'s get together for a service, or sit together with the Episcopalians and the Lutherans in a council of churches. Yes, and sometimes the Pentecostals sit down with the Baptists and the Church of God acknowledges the Nazarenes. And Roman Catholics and Prostestants have buried the hatchet, haven't they? (—except in Northern Ireland, where they're burying one another).

THE TRUTH IN LOVE

But if you think that's what Ephesians 4 is all about, no wonder we're so divided. Ephesians 4 is speaking of a unity and love that does not issue into constant conflict and division. Ephesians 4 is the antithesis of Christians attacking each other, impugning each other's faith, deriding each other's efforts, and denouncing each other's discipleship.

The writer of Ephesians calls us to "mature manhood" (personhood) "so that we may no longer be children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine..." (4:13,14). But, until we learn to accept our unity in Christ we will still be children "playing church."

Standards announced for field sanitation

PHILADELPHIA — U.S Secretary of Labor William E. Brock announced guidelines for state field sanitation standards and offered federal technical assistance to enable the states to meet the requirements for protecting farm field workers.

"Basic human decency dictates that farm workers be provided with sanitation facilities, and these guidelines will help the states meet their obligations while reducing the risks to farm workers from the unsafe and unsanitary conditions in the field," Brock said.

Brock, in a notice sent to the Federal Register by the Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, spelled out the requirements that state standards must meet within 18 months to preclude issuance of a federal standard. The state standards must provide farm workers with field sanitation protection equivalent to OSHA's proposed sanitation standard published March 1, 1984.

The guidelines require:

• As much protection as was contained in an earlier federal proposal calling for drinking water and the provision and maintenance of handwashing and appropriate toilet facilities in the fields. Although variations due to the size, resources and climate in the states are expected, the manner in which the facilities were provided (e.g. distances, ratios, etc.) must, viewed as a whole, provide protection equivalent to the 1984 (federal) proposal.

• A sufficient increase in the number of states with adequate standards to assure that the vast majority of hand laborers working in the fields not presently covered by state standards will be protected.

• Adequate enforcement programs by the states. Again, though there may be variations, the states would have to name a responsible agency, and provide legal authority and adequate personnel and resources, appropriate inspections, notice to employees of their rights, notice of alleged violations and proposed abatement requirements to both employees and employers, and effective methods to compel abatement of revelant hazards.

Brock, who is allowing the states 18 months to meet the requirements, said OSHA will "actively offer assistance" to the states for developing, improving and implementing their standards.

He is asking each state governor to designate a state official as a contact person for field sanitation efforts. OSHA's regional administrators, and regional secretary's representatives will work with the state officials on each state's efforts to meet the guidelines and to offer any technical assistance that may be needed.

He has asked that as each state completes its development of an adequate field sanitation standard and an effective enforcement program, the state forward a written description to the OSHA regional administrator.

Currently, 13 states–California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas–have standards, while Minnesota and Wisconsin are in the process of developing such standards.

Brock stated that states remain better able to regulate in this area by improving on current standards, adding required provisions, expanding coverage or taking other steps to meet federal requirements. States without standards, he said, "can draw on their closer relationships with their constituents, both growers and farm workers, and their long experience with analogous public health problems to promulgate and enforce appropriate standards."

Brock also announced the "limited reopening" of the record on the federal proposal to allow public comment on two risk assignment studies contracted by OSHA during its rulemaking but which were completed after the record on the proposal had been closed.

Six counties on 'disaster' list

HARRISBURG — Gov. Dick Thornburgh today extended his state declaration of "disaster emergency" to Westmoreland County, bringing the total to six counties in Southwestern Pennsylvania so designated as a result of flooding from three days of heavy rainfall.

Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Somerset and Washington counties were designated as disaster emergency areas on Nov. 5 by the governor.

The proclamation makes available up to $1 million in state funds for disaster-related expenses and authorizes the use of emergency measures by state and local agencies — such as the hiring of temporary workers and rental of equipment — to conduct rescue and relief operations.

University history professor, as president.

Jolly, who is also president of Millersville Borough Council, has been at the local college since 1966. Although he does not have an agricultural background, he said he felt the effort was an important contribution to the quality of life in Lancaster County.

"I believe that agriculture greatly contributes to Lancaster County being prosperous, attractive and unique," he said. The farming life, he said, "contributes to a wholesome physical and social environment."

"I feel the county's residents should feel responsible to be good stewards of the 'Garden Spot.'"

Other officers in the group include Jean Sonntag, vice president; Barbara Skelly, secretary; Robert Campbell, publisher of Lancaster Farming, finance chairman; and Eric Probst, Marilyn Lewis and Amos Funk, directors.

Erie agent wins award

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA — Carolyn Belczyk, associate county agent for the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service in Erie County, received an Achievement Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

As 4-H program coordinator in Erie County, Belczyk oversees a program comprised of 952 members, led by 135 adult volunteers in 44 clubs and special interest groups. The Eric County 4-H program has an exceptionally high level of leader involvement in planning, executing and evaluating 4-H activities.

In 1977, Belczyk introduced the Rats for Good Nutrition program, a unique animal feeding demonstration that has been used to teach Eric County children the basis for good nutrition. It was introduced as a state program for 4-H EFNEP (Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program) particants in 1981.

Therapeutic Riding for the Handicapped has been another of Belczyk's successful programs. The program now operates as a nonprofit corporation involving two riding stables, six community agencies, three volunteer riding instructors, and more than 50 other volunteers.

In 1981 Belczyk began working with the Erie Area Lions Club to develop the Leader Puppy program for the blind. She helped establish an advisory group to oversee puppy health care and placement and to develop programs to recognize members and their dogs.

Belczyk is currently working on a master of business administration degree from the Behrend College of Penn State and holds a bachelor of science degree in recreation and youth leadership from Michigan State University.

She is an active member of both the Pennsylvania and National Associations of County Agricultural Agents and was a national winner of the NACAA Career Guidance Award in 1978. In 1984 she was first place winner in the Direct Mail Category of Communications Awards sponsored by the PACAA.

Belczyk is the daughter of Roy and Lucille Danforth of Chardon, Ohio.

Vet to address Young Farmers

LEBANON — Dr. Tim Trayer, a veterinarian from the Denver area, will discuss dairy feed additives with the Cedar Crest Young Farmers at Cedar Crest High School on Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Trayer will talk about some of the new technologies for boosting production and efficiency that are now or will soon be available to farmers. These include buffers, rumensin, isoacids and Bovine Growth Hormone.

The meeting is open to the public.

Farm Bill debate delayed, again

WASHINGTON — Once again, the resolution of the 1985 Farm Bill has fallen victim to other pressures in the nation's capital.

The Senate, scheduled to begin consideration of the Farm Bill this week, was preoccupied with legislation extending the ceiling on the national debt and did not work on the bill.

The upper house is expected to return to the Farm Bill debate early next week. It did take the time, however, to pass a bill extending current ag policy for 30 days, until Dec. 13.

Working together, pointing to more consistent performance.

Well bred and field proven. That's the best way to describe new G-4326 and G-4522.

And when you plant both, you'll be getting two of our best performers. There's no better way to spread your maturities while you aim for high yields in each maturity range.

New G-4326. Just what you need today – a rugged, hard-working hybrid. With ability to put extra bushels in the bin during both good and not-so-good years. A robust, healthy constitution keeps it standing through a variety of weather conditions.

But as rugged as it is, early-season G-4326 also makes a smart high-performance choice for heavy soils.

G-4522. For your midseason choice, this one is hard to beat for consistent, overall performance. In fact, it has earned Funk's best ratings for stalk strength and stress tolerance.

This means you can count on G-4522 to really stand tough under a variety of stresses. Give it good fertility and watch it pay off big!

To us, agriculture is still the backbone of America

At Hamilton Bank one of our primary objectives is to serve, and help preserve, the family farm.

We still believe that agriculture is the backbone of America, and the family farm is the cornerstone of agriculture in our area.

That's why we have developed a complete range of financing, credit, trust and estate services — all designed to help you — the family farmer — fulfill your obligations.

With the value of farm production in our area increasing every year, the need for capital continues to rise along with it. We are here, and will continue to be here, to help you meet that need

When we work together, through a relationship of mutual trust, we can all continue to move ahead We can continue to keep agriculture strong

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Mini analysis now available

During the month of October, County Agents from the eastern two thirds of the state participated in an inservice training program on using the mini analysis program developed for the MacIntosh computer.

Each county extension office in the state has at least one MacIntosh and one Apple IIe computer in their office. Agents in the western part of the state participated in a similar training session in June.

Some dairy farms are already on one of the farm analysis programs available in the state. However even these farms may be able to get some management information from the mini analysis.

Some of the features available from the mini are:

- a projection of what could happen if some management changes were made,
- an examination of feed efficiency or feed use on the farm,
- comparison between what the farmer exports for yields, inventories, milk sold, and milk price for the analysis and what is on the DHIA report,
- debt repayment ability, and
- money available for family living.

If you are interested, contact your county agent so they can sign you up.

Ease of collecting data: The mini analysis is quite simple when it comes to collecting data. There is a one-and-a-half-page data collection sheet with a two-page instruction sheet for use by whoever fills out the input form. An analysis can be made from less information.

In fact the mini analysis is geared to provide some analytical results from no more than the information used to complete the income tax form. However it must be remembered that the more detailed the information fed into the program, the more useful the results will be that come out of the program.

Management changes for Projections: Management changes considered for the projection section are (1) increases of 5 and 10% in milk production, (2) increase of 10% in crop production, (3) increase of 10% in feed efficiency, (4) increase of 10% in hay quality, (5) increase of 10% in herd size with or without expansion of facilities, (6) decrease of 10% in herd size with either a 7 or 10% increase in production on the remaining cows, and (7) a combination of several of those changes.

Projection Changes: The projected changes are shown as (1) change in net cash income, (2) change in debt repayment ability, and (3) change in percentage of actual debt payment that is covered by the debt repayment ability.

As part of the program: To assist the farmer user with interpretation of the results, there are several mimeo attachments available that go with the printout for the completed program.

The most important is one titled "Interpretation of the Key Points of the Mini Analysis." It explains what each of the main points of the analysis means, then provides some guidelines as to whether a particular measure is good, average or a possible problem area.

A second mimeo deals with a discussion of feed efficiency with some possible solutions for imporvement. A third one discusses the projection section and section and how to determine whether you have a credit problem and if so the potential for solving it.

The fourth one concerns suggestions on improving debt repayment ability.

The Mini will not: As useful as the mini analysis is there are some things that it will not do that are important. It will not provide a balance sheet. It also will not provide the user with an accrual net income. Finally it will not provide any kind of breakdown of enterprise costs and returns.

Why not talk to your county agent and see whether this program can be of assistance to you in the rather turbulent farm economic climate we will have for the next 3 to 5 years.

Ag leader to host Berks Farm Tour visitors

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

BETHEL – Berks County farmers are opening their doors this week and as they host city visitors and urban neighbors on their farms as part of the Berks County annual Farm Tours program. Sponsored each year by the Berks County Farmers Association in cooperation with the county 4-H clubs, FFA clubs, extension service and intermediate unit, the tours are designed to educate the public on the big business of agriculture and the dedication of farm people.

For over four years, George and Pearl Moyer have greeted hundreds of visitors to their Mor-Dale Dairy Farm along the Frystown Road, to the south of Bethel. They strive to show the public the dedication that a farm family puts into their work and the quality product they strive to produce.

Mor-Dale Farm, owned by George and Pearl Moyer consists of 225 registered Holsteins with 100 milking and 450 acres of cropland, growing corn and alfalfa. Son, Ralph, works full time on the farm managing the cattle and helping with the crops while sons, Curtis, a carpenter, and Mark, a combine operator, help out whenever they are able.

"Basically, it's a family operation," Moyer explains about his farm, "I would like to keep it that way," he adds. "Everybody pitches in and works here," he continues. "The family is the backbone of the operation."

With a very minimum of hired help, Moyer and his son, Ralph, the only full time employee, manage the entire farm chores with the help of their wives, Pearl and Crystal. They are able to do this because research, cost comparisons, and acquired management skills went into the building of Mor-Dale Farm.

The homebred herd of Mor-Dale Farm rests peacefully in the pasture while awaiting their next milking.

Ralph and George enjoy the ease and efficiency of their TMR feeding system.

Mor-Dale Farm began in 1966 with the purchase of the current farm after having given up operations in Schuylkill County, originally milking registered Ayrshires. Moyer relates that he was 14 years old when he received the responsibilities of the family dairy herd and adds that he has worked and paid for everything that he has today. As he milked the Ayrshires, he became more production-oriented and eventually phased out the Ayrshires to registered Holsteins. Increasing his herd to 50 cows and milking in an 18 stanchion "flat parlor", Moyer built a milking parlor on his present farm in 1977.

A farm accident in 1975 gave this self-made man more determination to make his farm even better. "That's all I did all my life. Why should I give it up?" He

Berks hosts Farm-City kickoff

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

READING – "It's time that we unite." "We need each other to exist." "This is what Farm-City Week is all about," stated Joe Ruth, president of the Berks County Farm-City Council, as he accepted the state award for the best farm-city activities in the state for 1984.

Because of this achievement, Berks County Chamber of Commerce, Agri-Business Committee, and the Farm-City Council hoisted the kick-off banquet for the statewide promotion of Farm-City Week.

The award, presented at the Reading Motor Inn, marked the second year of county efforts to unite and promote better relationships between the farm and city.

Dalton Paul, president of the State Farm-City Council, traveled from Franklin County to present the award to Joe Ruth.

Also on hand were J. Luther Snyder, deputy secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, who presented the governor's proclamation for Farm-City Week; and Dr. James A. Hallman, honorary chairman, 1985 State Farm-City Week observance, and also Governor of the Pennsylvania District of Kiwanis International, to comment on the Farm-City relations through the efforts united by farm-city councils across the state.

After introductions and a "farm-sized" meal, the kick-off program began with presentations and slides from each of the participants of the Berks County Farm-City exchange.

The understanding was obvious at this meeting of businesses. Agricultural and urban concepts were compared and shared. As Karen Miller, Mayor of Reading, noted after her farm visit presentation, farmers spent a lot of time talking about manure and how to handle it. In the city, she added, we do too. "We just call it sewage or sludge," she told the audience of over 400 people.

The Mayor was a guest for a half of day at the farm of Mark Yorgey, poultry producer in Fleetwood. In turn, Miller hosted Yorgey in the city of Reading and the mayor's office as his part of the exchange.

Nevin Mast, Bendy Brook Holsteins, Oley, owner of the highest producing herd in the county, hosted Dave Kline, WHUM radio personality, and account executive. Kline also introduced Mast to the world of radio and advertising for a half of day.

Jerry Amadio, Laureldale mushroom grower and president and general manager of the operations of his family business, participated in an exchange with Nelson Oswald, senior vice president of lending of the Bank of Pennsylvania.

The cheese tasting contest was a favorite of many guests.

Oswald is one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce Agri-Business Committee. After his presentation on his day of learning about growing mushrooms, Oswald's final comment was about an understanding of why mushroom growers needed so much a pound for their mushrooms.

Amadio was equally impressed by the professionalism of bankers. He noted that the term, "banker's hours" is misleading. He concluded, "As with any professional, they live their work."

The farmer-superintendent exchange presentation involved Dr. William Shannon, superintendent of Governor Mifflin High School, and David Glass, swine

Top bulls, heifers named in Open Breeding Cattle Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — With the Keystone and North American Livestock Expositions running concurrently, November is a big month for East Coast beef exhibitors. KILE's open beef events drew competitors from the New England states and the Midwest, many of whom packed up and headed south to Louisville for the North American after their cattle had been placed in Harrisburg.

Angus

No one was more pleased with Monday's outcome than GH2 Angus Associates of York. The partnership took both grand champion and reserve honors in the Angus heifer show, and GH2's four entries registered one first, two second and one third-place in their respective classes.

The show's top female was the junior champion, R&J Lucy, an R&J Austin daughter out of a Mr. Angus cow.

"This show had a lot of quality, but she just stood out in terms of completeness," said show judge Joe Bill Meng of Bowling Green, Kent.

Previous victories must have been good for the February heifer. After being named supreme champion over all breeds at the York Fair, "she's just been blooming and coming ever since," said GH2's Bill Holloway. Holloway noted that GH2 purchased their top heifer from R&J Ranch in Texas.

GH2's reserve champion was Premier Genie 5010, a January daughter of Hi Guy out of a General JJ dam. The heifer was purchased from Premier Angus, Inc., of Indiana.

The show's junior bull calf champion unseated all contending "heavyweights" for champion bull honors. Owned by Warren Bippert of Alden, NY, Bippert's Injector 921 was a Pine Drive son out of the 1982 Farm Show champion heifer, BF Carolina's Playgirl.

"It's the first show he's ever been in," said an elated Warren Bippert, noting that this was his first champion win in 12 years of KILE competition.

Another "youngster" took reserve honors in the bull show. Owned by Grist Mill Farm of Stillwater, NJ, GMF Greenbrae Showoff was a Chairman son, and the show's reserve junior calf champion.

"This is a rare situation where we had two extraordinary '85 bull calves," summed up Meng. "I think they'll come back as yearling bulls and be very competitive."

Polled Hereford

Judge Ike Eller of Blacksburg, Va., singled out a heifer shown by Wayne Budney, owner of Four Winds Farm, Berlin, Conn., for champion female honors. His heifer, Attention Getter, was a "Jogger" daughter that took reserve honors at the New York State Fair.

The top Polled Hereford bull was the show's senior champion, Rhett Butler, a BT Butler son owned by Jim Conway of Overlook Farm, Little Falls, NY, and B&C Polled Herefords of Ontario, Can. Though the bull was originally scheduled to be shown in Kansas City on the same day, Conway remarked that the change in plans had apparently been a good move.

Shorthorn

Ben-Har Farm of Woodbine, Md. came out on top, with their early spring yearling taking champion honors. A GM Irish Special daughter, the heifer had been named reserve grand champion at the South Carolina State Fair earlier in the year.

Shorthorn show judge Ike Eller of Blacksburg, Va., also picked a Ben-Har entry for his champion bull. "We had a good day," remarked Ben-Har's Bruce Bennett, noting that the farm's three entries had taken champion female, champion bull and reserve calf champion female honors. Both of Ben-Har's champions were by the same sire.

Charolais

BCF Crystal, a heifer owned by John Giarrusso of Flemington, NJ, was judge Ron Bolze's choice for champion female honors. A Royal Constructor daughter, the heifer was purchased from Bratton Charolais of McVeytown. She was last year's junior calf champion at Farm Show.

After taking champion honors in the junior Charolais show earlier in the day, Paul Miller of Spring Grove went to the top in the open bull show with RIF Atlantis R040. A June, '83 son of ACF Nautilus, Miller's champion had taken reserve junior champion honors at last year's Eastern National Livestock Show.

Simmental

Sutherland Valley Farm, Lewisville, Ohio, repeated their 1984 performance by taking top honors in the heifer show. Neil Ritchie, the son of Sutherland owners Maurice and Hazel Ritchie, showed the champion female, a Mr. Clean daughter. "This makes the 14th (show) trip this season, and we've had a champion every time," said Maurice Ritchie.

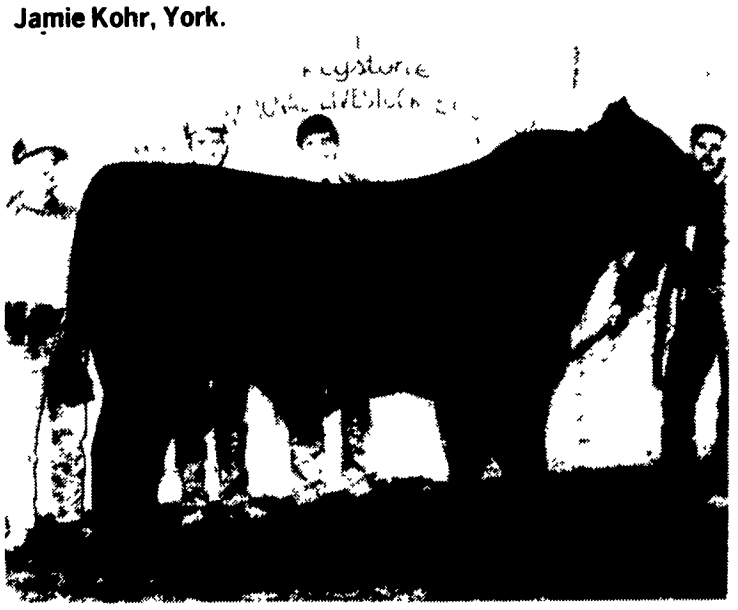
SWHS Lear Jet, a Feb., '85 calf owned by Shoemakers Simmentals and Whitney Hills Simmentals of Buffalo Mills, was named the champion bull by judge Ron Bolze.

"This was his first big show, and it looks like he's got a pretty good future," said Bill Shoemaker of his Lightning-sired bull calf.

Chianina

Though her official name is Lauxmont Lass, her owner, Jamie Kohr, of York likes to call her champion Chianina heifer Cleopatra. The show's top Chi female was sired by Advance Notice, a bull bred by Lauxmont Farm.

Lauxmont Lass won champion Chianina heifer honors for Jamie Kohr, York.



Champion Chianina bull honors went to Highview Farm, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Maryland's Ben-Har Farm showed champion Shorthorn heifer and bull. Pictured with champion female is exhibitor Bruce Bennett and show judge Ike Eller.

Ben-Har Playboy was champion Shorthorn bull.

ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — With a clean sweep through three rounds of questions and past 17 other state teams, the Pennsylvania 4-H Dairy Bowl team won the National Dairy Bowl Championship in Louisville, Ky. on Nov. 9.

The Berks County team included Sandy Moser, Bally, team captain; Charles Seidel, Lenhartsville; Naomi Herbert, Kutztown; and Doris Stump, Bernville. Coaching the team was Dr. George Merrill, of Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Reading. The competition was held at the North American International Livestock Exposition Center in conjunction with the dairy shows and sales being held there Nov. 7 through 12.

"We weren't real certain of ourselves," Sandy Moser explained after the victory. "Nobody expected us to win." Moser went on to say that the team has a relaxed and teasing attitude with each other and appear to be not too serious about competition. "But we're fast," she continued, "and not scared to be wrong."

"I don't like these contests," Moser stated. She added that she figured out before the contest the least amount of games they would have to play to be finished with the competition. "It's nerve-wracking and tiring," she stated. Moser said the team figured if they won five games, the competition would be over.

And it was. Through five bouts from competitor teams from across the states, the Pennsylvania team remained undefeated. The first round of competition consisted of a written test of 50 questions. "All aspects of the dairy industry are fair game," Dr. Merrill stated.

The second round consisted of five questions in which a team could collaborate and the captain would give the complete answer within the time limit. Twenty "toss-ups," individual questions where members had to push a buzzer first with the correct answer, completed the competition with each team.

"They worked together well as a team," Dr. Merrill stated. "They complemented each other." Merrill started coaching the Berks County teams in 1982 after being introduced to dairy bowl competition in New York as a veterinary student. "It was a challenge to me to have them right mentally," he stated about this championship team.

"Basically we started with a battery of questions which I have accumulated," Merrill explained about their strategy in studying for a state or national competition. He added that the team had many general discussions on different topics and read many dairy magazines.

"We really have to thank George," Sandy Moser concluded. "He drove us down (to Kentucky) and answered any questions we threw at him," she stated.

Sandy Moser is a freshman media major at Loyloa University of Baltimore. Charles Seidel is a sophomore at Penn State. Noami Herbert graduated from high school in June, and Doris Stump is a senior at Tulpehocken High School.

Although the members of the Berks team have changed over the years, the Berks team was finally vindicated for their second place finish to New York in 1982. From their win at State Days in August to this national competition, the Pennsylvania-Berks 4-H Dairy Bowl team has proven their dairy I.Q.

Official placings are as follows:

1. Pennsylvania; 2. New York; 3 Michigan; 4. Washington; 5. Minnesota; 6. Vermont; 7 Georgia; 8. Ohio; 9. Connecticut; 10. Massachusetts.

Pennsylvania Jersey junior purchases pricey Pot of Gold calf

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Young Corey M. McConn paid the top price of $3700 for Chiefs Chocolate Pride at the American Jersey Cattle Club's Pot of Gold Sale here Nov. 9.

An intermediate calf, Pride is a Yankee FW Chief daughter from the heart of the Imperial Pride family. She was consigned by Mayfield Dairy Farm, Inc., Athens, Tenn.

A Burgettstown youth, McConn went to Louisville in search of a 4-H project calf. Accompanying him on the trip were his father, Newton, and his grandfather, Wilford Rankin.

The AJCC Pot of Gold is one of the most prestigious Jersey calf sales in the country. The 1985 edition saw 15 calves sold for an average price of $1697.

The Pot of Gold Sale, which includes a production contest, serves as a stepping stone for youth, from the responsibilities of 4-H and FFA work to the development, breeding, and production testing of registered Jerseys.

Seventeen percent of the gross of the sales is set aside in a Pot of Gold Fund. This is then awarded to the twelve juniors whose calves purchased at the sale produce the most 4 percent FCM during their first lactation, provided they calve before reaching 30 months of age.

High selling heifer in the 1985 Jersey Pot of Gold Sale was Lot #2, Chiefs Chocolate Price, consigned by Mayfield Dairy Farm, Inc., Athens, Tenn. She was purchased for $3,700 by Corey M. McConn, Burgettstown, pictured here with his father, Heaton McConn, and grandfather, Wilford Rankin.

Prior to the start of the 1985 sale a pot of $6120 was divided among the winners with purchased heifers having completed their first lactation.

The winners were: 1. Raymond Orisio Jr., Woodburn, Ore., $1713; 2. Nathan Brown, Minn., $1040; 3. Kris Koon, Texas, $612; 4. Steven Samson, Wash., $490; Kevin Eric Lutz, $428; William Todd Stroup, N.C., $367; Charlotte Corley, Okla., $306; Clinton A. Douglas II, Ill, $306; Wendy Ree Crowe, Ga., $244; Winthrop Dada, Calif., $244; Kevin Eric Lutz, N.C., $183; David Altvater, Ohio, $183.

All-American Sale averages over $3000

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Animals from the top 3 percent of the Jersey breed paraded through the sale ring and brought a hefty sale average of $3233 at the recent All-American Jersey Sale here.

Topping the sale was Forest Glen Legend Maria 88%,the highest indexing daughter of Schultz Performing Legend. Consigned by Stanley and Dora Bansen, Forest Glen Jerseys, Dayton, Ore., she sold for $10,500 to Comfort Hill Jerseys, Vt.

Sold with $8000 worth of AI contracts, Maria produced at 2 years and 1 month, 305-day lactation, 16,690 pounds of 4.6 milk and 761 pounds fat for a 305-day ME Average of 21,029 pounds milk and 944 of fat.

Along with Maria, the All-American Jersey Sale had it all: Three young sires selling with ETA averages of +707M, +40F, and +$113; fifteen cows from the USDA's Elite List, the top 1 percent of the breed; and unborn embryos, with guaranteed choice of sex, from two of the top 25 CPI cows in the breed.

The cows sold averaged 86.3 percent on appraisal scores and averaged Cow Indexes of +473M, +19F, and +$62. This average places them in the top 3 percent of the breed.

Buyer response to such offerings included a standing room only crowd and rapid bidding to a high average.

Second high selling individual was Major Brass-ET, one of the three bulls selling. This Top Brass son out of Tenn Confiapril AHE Maid 88% was consigned by Lewis Robinson and Family, Cornersville, Tenn., and purchased for $8100 by American Breeders Service and a syndicate.

Major Brass has a PI of +622M, +29F, and +$88. His maternal sister, Quicksilvers Babe 90%, has the third highest CPI in the breed at +248.

Also selling in the same price range was Blaisdell Nova Romona 90%. This daughter of Briarcliffs Magic Casanova sold to Greenwood Jersey Farm, S.C., for $8000.

Due in March to Schultz Performing Legend, Romona carried with her $9700 worth of bull contracts. Her July 1985 USDA Cow Index was +809M, +25F, and +$93. She was consigned by Phil V. Fanelli, Hilmar, Calif.

Others selling for more than $4000 were:

•Bellemont Best-ET, a bull, consigned by Russell Isley Family, N.C., and purchased by NOBA, Inc., and a syndicate for $6000;

•Top Brass Deonne-ET, consigned by Robert J. Marsh, Malvern, and purchased by Shamie Ranch, Texas, for $5800;

•Magic Darian-ET, a bull, consigned by James Noble, Harlem Springs, Ohio, and purchased by NOBA, Inc. and a syndicate for $5500;

Local youth win national awards

BY GINGER SECRIST-MYERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A number of Pennsylvania youth received National Jersey Youth Awards during the Youth Banquet held in conjunction with the North American Livestock Exposition, Louisville, Ky., last week.

Patricia Dreisbach, Hamburg, placed fourth among the 1984 National Jersey Youth Achievement winners. Only ten individuals are chosen annually.

Patti is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dreisbach, Hamburg. She is studying dairy science and agricultural economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Patti is the 1984 National Jersey Jug Queen.

Richard R. Terrel, Waymart, received the $750 Paul Jackson Memorial Scholarship. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Terrel, he is a junior at Penn State University majoring in business administration-finance and economics. An active FFA member, Richard received the Keystone Farmer Degree in 1983 and was the top academic vo-ag student in his graduating class.

One of three $650 William A. Russell Scholarships also came to Pennsylvania. Winning this award was Lisa M. Pilipauskis of Meadville. Pilipauskis, the daughter of David and Donna Reusing, is a freshman at Virginia Polytechnic Institute majoring in business management and accounting.

A director of the Pennsylvania Junior Jersey Cattle Club, she was active in planning the 1985 AJCC Annual Meeting held in Lancaster.

NAILE showmen place sixth in state herd class

BY GINGER SECRIST-MYERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Eleven Pennsylvania junior Jersey members travelled to Kentucky last week to compete in the junior and open All-American Jersey Shows, held in conjunction with North American International Livestock Exposition.

The youth and their 11 head of dairy cows finished sixth in the State Herd competition, the strongest Jersey youth show in the nation.

Under the supervision of Pennsylvania Youth Coordinator Lori Sollenberger youngsters scored the following placings:

•Mary Ellen Deaven, Newburg, second place junior calf.

•Marlin Deaven, Newburg, 18th place junior calf.

•James Hardy, Petersburg, seventh place senior yearling in milk and 17th place three year old.

•Jerome Hardy, Petersburg, 13th senior two-year-old.

Mary Ellen Deaven, Newburg, and Michelle Lusk, Charleroi, competed in the showmanship contest. Less than 10 percent of the youth exhibitors are selected to participate in this competition.

Messicks retain KILE market steer title

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — It's no secret that winning often runs in the family. Each year, junior steer exhibitors look to the bulls with the winningest offspring when choosing their show prospects for the coming season.

And the ability to single out a calf with winning potential seems to run in the family as well. That's how things went in KILE's market steer show when judge Ron Bolze slapped Mike Messick's Chianina-Angus cross for grand champion honors.

"He's a particularly well-balanced steer with a lot of weight in the higher priced hindquarters," remarked Bolze. "He puts a lot of pounds into a moderate frame."

Messick's sister, Sally, who showed last year's top beef, couldn't have been happier. "I knew he'd beat me (this year). I'm really proud of him," she beamed.

Both the 1984 and '85 winners were homebred on the Messick family farm near Middletown. And both were sired by the Chianina bull, Ideal. Mike's champion was a 1,220-pound Chianina-Angus cross that took top honors in August at the Regional Chianina Field Day in York.

The son of Mylin and Doris Messick, 15-year-old Mike singled out the calf from the family's own herd and began working with him in May. "I thought he had the most meat on him at the time, and, overall, was the most correct," he said. Next stop for KILE's top beef will be the Farm Show in January.

Unable to find what he was looking for among the heavier entries, Bolze, a beef extension specialist at Ohio State University, went with a lighter steer for reserve honors, as well. This time it was a Chianina-Angus cross shown by Douglass Goodwin of Lewisburg, W. Va.

Goodwin's 1160-pound entry was purchased from Martin McQueen of Hillsboro, W.Va. The son of Bill and Janet Goodwin, Doug also took reserve honors in the heavyweight division.

Feeder Calves

In the feeder calf show, Pat Barker of Barker Brothers, Kendallville, Ind., came out on top for the second year in a row.

"That was a full brother to the calf that won last year," said Barker, after his Chianina-Angus cross took champion honors. The winning calf was sired by the Chianina bull, Ironio.

Following are the results of the Junior Steer and Feeder Calf Shows.

New seed may cost less

DEKALB, IL — Farmers considering soybean seed costs this next spring need to evaluate more than just seed price, says Bob McCauley, DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS Regional Agronomist.

"Professionally conditioned seed will generally have higher germination, greater vigor, higher purity and better appearance than bin-run seed. That translates into more bushels and higher returns per acre.

"There are several pitfalls that can and usually do occur when bin-run soybean seed is used," the agronomist adds. "These trade offs usually make the real cost of bin-run seed more costly than new seed."

McCauley observes bin-run seed is usually harvested when the beans are dry–13 percent moisture or less. The harvest moves quickly. High reel and ground speeds in addition to the low seed moisture levels tend to increase seed cracking. This reduces germination and physical appearance he said.

"Most farmers do not rogue fields for volunteer corn and weeds," the agronomist continues. "Nor do they clean their combines when moving from one field or variety to another." This contamination is another pitfall of bin-run seed that robs farmers of purity and yield performance.

Another pitfall of bin-run seed is disease. "Several diseases can be carried with the seed if proper care and control are not exercised," McCauley adds. These diseases may kill the seed before it germinates and even contaminate the soil of fields that do not have a history of that disease.

Seed-borne diseases include pod and stem blight, soybean mosaic, and purple seed stain. And even more detrimental–soybean cyst nematode can be carried on soil particles that might cling to the soybean seed.

"Most farmers who use bin-run seed do not decide to keep that seed for the following crop until it is already in the bin," the DEKALB-PFIZER agronomist said. Commercial seed production is a full time business and from the time a field is selected for seed crop production it is handled and monitored differently than a farmer's production.

DEKALB-PFIZER seed growers harvest soybeans at high moistures and at low reel and ground speeds to reduce the potential for cracking. Seed companies use several pieces of specialized equipment not often available to farmers to clean and improve seed size uniformity.

"Our soybean production plants use rubber belts or rubber augers to move the seed," McCauley observes. "They use drop ladders to reduce the distance of free fall in storage bins."

The agronomist itemized all the costs for making bin-run into reasonably acceptable planting seed.

"First you pay the market price for beans, now around $5. Next there is $2.50 to $3 per bushel reflecting the extra labor, transportation, direct cleaning cost, interest on lost income and value of the clean-out. In addition you must add the value of 3 to 4 bushels of yield loss with homegrown seed."

The bin-run seed which looked cheaper ends up costing farmers $9 to $15 more per acre than new seed, McCauley concludes. And the cost for using bin-run seed increases as market prices improve for soybeans.

Dow develops insect guide

MIDLAND, MI — New for U.S. apple growers is a detailed guide for insect and mite control from The Dow Chemical Company. The 18-page color booklet contains dozens of photographs, charts and information on seasonal growth stages of trees and fruit, integarted pest management, spray scheduling and proper application procedures, plus tips on orchard pest scouting and how to identify 28 major pest species and damage they cause.

The booklet also features U.S. regional charts which compare the pest control effectiveness of 11 major insecticides and miticides and their impact on predator or beneficial populations. In addition, a compatibility chart illustrates which common insecticides, miticides and fungicides can be used in combination with LORSBAN* Insecticides and PLICTRAN* Miticide.

Seasonal spray schedule recommendations are outlined, beginning with one-half inch green tip (delayed dormant) through spring and summer foliar sprays. Also provided are tips on dilute and concentrate spraying, spray adjuvants, sprayer calibration, ground and aerial application.

For growers or nurseries involved with new orchard plantings, information is included on TELONE* soil fumigants. Safe handling guidelines for all orchard chemicals are covered including recommended clothing, mixing precautions and proper storage and disposal procedures.

For a free copy of the booklet, contact your Dow horticultural products distributor or write: "Guide For Insect And Mite Control In Apples," Dow Chemical U.S.A., Agricultural Products Department; P.O. Box 1706, Midland, Michigan 48640.

1955 LANCASTER FARMING 30 Years Of Service 1985

Pa., Ohio claim top junior breeding beef honors

BY JACK HUBLEY

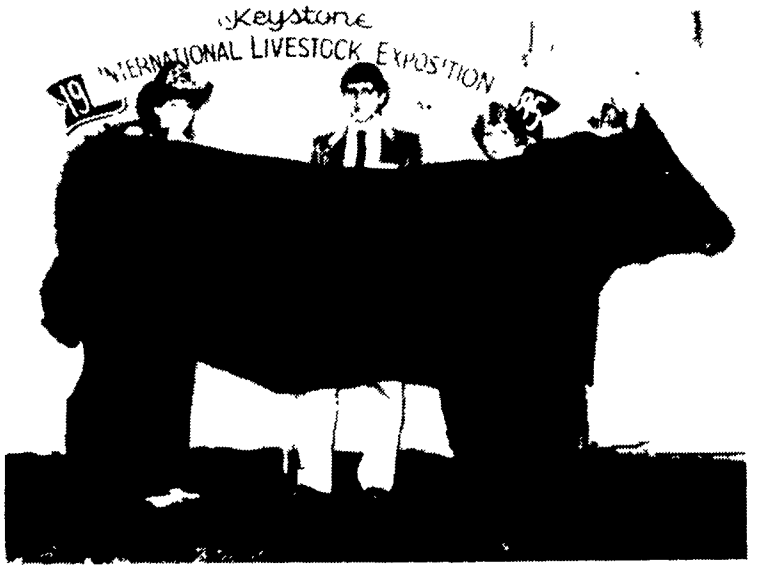
HARRISBURG — More than 50 young exhibitors from Connecticut to Ohio gathered at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition last Sunday to compete in the seven junior breeding cattle shows. Judging the show was Ron Bolze of Columbus, Ohio.

Angus

Susan Eisenhour, 14, of Wellsville kept the champion Angus title in Pennsylvania when her Feb., '84 heifer named Garney Annabelle took top honors.

"I knew she was good, but I didn't think she'd go the whole way," said the elated exhibitor. A Pine Drive Big Sky daughter, the champion Angus was also named reserve champion at the York Fair. The daughter of Jim and Brenda Eisenhour, Susan bought her entry from Garney Farm of Oklahoma.

Reserve honors went to a home-raised entry shown by Debra Krause, 15, daughter of Paul and Lorraine Krause of Slatington. Her heifer was a Fairfield Hi Guy daughter.



Judge Ron Bolze singled out Garney Annabelle, a heifer shown by Susan Eisenhour of Wellsville, for champion Angus honors.

Charolais

Paul Miller, 15, the son of Pat and Paul Miller swept the Charolais show, taking home champion and reserve awards. His champion was RCC Royal Heiress, a Mar.,'84 daughter of RCC Royal Constructor I, purchased from Royal Charolais of Greensburg. Miller's reserve champion, RCC Royal Showtime, was also purchased from Royal Charolais. Her sire was Spains Show Me Polled.

Hereford

Champion and reserve honors in the Hereford show went to Rick Kralj of Meadford. Judge Bolze selected RF Dominette 412, a late spring yearling sired by CL1 Domino, for his champion. BD Miss Purity, a GK Genetic Explosion daughter, was reserve champion.

Polled Hereford

An Ohio exhibitor went home with both champion and reserve honors in the Polled Hereford show. Kim Birney, daughter of Carl and Barbara Birney of Freeport, Ohio paraded her heifer, KB Fancy Lady, to top honors. The Nov., '84 female was sired by EHR Giant Sundance. At reserve was KB Lady Berrenger, a Gray Bear daughter.

Shorthorn

One exhibitor swept both top titles in the Shorthorn show, as well. Edward McLaughlin, 15, of Woodsfield, Ohio led SH Miss Marjorie to the champion position. The son of Robert and Mary McLaughlin, Ed took both junior and open champion honors last year with a full sister to this year's champion.

Simmental

In the Simmental show, Sally Messick of Middletown, whose brother showed KILE's champion steer earlier in the day, won top honors. "I can take a few days like today," she smiled. MF Miss CPS Stretch was a CPS daughter.

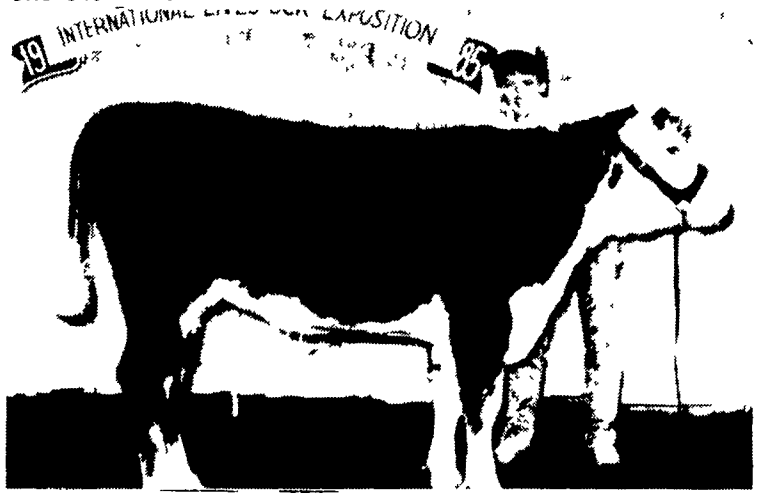
RRF Constance III, another CPS daughter shown by Neil Ritchie of Lewisville, Ohio, took reserve honors.

Chianina

The show's champion and reserve Chianina were both shown by Jamie Kohr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kohr of York. "She's our little baby," said Jamie of Lauxmont Lass, the bottle-fed calf that took champion honors. This was the first time that Lass beat Jamie's other entry, Miss KF Madonna, the heifer named reserve champion.

KB Fancy Lady, owned by Kim Birney, Freeport, Ohio took top Polled Hereford honors. At halter is Neil Ritchie.

Ohio exhibitor Ed McLaughlin had KILE's champion Shorthorn in Junior Show.



Rick Kralj of Meadville showed the champion Hereford.

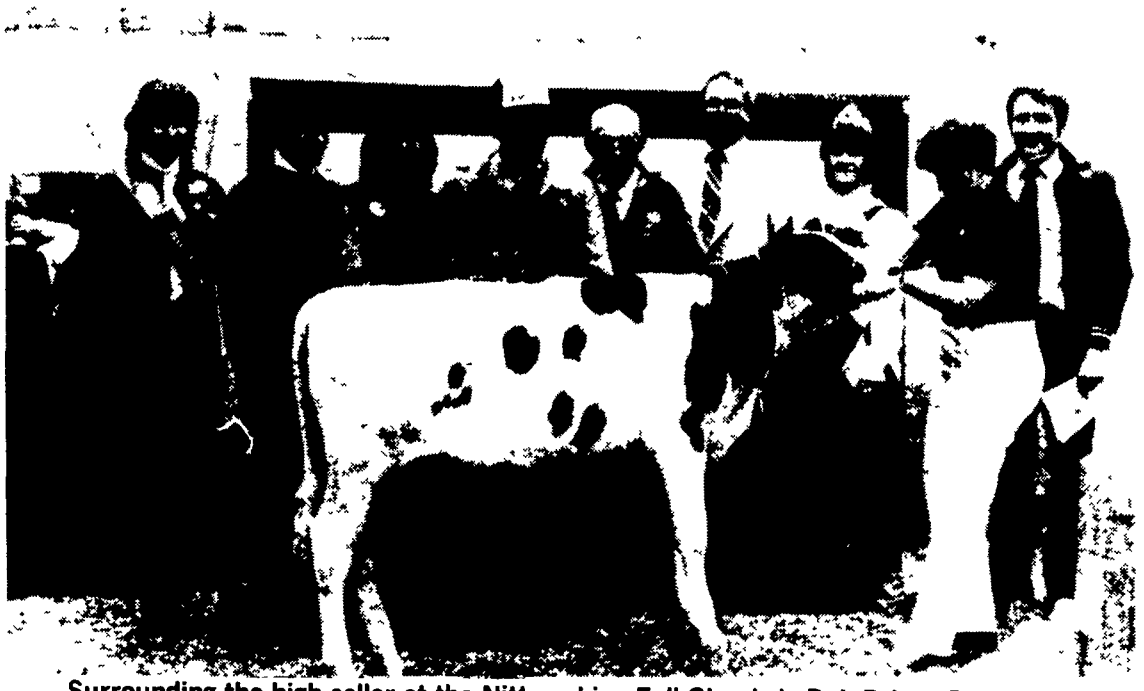
Bidding brisk, prices lower in Nittany Classic

STATE COLLEGE — Bidding was brisk but prices were down in the Nittany Lion Fall Classic co-sponsored by the Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Gillbrook Memorial Cheryl-ET was the top selling animal. Born in March, she sold for $8500 to IGen I of Pittsburgh. Her dam, Gillbrook Valiant Chev-ET is scored 85 as a three year old. She has a top record of 26,086 pounds of milk and 967 of fat at one year and eleven months. Her granddam has a top record of 31,140 of milk and 1144 of fat as a 5 year old. Cheryl is sired by Lemax Pawnee Memorial and was consigned by John G. Gilliland of Warriors Mark.



Surrounding the high seller at the Nittany Lion Fall Classic is Deb Price - Penn State Dairy Princess; Bill Lesher, Sale Chairman; Karen Long, Club President; John Gilliland Jr. and John Gilliland Sr., consignors; Tom Sweeney, buyers representative; Beth Heald, State Dairy Princess and Kim Kriebel leadsperson.

Mountain Supreme Holsteins of Boalsburg bought the second high animal for $3600. Tussey View Sexation Cameo, a fancy 3 year old is scored 87 and produced 16,119 pounds of milk and 616 of fat as a two year old. Her dam Repco Conductor Cherry, scored 86, produced 21,820 pounds of milk and 789 pounds of fat as a 3 year old. She was consigned by Tussey View Farm of Centre Hall.

Shayne and Tom Dum of Landisburg consigned the third high animal. The strong pedigreed, September born calf was sold to Jeffrey L. Hillegass of Berlin for $3000. Dumbelle Ijon Lady Lion-ET is sired by Sterk RA Ijon. Her dam is scored 91 and has a top record of 27,820 of milk and 1179 as a 3 year old.

Mun-Cre Tony Lavish-ET was bought by John E. McMillan of Loysville for $2400 to be the fourth high seller. Lavish was bred to Walkway Chief Mark and was consigned by Lester M. Poust of Muncy.

Buying sight unseen didn't bother Jay and Kirk Hillegass of Berlin. They bought the fifth high animal, a guaranteed heifer calf at 3 months for $2100 from Galen Crouse. The calf will be sired by Air USA Oak Quick Shot.

Bill Nichol, Executive Secretary of the Pa. Holstein Association was pleased with the average of $1606 even though it is down from last year's average of $2079. Mr. Nichol commented that with the current dairy situation he felt the prices were on track. He also commented that the quality was up this year. It was a good uniform group with some fancy pedigrees. Nichol said that buyers are looking for something that will give them a faster return. Several of the cows offered did that by milking over 100 pounds. Mr. Nichol reported that he felt the sale was a success and that the Dairy Science Club did an outstanding job.

Karen Long, president of the Dairy Science Club, also said she felt the sale was a success. "It was very consistent, ran smoothly, and I am satisfied with the results," commented Miss Long. Karen reported that the club worked very hard and practically lived at the Ag Arena for the past week getting ready for the sale.

Miss Long said the sale is designed to give students an opportunity to learn how to merchandise cattle. They learn everything: selections, catalog lay out, advertising and setting up a sale ring. One of things Karen worried about was caring for the animals and the consignors response, but with 15 to 50 club members at the Ag Arena at all times she felt everything went fine. Summing up a whole year of work, Miss Long said, "It was fun, a learning experience and a very worth while experience."

John Burket, assistant chairman, said he thought the sale is probably ranked in the top five club sales in the nation. He reported that proceeds will go towards club activities and a trip to California to the National Dairy Science Association Meeting.

Dr. Larry Muller, club advisor, felt the sale went quite well. He was pleased with the average and with the good crowd. Dr. Muller commended the students on doing an outstanding job on putting a successful sale together.

1985 import levels will not 'trigger' quota

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced that the fourth quarterly estimate of U.S. meat imports for 1985 is below the level that would require quotas on imports under the Meat Import Act of 1979.

Block said that based on USDA estimates of available supplies, imports of beef and certain other meats should be no more than 1,210 million pounds--about 109 million pounds below the 1985 trigger level of 1,319 million pounds.

The Meat Import Act requires the President to restrict imports of certain meats--primarily beef and veal--if the USDA estimate equals or exceeds the trigger level.

"Based on today's estimate, there is no need to impose import restrictions during the quarter beginning October 1," Block said. "Our analysis of conditions in this country and abroad affecting meat imports strongly suggests there will be no need for import restrictions for the remainder of the year."

products to enter the country duty-free.

Lamb continues to be one of the bright spots in the livestock industry, Steadman said, adding that prices should hold at current levels through the coming year.

Steadman's remarks were followed by the presentation of the PLA's Livestock Man of the Year Award. This year's recipient was William Gillespie of Brookvue Farms, Mertztown.

A Penn State graduate with a Masters Degree in Agricultural Economics, Gillespie is a member of the board of directors and past president of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association.

Gillespie joined the Beacon Milling Company in 1935, and retired in 1968 as the company's district manager for New Jersey.

Active in the American Cancer Society, he received the organization's Bronze Medal, the highest award given to a Society division volunteer.

For the past 30 years he has owned and bred a herd of 50 registered Polled Herefords, and has served on the state Polled Hereford association's board of directors.

Gillespie purchased Brookvue Farms in 1963, later moving to the farm's Berks County location from his home in Franklin New Jersey. He currently resides on the farm with his wife Marjorie.

The Livestock Association also honors two FFA and two 4-H members annually for their interest and involvement in the livestock industry. This year's FFA winners were Nancy MacCauley of Atglen and Rodney Herr of Gettyburg.

A senior at Chester County's Octoraro High School, MacCauley lives with her parents, Joan and Bill MacCauley on the family's Suffolk sheep farm. A veteran of both state and national sheep shows, she has undertaken numerous feeding and breeding projects on the family farm.

A recipient of the State FFA Sheep Production Award, MacCauley's accomplishments also include awards in parliamentary procedure, recordkeeping and livestock judging.

The son of Erma Herr, Rodney Herr's FFA projects have included swine breeding and finishing, as well as growing some 65,000 pullets during his four-year FFA career.

A recipient of the Star Farmer award on the chapter, county and state levels, he has also received the state swine proficiency award. He has held numerous FFA offices, and currently serves as Adams County's FFA president.

Also honored were 4-H winners Melanie Bow of Annville, and William Dean of New Castle. A junior at Annville-Cleona High School, Bow resides on the family's Annville area farm with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bow.

Miss Bow's FFA projects have included breeding and market sheep, as well as entomology, leadership and crafts. She has held numerous 4-H offices, including president at both the local and county levels.

She was named grand champion showman and fitter in Lebanon County competition from 1980 to '84, and showed last year's county champion market lamb.

William Dean, the son of William and Roberta Dean of New Castle was also a 4-H honoree. A 10-year veteran of the 4-H program, Dean is a freshman at Penn State majoring in animal production and ag economics.

He has served as president and vice president of his county's baby beef club, and has been a junior leader for the past five years.

Dean's projects have included both market hogs and steers. He exhibited the county's grand champion steer in 1983, and showed last year's reserve champion.

Dean was the recipient of the Pomona Grange's Outstanding 4-H Boy award for 1983.

During the PLA's business session, new officers and board members were named for the coming year. The organization's newly elected president is Ray Lehr of Lancaster. Others named to office were first vice president: Tom Calvert, Berlin; second vice president: Robert Gregory, Lititz; secretary: Bob Kimble, University Park; and treasurer: James Fink, Boiling Springs.

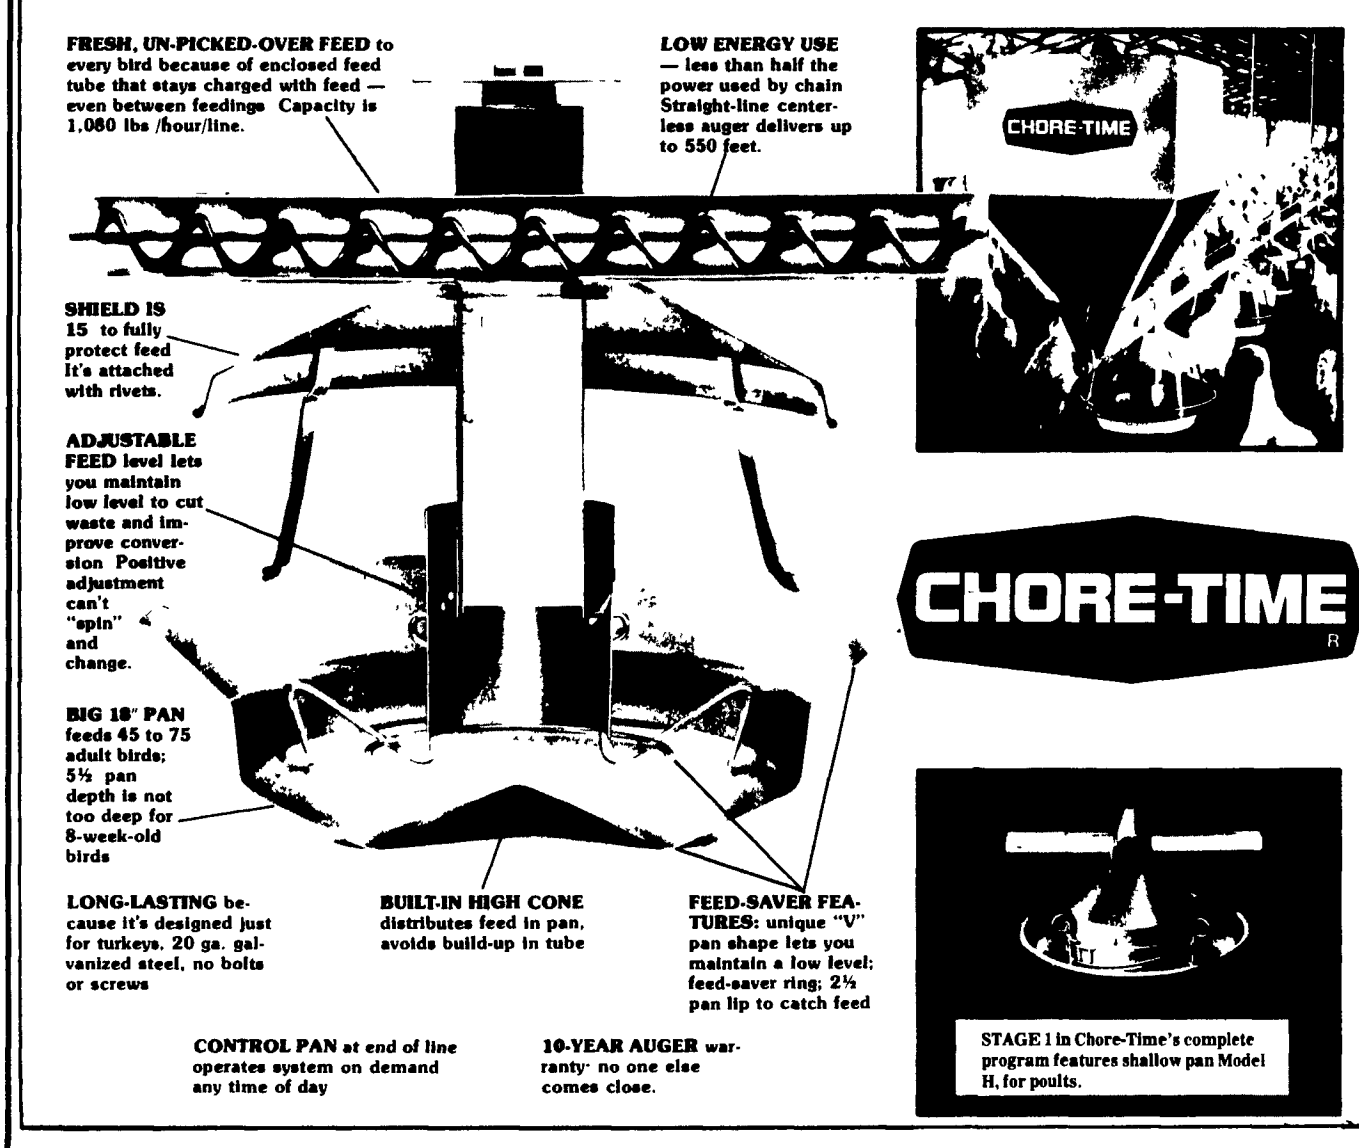
Newly appointed board members include Myron Ritter, Lafayette Hill; Harry Bachman, Annville; Herbert Schick, Kutztown; Isaac Yates, Emaus; Peter Krall, Catasauqua; and Henry Gruber, New Tripoli.

The Livestock Association's 4-H/FFA award honorees are (left) 4-H'ers William Dean and Melanie Bow, and FFA recipients Nancy MacCauley and Rodney Herr.

'Nothing else works like a Chore-Time...'

—that's why it's No. 1 with turkey producers

Chore-Time was first with a confinement turkey feeder, while others were trying to sell you made-over range feeders. We've kept improving on our idea. Now, Chore-Time's Turkey Feeding Systems are the standard of the world. No other equipment even comes close — in feed conversion features, in ruggedness, in ease of operation. That's why growers who have Chore-Time say, "Nothing else works like a Chore-Time system." Before you buy, consider the facts about Chore-Time's unique Model ATF Adult Turkey Feeder, plus our starter and grower systems:



FRESH, UN-PICKED-OVER FEED to every bird because of enclosed feed tube that stays charged with feed — even between feedings Capacity is 1,080 lbs /hour/line.
LOW ENERGY USE — less than half the power used by chain Straight-line centerless auger delivers up to 550 feet.
CHORE-TIME
SHIELD IS 15 to fully protect feed It's attached with rivets.
ADJUSTABLE FEED level lets you maintain low level to cut waste and improve conversion Positive adjustment can't "spin" and change.
BIG 18" PAN feeds 45 to 75 adult birds; 5½ pan depth is not too deep for 8-week-old birds
LONG-LASTING because it's designed just for turkeys, 20 ga. galvanized steel, no bolts or screws
BUILT-IN HIGH CONE distributes feed in pan, avoids build-up in tube
FEED-SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low level; feed-saver ring; 2½ pan lip to catch feed
CONTROL PAN at end of line operates system on demand any time of day
10-YEAR AUGER warranty· no one else comes close.
CHORE-TIME
STAGE 1 in Chore-Time's complete program features shallow pan Model H, for poults.

Lancaster dairymen receive production awards at Holstein banquet

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

MOUNT JOY – Fertrell Farms, Bainbridge; John Brubaker, Christiana; Weaver Homestead Farms, New Holland; and Kenneth Zurin, Mount Joy, each took two awards in the production recognition at the annual Lancaster County Holstein Banquet Thursday night.

Parkherd Jemini Brigade, owned by Fertrell Farms, won both the milk and fat awards for four-year-olds. Her record was 40,527 pounds milk and 1,590 fat.

John Brubaker received both aged cow awards. Knott-run Job Pammy was high in milk production with 35,931 pounds, and Wil-Lo Fond Matt Bea was high in fat with 1289 pounds at seven years.

Weaver Homestead Farms won both the junior and senior two-year-old fat award with two grade animals. The junior animal was an Oak Star daughter with 994 pounds fat, and the senior winner was a Very daughter with 931 fat.

A grade animal owned by Ken Zurin won the senior two-year-old milk category with 26,618 pounds. Zurin's Kendurin Milestone Stella won the three-year-old milk category with 29,363 pounds.

John Howard's Howcrest Valiant Alison won the junior two-year-old milk category with 25,031 pounds. In the three-year-old fat category, Nelson W. Nolt's Edgewater Meddessa Delta won with 1,086 pounds fat.

Arlen Keener was presented with a trophy for having consigned the high selling animal at the Conestoga Classic sale held in August. His Valiant daughter sold for $3,500.

Elected to serve as directors for a three-year term were John Howard, Willow Street; Loren Zimmerman, East Earl; and John Brubaker, Christiana. Gary Akers is retiring from the Board.

In reorganization after the banquet the following officers were elected: Rick Hess, president; John H. Howard, vice-president; Loren Zimmerman, secretary; and Donald R. Risser, treasurer.

Glenn Shirk, county agricultural agent, complimented the county group on its promotion efforts and urged dairymen to evaluate the new technology carefully before deciding if it's right for them. He announced that there are openings for two Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors in the county.

Mowery Frey, state director, urged members to continue membership in organizations and "be united in agriculture" during the difficult times farmers have been facing.

From the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, Ken Raney said the first issue of the new state publication, Pennsylvania Holstein Profiles, will be out Jan. 15. The 1986 annual convention will be held in Pittsburgh on Feb. 21 and 22. There will be a state-sponsored milk promotion contest offering $200 in cash awards to the three clubs who do the most outstanding jobs in promoting milk on a county level. There will also be a $50 award to the best new promotional idea, Raney said.

The annual meeting was held at the Country Table Restaurant in Mount Joy, and marked the opening of its banquet facility. Entertainment was provided by "Rejoice."

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

KEEPING INFORMED

If you are reading this column, it is obvious that you also read other reports in this and other papers. Among the several ways of acquiring knowledge, reading newspapers and current journals is the most effective.

Anyone who does not make the effort or take the time to read his or her farm papers cannot be well informed. There is so much happening in the dairy industry that anyone choosing to stand still by failing to keep informed will be losing ground. Small talk with your neighbors, or the occasional educational television documentary, will never replace the written word for real informational value.

Not that I have anything against talking to your neighbor. It's a great way to learn the latest regional gossip, and find out how he is doing. You might even learn something of lasting value while leaning over the line fence.

But all too much of that kind of exchange tends to simply reinforce the opinions and prejudices that are already too strong in both parties. It seldom results in a change in direction for either one. I usually end up agreeing whole heartedly with anyone who expresses some pessimism about the present economic or political climate, and very little of a constructive nature gets said.

When thoughts are put in writing they tend to be more factual and less opinionated. There is more room for progressive knowledge.

As for educational television as a learning tool, it has great potential. But one has to select very carefully the kind of documentary he or she watches. Many are produced with a slanted viewpoint and carefully edited to convey a very biased opinion, especially those that involve agriculture. They are almost always charged with emotion, and leave the viewer with no real tools with which to make good decisions for himself or herself.

I like to scan through every farm magazine and newspaper that I can afford to subscribe to. Everyone has his or her preference in reading matter, and it must be sifted carefully. Some read only the ads, and some read the comics and cartoons. (I confess that these are the first things that grab my attention!)

But then I look for the regular columns and feature stories that deal directly with what is new, informative, and inspirational. Here is the real meat on the table of knowledge. The written word is the major tool of science, technology and social advancement.

There is plenty of junk and filler in every publication. It doesn't take long to skim over the light and airy, if you want to find something of lasting value. The farm papers that have lasted through the years are still here because they have employed people of experience, with open minds and their sights set on the future. Their editorial policies are sound, with a realistic view of the relationship between farmers and the people they feed.

Many fly-by-night magazines have come and gone because they were born with an axe to grind, and when the controversial issue they espoused was won or lost, they evaporated along with the heat generated by the battle.

Reading is one of the great pleasures as well as a profitable pastime. Encourage the young to read, not only the comics, but the great works of fiction and nonfiction available on the library shelves. And, above all, encourage every budding and potential dairy farmer to keep informed by diligently reading the best of the current farm publications.

The farmer who does not have time to read will have an excessively hard time managing his farm business. And neither television or back-fence palaver with his neighbor will ever fill the gap in rounding out his education.

Md. official heads national group

ANNAPOLIS, MD – David Shriver, Chief of Pesticide Applicators at the Maryland Department of Agriculture, has been elected president of a national association of pest control regulatory individuals, it was recently announced.

Shriver, a 12 year veteran of MDA was elected president of the Association of Structural Pest Control Regulatory Officials (ASPCRO) at the group's annual meeting held this October in New Orleans.

Currently all 50 states including Canada, and Puerto Rico comprise ASPCRO. The group is made up of those individuals responsible for the regulation of the structural pest control industry in their respective states.

"We try to regulate the industry in a consistent manner and strive to standardize procedures for licensing, certification, recertification and training," explained David Shriver, "among the states, reciprocal agreements are a goal that not only assist the pest control industry, but makes for uniform procedures in the industry across state lines."

Continued the new ASPCRO President, "It is important to keep abreast and share ideas on certain pest conditions nationwide."

For the past two years, David Shriver has served as Vice-President of ASPCRO The Annapolis native os a graduate of the University of Maryland where he received his M.S. degree in entomolgy.

In 1981, Shriver was appointed by Governor Harry Hughes to the Governor's Council on Toxic Substances. During that same year he was also appointed to the Governor's Hazardous Substance and Low-Level Nuclear Waste Advisory COuncil

Farmers talk about buying computers

RISING SUN, MD — What do you look for in a computer system? Hardware that's expandable? Menu-driven software? A color screen? A good printer?

Yes. But perhaps even higher on the shopping list for many farmers should be an ag computer dealer who can service and support what they sell, says Dori Greenleaf, computer systems specialist at Ag-Industrial Equipment Co.

The ag computer market is stocked with all kinds of hardware and software. According to many computer users, the first step in selecting the right computer system is finding a dealer who offers the selection, training, service and support you need.

Farmers are realizing that they need to select their computer dealer as carefully as the computer system itself says Greenleaf. In some cases, farmers are finding their computer in the closet collecting dust because, after they purchased it, no one was able — or willing — to train, service or support them.

Here's what several farmers say about selecting an ag computer dealer:

"Basically, I wanted to buy a computer from someone local so that when I have a problem, I can go to them for help. I figure it will save me money in the long run," says Karl Mavencamp, a grain farmer from Malta, Mont.

He purchased his computer from Malta Auto Company, the Sperry New Holland AG-COMMAND™ Computer Center in Malta, Mont. "I was pleased to see my local Sperry New Holland dealer sell computer systems. Their product is good and they are located close to me."

Sperry New Holland AG-COMMAND Computer Centers provide computers, software, training, service and support to area farmers and businesses.

Mavencamp had shopped several hundred miles away in Billings and Havre before Malta Auto Company opened its ag computer center.

He advises farmers shopping for computers to buy from someone who can offer good service. He compares buying a computer to buying equipment. "It's like buying any other piece of machinery — a tractor or planter. What happens when I need service or parts during planting or harvesting season? I just wouldn't buy equipment from someone several hours away," he says.

Jim Dues, a grain and livestock farmer in Portland, Ind., took his brother's advice when shopping for a computer: "Be sure to buy from someone who is willing to help you — that's the main thing."

Dues says his brother was right. "If I would have had to learn how to use the computer by myself, I wouldn't even have my farm records entered on the computer yet. I would have given up," he relates.

"There have been many times when I was frustrated and just wanted to turn the machine off. Luckily, I could call Kent Sipe and he helped me figure things out." Sipe is the computer systems specialist for the AG-COMMAND Computer Center at R.L. Stauffer, the Sperry New Holland dealer in Portland, Ind.

Like other computer systems specialists, Sipe has an ag background and understands what a computer can do for a farm operation. With no prior computer experience, Dues relied on Sipe's recommendation for hardware and software suitable for his operation.

"Kent's ag background really has been a benefit. He understands my operation and can give me solid advice," he says.

Garry Crosby, a dairy farmer in Shell Lake, Wis., chose a dealer he trusts. He purchased his computer system and software from Son Equipment Company, the Sperry New Holland dealer in Clear Lake, Wis. — a company he's been doing business with for years.

"They have always been good when it comes to service and support. I knew they would back their computers like they do their machinery," says Crosby.

"For instance, if my computer ever needs repair they'll provide me with a loaner, so I'll never be without a system. With other computer stores you're on your own," says Crosby.

Besides the loaner policy, Son Equipment Company provided Crosby with the expertise to get the system up and running. "When I have a question the computer systems specialist can usually answer it. If he can't, he calls Sperry New Holland and gets an answer back to me within one or two hours. Now you can't beat that!" exclaims Crosby.

"Before a farmer ventures out into the Ag computing jungle he or she has to do some homework," advises Eldon Fredericks, Extension information specialist from Purdue University.

He says a farmer's homework should include reading about computers, joining a computer user group and attending farm computer conferences and trade shows for first-hand experience.

Fredericks adds, "You should also talk with people who have both ag and computer experience. Agricultural computer conferences and tradeshows offer that opportunity. You can visit with people there who know computers and agriculture." People with that combination of knowledge are more likely to know what a farm operation needs.

Crosby best sums up what to look for in an ag computer dealer. He says a computer dealer should be someone who:

— is located nearby to provide quick support and service if you have problems.

— knows your business of agriculture to help you set up your computer programs, like a chart of accounts for your farm operation.

— will set up the computer for you and help get you started.

Growth hormone pioneer honored

ITHACA, NY — Dale E. Bauman, the Cornell University scientist who has pioneered the use of bovine growth hormone in boosting cows' milk yields and efficiency dramatically, is the 1985 recipient of the prestigious Alexander von Humboldt Foundation Award.

Selected for making "the most significant contribution to American agriculture" during the past five years, Bauman received the award that consists of $10,000, a medallion, and a certificate.

A professor of nutritional biochemistry in the Department of Animal Science in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, Bauman was cited "for his leadership in forging new directions in ruminant research, his innovative research in the regulation of nutrient utilization, which has led to remarkable increases in the efficiency of milk production through the use of exogenous bovine growth hormone, and the unprecedented impact this new technology will have on animal agriculture."

Bauman was presented the award at a special banquet attended by more than 150 of Bauman's associates, friends, and family on Thursday (Oct. 17) at the Ithaca Sheraton Inn.

A member of the Cornell faculty since 1979, Bauman is considered the pioneer behind bovine growth hormone which can boost cows' milk yields up to 41 percent.

"Dale Bauman, a man of enormous energy and creativity, has emerged as the driving force in forging a new thrust in ruminant research in the area of nutritional biochemistry," commented David L. Call, Dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

"His research efforts in the regulation of nutrient utilization span the continuum from basic to applied," Call noted. "The resulting technology, unparalleled in the annals of animal research, portends great benefits for the animal industries of the United States and the world."

Edgar says farmers hold key to their future

HERSHEY – Congressman Bob Edgar of Delaware County delivered the closing address to the delegates of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union's 14th Annual Convention.

Addressing the Convention theme, "Your Future is Now!," Edgar reminded the delegates that where past generations have only speculated as to the future, "ours is the first generation to be able to vote on it," he said. "We are also the first generation to be able to destroy ourselves and hence, our future."

Edgar discussed what he felt were the basic problems facing family farmers, among them: an unfair tax system, high dollar values, unfair trade practices, threatened cuts in Soil Conservation Service funding, and a national policy concentrating on large corporate farming operations as opposed to family farmers.

The congressman stressed the need to face these problems before the situation gets any further out-of-hand. "We cannot hide our heads in the sand, or the sand will soon be blowing down the streets of rural America," he said.

Earlier, Auditor General Don Bailey addressed what he felt was the proper role for government in agriculture.

"Government cannot walk away from its responsibility to rural America," he said. Bailey cited several areas in which he felt the federal government had a legitimate part to play in agriculture, including: the Rural Electric Administration, farm income improvement through a long-term plan favoring family farms, development of foreign markets, education, and transportation. "It's time we realize that what's good for rural America is good for the United States of America," he said.

Charles E. Wismer, Jr., Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, spoke of the need for farmers to work together for the benefit of all.

He cited legal representation of farmers caught up in the Scheps bankruptcy, the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) effort, the confirmation of Dr. Richard Grubb as Secretary of Agriculture, and Farm Bill recommendations arising from the Northeast Farm Coalition as examples of the State Grange and the Farmers Union working together on common goals.

"Of course, we won't know our successes for sure until the Farm Bill is finished," Wismer said. "But who knows where we'd be if the Northeast Coalition hadn't met to develop a program beneficial to family farmers."

The farm leader also discussed upcoming legislative priorities which might serve as a basis for future cooperative efforts. Among them were such topics as: unisex insurance rates, animal health, animal rights, clear title legislation and the farm bill or some long-term policy which would improve farm income.

"We have a crisis situation in many parts of the country," Wismer said. "We must work together wherever we can."

Meanwhile, delegates to the convention adopted the general farm organization's policy guidelines for the coming year.

"We have always prided ourselves on being a grass roots organization," said PFU Executive Director Chester L. Reed. "Our daily operations are based on policy guidelines submitted from our county organizations and adopted by our elected delegates."

The delegates passed resolutions recommending such things as:

* farmer-paid diversion programs when supply exceeds demand.
* defeat of mandatory hog check-offs.
* greater research into the long-term effects of bovine growth hormones before the F.D.A. places such products on the market.
* greater funding for agricultural inspectors at commodity distribution points.
* tax reform to eliminate tax-loss farming.
* requiring all juggers to handle their own surplus milk, without selling it to another Class I dairy.
* enforcement of noxious weed laws at township, county, and state levels.
* support of legislation calling for the purchase of agricultural development rights.
* Game Commission recognition of the coyote kill problem and an indemnity program.
* putting government-owned land that is leased for animal/crop production into conservation when surpluses exist.

The delegates also elected David Stetler to the office of President and Allen Deiter to the office of Vice President.

Stetler, a resident of Juniata County, had served the farm organization as President of the Perry/Juniata County chapter and as Chairman of the statewide Legislative Committee. He is also the PFU representative on the PA Dairy Promotion Board.

"This is a challenging time for agricultural policy leaders," Stetler said. "We must all cooperate--organization with organization and farmer with farmer. As President, I will continue to lead Farmers Union in the spirit of cooperation shown by past President Jim Brown."

Deiter, a resident of Northumberland County, was Northumberland County Farmers Union Vice President and a member of the Conservation and Fertilizer, Education and Youth, Legislative and Policy Committees prior to assuming statewide office.

"Farmers Union has been constantly moving and growing," Deiter said, "and we'll keep moving to meet the needs of family farmers in Pennsylvania."

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union's Board of Directors, at a Convention, met to select an Executive Board and National Farmers Union convention delegates.

The five-member Executive Board will include: Irk McConnell of Washington County, Behney Anspach of Bedford County, Naomi Spahr of Lancaster County, Gerald Seyler of Clinton County, and Verus Shaner of Lycoming County.

PFU's Executive Director, Chester L. Reed, commented "I am certain that this Executive Board will continue to guide Farmers Union with the same strong leadership it has shown in the past."

The Board of Directors also elected Irk McConnell to be its National Farmers Union convention delegate. Earlier in the day, PFU state convention delegates had elected Fran Goodlander of York County to attend the NFU convention as representative of the PFU membership. Harold Wolfe of Centre County will serve as alternate delegate to the National convention, which will be held in Spokane, Washington in March 1986.

Franklin plans Farm-City event

CHAMBERSBURG — Nov. 19 is the last day on which tickets for the Sixteenth Annual Franklin County Farm-City Week Banquet may be purchased, according to Dalton Paul, Franklin County and Pennsylvania Farm-City Week Chairman. Paul has chaired Franklin County Farm-City Week events for ten years, and is presently serving his second term as Pennsylvania's Farm-City Week chairman.

The County Banquet will be held Tuesday, Nov. 26 at Kauffman's Community Center, starting at 6:45 p.m. It will be preceeded by an "Ag Commodities Social Hour", starting at 6:00, and featuring four of Franklin County's Agricultural Commodity Queens.

"Fellowship" will be the main thrust of the event. The chicken and ham dinner will be followed by a short program of awards and recognitions, and interviews with the "Job Exchangees".

Tickets are available from County Extension Office, Vo-Tech School, ASCS Office, Chambersburg Chamber of Commerce, and Committee members Grace Rockwell, Miriam Burkholder, Betty Lou Gamble, Gladys Becker, Merle Baughman, Eugene Hege, Myron Young, Charles White, Betty Wingert, Dalton Paul, Carl Allison, Kelly Barr, Ken Doyle, Mrs. Andrew Fitz, Glenn Herrold, Paul Lehman, Edward L. Meyers, Francis Miller, Jean North, Fred Oaks, Mike Small, Earnie Tarner, and John Shearer.

producer. Coordinated by the Berks County Pomona Grange, this exchange is not yet complete.

On September 13, thirteen superintendents and seven guidance counselors visited farms. Farmers were scheduled to become superintendents at the respective schools for a half of day.

Two Public Relations in Agriculture Awards were presented at the conclusion of the program. Honoring of individuals or organizations who promote and conduct farm-city relations, the understanding of agriculture, and are involved with agriculture and other community organizations and successful in their own occupations, the award plaques were sponsored by the National Bank of Boyertown and toy tractors were presented by Shartlesville Farm Service.

Unable to attend this evening due to conflicting meetings, the two individuals honored were Thomas Hunt, general manager of radio station WXLY, Charleston, South Carolina, and Carolyn Rae Holleran, economic education specialist for the Berks County Intermediate Unit and coordinator of professional development.

Hunt was praised for his previous efforts in the county as manager of WHUM radio. He was a member of the Berks County Chamber of Commerce and served as chairman of the Agri-business committee. He spearheaded efforts in legislation related to agriculture and wrote and produced a promotional film for the county: Berks County Agriculture—People of the Land.

Carolyn Holleran is a member of many professional organizations, and serves extensively in the United Way and Women in Crises. She was influential in the success of the farmer-superintendent exchange, and extensively promotes and distributes materials for the Ag in the Classroom program.

Throughout the evening, the combined efforts at a better understanding between farm and city were practiced. Bandanas were given to each of the record crowd of 400 plus by Meridian BankCorp, Inc., and promotional gifts by county businesses were also given to those in attendance.

A cheese and honey tasting contest, along with a grain identification contest were held before the meal with prizes given to the farm and city winners.

Farmers sat with urbanites and the mood was congenial. The comment by Dave Kline, radio personality, after his farmer experience exchange was well served. "The way Berks County farm and city people work together...ultimately that will make us all successful." "I was really impressed."

DVC plans Ag Career Day

DOYLESTOWN – The Annual Agriculture Career Day is planned for Thursday, at Delaware Valley College.

The day-long program for high school students is organized and sponsored by the Delaware Valley Collegiate Chapter of Future Farmers of America, a nationwide organization of approximately 500,000 young men and women interested in making some form of agriculture a lifetime career.

Agriculture Career Day, which last year attracted over 400 students from high schools in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Maryland, provides an opportunity for students to see the full scope of what is meant by the term "agriculture in the 1980's"... and to learn more about the many and varied career opportunities in this multi-billion dollar field.

For most students the day will be an eye-opening experience as they are introduced to the many facets of an agricultural education, which today includes a study of economics, management, computer-science and marketing along with traditional agricultural sciences.

A cooperative effort of Delaware Valley College faculty, students and members of the College's FFA Chapter Career Day will involve some 200 members of the college community.

After an opening program in the student center, the high school students participating in the day will divide into small groups for an in-depth exploration of two career areas in which they have a particular interest. Groups will meet with Delaware Valley College students and faculty members in the settings in which these subjects are taught, including the many hands-on working areas on the campus, such as the extensive greenhouse, barns, dairy barns and horticulture buildings.

USDA announces college aid

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture this month will begin awarding $2 million in strengthening grants to 18 land-grant colleges and universities, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said.

The grants will help the educational institutions improve faculty and the quality of instruction, and to recruit and retain minority students in agriculture and food sciences fields.

Block said the awards, "signify USDA's continuing commitment to strengthen the institutional networks and capabilities of these institutions to sustain and influence the development of agricultural expertise, which is so basic and vital to the well-being of this country."

The grants are administered by Minority Research and Teaching Programs, a USDA unit servicing primarily the higher educational interests of the colleges and universities authorized under the Second Morrill Act of 1890.

Samuel J. Cornelius, director of USDA's Office of Advocacy and Enterprise, said the action is part of a comprehensive long-term plan to increase the involvement of the historically black schools in USDA programs.

"We will take a leadership role by investing in these institutions and assuring the development of agricultural mindpower in the land-grant community," Cornelius said.

The $2 million in grants, minus three percent administrative costs, will amount to $1,940,000. Each institution will receive $107,177.

Institutions receiving grants are: Alabama A&M University, Huntsville; Alcorn State University, Lorman, Miss.; University of Arkansas, Pine Bluff; Delaware State College, Dover; Florida A&M University, Tallahassee; Fort Valley State College, Ga.; Kentuck State University, Frankfort; Southern University, Baton Rouge, La.; the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore, Princess Anne; Lincoln Univeristy, Jefferson City, Mo.; North Carolina A&T State University, Greensboro; Tuskegee Institute, Ala.; Langston University, Okla.; South Carolina State College, Orangeburg; Tennessee State University, Nashville; Prairie View A&M University, Texas; University of the District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., and Virginia State University, Petersburg.

remembers asking himself after the farm accident that took one of his legs. "At a time like that, you make up your mind what you really want to do." "We borrowed ourselves up to the limit several times," he relates. But he adds, "We always made provisions for that rainy day."

Through Moyer's experience, he has formulated a program on farm safety and the handicapped farmer that he presents to groups whenever he is asked and able to make it. Because of his extensive work to help the handicapped farmer, to educate others on farm safety, and to work with equipment companies in modifying equipment to serve handicapped farmers, Moyer received the 1984 Outstanding Farm Safety Award from Penn State.

"You have to make changes to improve yourself. You can't stay back with the old system," states this progressive dairyman. The current president of the Berks County Extension Association, Moyer adds about the extension services, "you have access to all that information to help you become a better manager." Moyer and his son appreciate the many programs the association has to offer. "I attend all the extension programs I can," Ralph Moyer states. "They are a good source of education," he adds.

With an eye for efficiency and practical applications, other farmers as well as city folk will enjoy the tour of the Moyer farm. The cows are milked in a double six herringbone parlor. Because of the wide middle space and absence of any extra equipment, two milkers have comfortable space to operate. The parlor pit was built at floor level so that a minimum of climbing up and down steps is done and the concrete floors are heated so that cold feet even on the coldest winter days do not keep the milkers from comfortably completing their chores. A therma-Stor unit is also utilized in the milk house and heats all the hot water used in the operation. For additional ease in handling cows, a crowd gate is used in the holding pen and the floor is slanted upwards towards the parlor doors. Moyer tells us the cows are more apt to stand facing the parlor this way and then come in easier.

In the feeding part of the operation, a TMR system is used for three groups of cattle, the dry cows, the low group, and the high group. Three silos, store high moisture ground ear corn, haylage, and corn silage and are connected with a conveyor trough leading to a stationery mixer. Everything is weighed and measured according to the formulations for that particular group. All under one roof, the conveyors and feeding system "works out nice" according to the Moyers. "We use as much haylage as we can feed," Ralph Moyer states and adds that they are concerned with purchasing as little feed as possible. Cows are fed 75% haylage and 25% corn silage.

On this type of feeding program, the entirely homebred herd is averaging 16,918 milk, 3.9% fat, 654 fat, and 3.2% protein. Butterfat tests go up to 4.4% in the wintertime. Using 100% Sire Power bulls, Raqlph Moyer places emphasis on good feet, legs, and udders and uses only a small variety of bulls at a time.

The herd is housed in a free stall barn where locking headgates are utilized at herdcheck time. Freestalls are made of asphalt and bedded with "cured" sawdust.

In 1982 a new calf facility was added to the farm. "There's nothing nicer than hutches, "Moyer states, but adds that they needed someplace to handle more calves more efficiently instead of carrying feed to many hutches. After a great deal of research and a trip to Penn State to look at a calf barn, the Moyer's came home and drew up plans for their own. Built inside the older barn, the calf barn consists of duct ventilation with fans, and individual pens to house calves up to two months old. After weaned they are moved to small group pens.

Where does he go from here? George Moyer says that he would like to slow down a bit. He adds, "Ralph's in charge of the cattle, I don't have to worry about that anymore." "It gives me more time to work on my land and crop management," the avid farmer states. Moyer is currently vice-chairman of the newly formed Berks County Crop Management Association.

"You got to manage from the top on down," he advises anyone who wants to succeed in farming today. As for the future of family farms such as his, Moyer concludes, "the only farms that are going to survive are the family farms."

Even little Alicia helps out with chores by assisting her mother Crystal, and grandmother, Pearl when they feed calves in the new calf facility.

Growing season comes to an end

LANCASTER – The arrival of the first killing frost on October 29 came at a time when the growing season was well along but not officially finished, says Lancaster Extension Agent Glenn Shirk. It requires a real crispy and frosty morning to provide the setting for ending the life cycle of annual plants.

Only a few tender ones can escape the white crystals if protected by their location or having had the helping hand from someone who defied Jack Frost by covering them.

Almost each year the growing season comes to a finish at about this time. Last year the date came on November 3. This time around, the season also stretched some extra days.

This year should be remembered as a good year. Field crops, gardens and orchards by and large were well above average in their productivity. To be sure, the season had some ups and downs. For the most part the end results were satisfying to many–making the finale of frost easier to take.

Inter-State plans annual meeting

SOUTHAMPTON — "Shaping the Future" is the theme of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative's 68th annual meeting to be held Nov. 21 and 22 at the Host Farm Resort Hotel, Lancaster.

The two-day event gets underway Thursday morning at 9:45 a.m. with a meeting of Inter-State's officers and delegates. During this session, the cooperative's 500 delegates, alternates and guests will hear reports from officers and staff members of Inter-State and its wholly owned subsidiaries, Holly Milk Cooperative and QC Inc.

During the afternoon session, Secretary and General manager Paul E. Hand wil present his report to the delegate body. A presentation by Joseph Westwater, chief executive officer, of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, and a question and answer period will follow.

Highlighting the annual banquet Thursday night will be guest speaker the Honorable E. (Kika) de la Garza, chairman of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee. A member of the House Ag Committee since 1964, de la Garza, D-Texas, was elected chairman in January 1981.

Toastmaster for the banquet will be Enos B. Heisey, manager, Public Agriculture Relations, Agway Inc. Entertainment will be provided by the nine-member musical group "Celebration."

Friday morning's session will begin at 7 a.m. with the Young Cooperators Breakfast program and an address by guest speaker Pat Williams, general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers basketball team. During the program, president Robert B. McSparran will present both the 1985 Outstanding Young Cooperator Award and the 1985 Agricultural Communicator Award.

The general session follows at 9 a.m. and will include action on the annual meeting resolutions, which will be presented before the entire delegate body.

A separate ladies program will run concurrently with the delegate sessions. On Thursday, a choice of either a shopping trip to Reading or a tour of Longwood Gardens will be available. Friday's program will feature a presentation by Joseph Westwater, National Dairy Board CEO, and promotional skits by the state dairy princesses.

Thornburgh to open PFA meeting

HERSHEY — Governor Richard Thornburgh will be present to welcome the nearly 400 farmers to the 35th Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) taking place Nov. 18-19-20 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Hershey.

Governor Thornburgh will greet the convention participants during the Opening Luncheon at noon, Nov. 18.

A total of 172 Voting Delegates from PFA's 54 county farmers' associations will set policies on farm issues and elect leaders for the coming year. Delegates will deliberate on 117 recommendations forwarded by PFA's State Policy Development Committee. Elections will take place for the office of PFA Vice President and for eight of PFA's 16-member Board of Directors.

PFA's Annual Report will be presented to several hundred farm leaders, including Voting Delegates, by PFA President Keith Eckel of Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County. Also during the Annual Meeting, PFA will present its Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award.

PFA's Market Outlook Conference will take place during the Annual Meeting. Marketing experts will discuss the outlooks for dairy, livestock, fruits and vegetables, grain and poultry commodities and farm credit. Marketing seminars will also be conducted on irradiation food processing, cooperative owned and operated processing plants, futures marketing and PROFITS — PFA's new market research and development program. Information conferences on the impact of federal tax reform on agriculture and a dairy herd health and nutrition program are also scheduled.

Special conferences for 'farm women attending the Annual Meeting will focus on "Women in Current Events," "How Healthy Are We Agriculturalists?", and "The Sandwich Generation". PFA's marketing cooperative, PACMA, will also conduct its annual meeting during the three-day event.

PFA will also honor five young farm couples who have demonstrated outstanding agricultural skills and leadership capabilities before reaching age 30.

PFA will present the five with Outstanding Young Farm Couple awards Tuesday.

The Outstanding Young Farm Couples are:

Robert and Cynthia Bachman of Washington Boro, Lancaster County, market 4,200 head of hogs, 175 to 200 head of beef cattle and 42 acres of tobacco on a 200-acre farm. The Bachmans are active in Agriculture in The Classroom projects.

Dave and Cheryl Reinecker of York Springs, Adams County, market 1,000 head of hogs, 120 head of beef cattle, and raise corn and soybeans on a 345-acre farm with Dave's father. Dave is a member of the Adams County Farmers' Association Board of Directors and is a charter member of the Penn-Mar Cooperative of pork producers.

Mark and Martha Miller of Boswell, Somerset County, operate a 466-acre dairy farm, milking 85 head of registered and grade Holsteins for a 19,100 lbs. production average. Mark chairs Somerset County Farmers' Association's Farm Management Services committee.

David and Ellen Moser of Milton, Northumberland County, market 400 head of hogs and 25-50 head of beef cattle on a 400-acre farm. They also rate 320 acres of corn and 35 acres of hay. David is the new county president of the Northumberland County Farmers' Association.

Jeff and Roberta McConnell of Volant, Lawrence County, operate a 400-acre dairy and hog farrowing farm. They milk 70 head of registered Holsteins for a 18,200 lbs. production average and wean a yearly average of 20 pigs per sow from 25 sows. The McConnells have served on PFA's Young Farmer and Rancher Committee and the American Farm Bureau Young Farmer and Rancher Advisory Committee.

PFA will select one of these five young farm couples to compete for national honors at American Farm Bureau's annual meeting, Jan. 12-16 in Atlanta, GA.

AFBF says textile duties would hurt farmers

PARK RIDGE, IL. — If the United States approves strict textile import legislation, American farmers would suffer major repercussions, warned the American Farm Bureau Federation. Robert Delano, AFBF president has urged the U.S. Senate not to pass restrictive legislation. Instead the farm leader wants President Reagan to resolve the problem through stronger import limits under the Multi-Fiber Arrangement (MFA).

In 1984 the top five textile exporters to the U.S. bought more than $10 billion worth of American farm products. If the Senate approves a bill similar to the measure already passed by the House of Representatives, many textile exporting nations would face 30 percent or more reductions in what they could ship to the U.S.

We recognize that textile imports have grown rapidly in recent years despite the substantial import protection the industry has received to date," said Delano. "We support the use of remedies available under existing statues to respond to domestic problems caused by imports." The farm leader wants the Reagan Administration to negotiate the textile problem under the MFA rules.

The Multi-Fiber Arrangement is an agreement in which U.S. and 40 other countries negotiate the rules for textile and apparel trade. Preliminary consultations are beginning this fall on an extension of MFA.

Order 4 announced Oct. milk price

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced an October 1985 base milk price of $12.62 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.19. The weighted average October price was $12.55 and the butterfat differential for the month was 16.3 cents. The base milk price was up seven cents from September but was $1.39 below last October. The weighted average price was up six cents from September and was $1.49 below last October.

Shine said that the October volume of producer milk pooled under the order, 531.8 million pounds, was up nearly 53.8 million pounds or 11.3 percent from last October. The average daily delivery per producer of 2,561 pounds in October was up 261 pounds or 11.3 percent from a year earlier.

A total of 6,698 producers supplied Order 4 pool handlers during the month, five fewer than last October. Class I producer milk totaled 257 million pounds and accounted for 48.33 percent of total producer milk receipts in October.

The October 1984 Class I utilization was 53.78 percent. The volume of Class I producer milk was virtually unchanged from a year ago. The volume of Class II milk was up 53.8 million pounds or 24.4 percent from a year earlier. Base milk accounted for 88.49 percent of totaled October producer milk deliveries, down significantly from 94.98 percent last October. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.70 percent in October, up slightly from a year ago.

Order 4 pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 214.6 million pounds during October, an increase of 0.6 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Union City dairies excel in Erie DHIA

ERIE — Two Union City dairies produced the top milk and fat records in Erie County for the 1985 DHIA testing year ending Sept. 30.

Curtis Haven Farms had the high fat record of 774 pounds on 48 cows. Topping the county's milk production records was Frank Pollock Jr. with an average of 20,723 pounds milk on 28 cows.

Other leaders in fat production were: Pollock, 752 pounds; Paul and Matt Senita, Wattsburg, 741 pounds; David Brumagin, Union City, 707 pounds; and Henry and Cyndy Cass, Wattsburg, 704 pounds.

In milk production, ten Erie County herds exceeded 19,000 pound records, including: Curtis Haven Farms, 19,483 pounds; Paul and Matt Senita, 19,414 pounds; David Brumagin, 19,355 pounds; Henry and Cyndy Cass, 19,268 pounds; Calvin Henry, Wattsburg, 19,129 pounds; Ralph Gilkinson, Wattsburg, 19,163 pounds; Woods Dairy, Edinboro, 19,127 pounds; Robert G. Henry, Union City, 19,316 pounds; How Rich Farms, Albion, 19,632 pounds.

The Erie County DHIA finished its 58th year on Sept. 30 with an average of 6,374 cows. The county herd average stood at 15,410 pounds milk and 556 of fat.

Kelly leads Blair County DHIA

HOLLIDAYSBURG — Thomas W. Kelly topped the Blair County DHIA for the 1985 testing year with a herd production record of 21,348 pounds milk and 759 pounds fat.

From his herd of 70 cows Kelly also had some outstanding individuals that produced record pounds of milk, butterfat and protein.

Three Blair County herds had milk production records over 20,000 pounds for the DHIA year ending Sept. 30. In addition to Kelly were Clover Will Farms, with a 20,840 pound herd average, and Fidelity Holsteins, with a 20,618 pound production record.

Farms with fat records over 700 pounds included: Kelly, Clover Will Farms, Fidelity Holsteins, Fred Bechtel, Blackcrest Farms, Dale W. Hoover, Marcove Farm, Charles and Mike Hoover and Richard R. Fox and Sons.

Robert Kensinger had the greatest butterfat production increase for the year. The fat average on his 55-cow herd jumped 112 pounds.

The five low somatic cell count herds were: Clover Will Farms, Charles and Mike Hoover, Dale W. Hoover, Jayray Farms, and Over Lane Farms.

County-wide the Blair County DHIA herds increased milk production per cow by 560 pounds and fat production by 7 pounds. The 6,533 cows on test in the county produced an average of 16,509 pounds milk and 604 of fat in 1985, according to the 57th annual DHIA summary.

Lehigh Valley reports production increase

LANSDALE — Lehigh Valley Farmers, Lansdale-based dairy cooperative, has collected a record 635 million pounds of milk from its members during the first eight months of the year, up 7% from a year ago.

All the milk, valued at $82 million, was shipped to Atlantic Processing, Inc., the dairy federation of which Lehigh Valley Farmers is the largest member, accounting for two third's of API's annual milk receipts.

The production and sales increases are being announced in a series of 10 district dinner meetings held throughout the LVF milkshed by President Alpheus L. Ruth and General Manager William Stout.

"We're having another banner year," Mr. Ruth said. "Even though we have fewer members because of sell-outs and farm consolidations, our pounds per day per producer are up an average of 11%. And it's especially gratifying that our bonuses and premiums are up 33%. We paid out more than $630 thousand so far this year to dairymen who earn these bonuses by producing milk of superior quality."

The officials reviewed the long-term guaranteed contract with Atlantic Processing, Inc. and the growing equity that LVF members have in API. This amount is currently $9.5 million.

General Manager Stout reported on activities of Growth Committees, which have been organized to attract new members to the cooperative. He pointed out that, despite the national milk surplus, Lehigh wants more milk locally to meet API's growing needs. This includes supplying the Beatrice Foods cheese plant, adjacent to API's Allentown headquarters.

Other subjects reviewed at the meeting were contract hauling of milk and advertising and promotion programs.

Elections of district officers were held at each meeting.

Use of animals in research - a necessary evil?

ITHACA, NY – Progress in biomedical research would not be possible without the aid of laboratory animals, most scientists in the field contend.

But that view is not shared by animal rights activists who claim that the use of animals in laboratory experiments is inhumane and unnecessary, and should be stopped.

"We have never found a case – in consultation with members of the organization who are medical doctors and other scientists – in which the use of animals was imperative," says Ingrid Newkirk, national director of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

"There are invariably a vast array of alternative methods from which to choose," she claims.

Alternatives are not always available, though, says Dr. Isadore Rosenfeld, chairman of the Foundation for Biomedical Research and a professor of medicine at the New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center.

"Of course, animals should not be used in research that can be conducted in the test tube or with the computer," Rosenfeld says. "But there are many important procedures that mandate the use of animals and for which there is no known substitute."

"Most surgical procedures, including work with prosthetic devices, require the use of animals for development – as a 'dry run' – prior to human application," he says.

Newkirk, the co-founder of the Washington, DC-based animal rights organization, faults not only the use of laboratory animals but the entire system of funding medical care, education, and research in the United States. She blames "the old boys' network" of established scientists for perpetuating the use of animals in research.

But animal research has made significant contributions to medical science, says Rosenfeld, a cardiologist.

The coronary by-pass operation "that is improving the quality of life of millions of people throughout the world" is one procedure that could not have been perfected without experimentation in animals, he says.

"It is not a matter of statistics; it is a matter of priorities," Rosenfeld stresses. "I plead quilty to placing human life above all forms of animal life, even though I'm an animal lover."

Of the 75 Nobel Prizes in physiology or medicine awarded between 1901 and 1984, 55 were for work involving animals. (The others conducted their prize-winning research solely with humans, insects, microorganisms, or plants.)

Among the Nobel laureates who have been affiliated with Cornell, Peter Medawar shared the 1960 prize for studies of acquired immunological tolerance after using cattle, mice, sheep, and chickens in his research. Robert Holley, one of three researchers credited in 1968 with the interpretation of the genetic code and its function in protein synthesis, used rats and yeast as his experimental organisms.

Modern medicine's pharmaceutical cabinet would be practically empty without treatments developed in animals, says Robert Phemister, Dean of the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell. He points to the discover of vaccines for smallpox, yellow fever, typhus, typhoid, rabies, and anthrax as major accomplishments.

Treatments for diphtheria, leprosy, malaria, hypertension, Parkinson's disease, coronary artery disease, tuberculosis, and tetanus all required animals for their discovery, development, or testing. So did vitamins, penicillin, synthetic penicillin cortisone, and most antibacterial agents.

At Cornell, where vaccines for canine distemper and hepatitis were developed, more recent work on a vaccine for canine parvovirus has saved the lives of countless dogs in this country and around the world. The canine parvovirus vaccine studies at Cornell took the lives of fewer than two dozen dogs.

Treatment for feline leukemia was also developed at Cornell, and continuing research here on that disease is providing insights into the immunosuppressive effects of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) and may lead to a treatment for that virus-caused disease.

Most of the 44,000 animals used in research at Cornell's Ithaca facilities spend their days doing what comes naturally – laying eggs, giving milk, or making babies.

Fewer than 1 percent of Cornell's research animals experience pain or stress from life-threatening diseases they contract in biomedical studies.

"At least 70 percent of the animals maintained at Cornell for scientific study are under observation for things they normally do," says Dr. Fred W. Quimby, a veterinarian and director of the Center for Research Animal Resources at Cornell.

For example, thousands of chickens are studied in the Department of Poultry and Avian Sciences to observe growth rate and egg production. In the Department of Animal Science, cattle, sheep, and swine are studied for milk production, weight gain, and fertility.

In nutritional studies, animals' diets are altered through the addition of potentially beneficial foods, rather than focusing on the denial of needed nutrients, according to Quimby, a nationally recognized expert in the care and use of laboratory animals.

Many behavorial studies are conducted in the wild without capturing animals at all. Other animals are observed in facilities where every attempt is made to reproduce their native habitat. They include studies of monk parakeets in observation laboratories by scientists in Cornell's Section of Neurobiology and Behavior. Considered pests and once eradicated by state conservation authorities, the giant parakeets are studied for behavioral and reproductive traits. Findings may help South America agricultural officials control the birds, a serious threat to crops there.

In the Department of Psychology, a colony of canaries is maintained to study the hormonal and neural factors responsible for the learning of song. This research may lead to a better understanding of the development of language in young animals, including human infants.

Other animals temporarily lend a paw or claw to medical science on the way to becoming well. Samples of blood, drawn for other routine tests from dogs, are used–with the dog owners' consent–in ongoing studies into the cause of rheumatoid arthritis and systemic lupus erythematosus.

Injured wild birds lucky enough to reach the Avian Clinic at the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell are "teaching" researchers and students improved surgical techniques. Before their return to the wild, the birds are treated at the Avian Clinic and rehabilitated at the Avian Rehabilitation Center in Cornell's Laboratory of Ornithology. Researchers there are developing new techniques for saving endangered species such as bald eagles and peregrine falcons.

for cell and tissue culture studies live a normal life until they are sacrificed, in a humane manner, Quimby emphasizes. Those that provide blood, as a source of antibodies, for example, feel the momentary pain of a needle, as do those that are anesthetized before surgery.

"A very small proportion – less than 1 percent – undoubtedly do experience pain and stress in the course of disease studies," Quimby says. As tumor cells develop into cancers, pain that cannot be entirely alleviated is inevitable.

Among animals deliberately given infectious diseases are woodchucks in a College of Veterinary Medicine study. The woodchucks, an animal model for hepatitis-B in humans, are helping medical researchers predict when liver cancer is likely to occur.

All laboratory animals used at Cornell are bred and raised specifically for that purpose, Quimby emphasizes. They are not bought from "pounds," and certainly are not dog-napped, cat-napped, or obtained by any other illegal means, he says.

Some laboratory animals are purchased from licensed, commercial suppliers, but because much of the research conducted at Cornell requires pathogen-free animals – those that are absolutely free of disease-causing agents – many are bred in university facilities, where genetic background can be determined and antiseptic conditions can be guaranteed. Almost all dogs, cats, pigs, sheep, goats, cattle, hamsters, horses, chickens, and quail studied at Cornell are bred here, as are many rabbits and mice.

Chickens make up a large proportion of the animal population on Cornell's Ithaca campus, with some 11,000 in 1984. That same year, about 4,000 mice and 2,000 cattle were used in scientific research.

The largest category, however, is fish – at least 15,000 – primarily brook trout. Most of the trout are released into Adirondack Mountain lakes in an ongoing study of water quality.

NIH grant to Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. – Cornell University has been awarded one of 23 grants from the National Institutes of Health to improve facilities for animal research and related programs.

The grant of $748,299 to Cornell is part of an $8.5 million allocation by the Animal Resources Program of the Division of Research Resources at NIH, according to John E. Holman, director of the NIH Laboratory Animal Sciences Program.

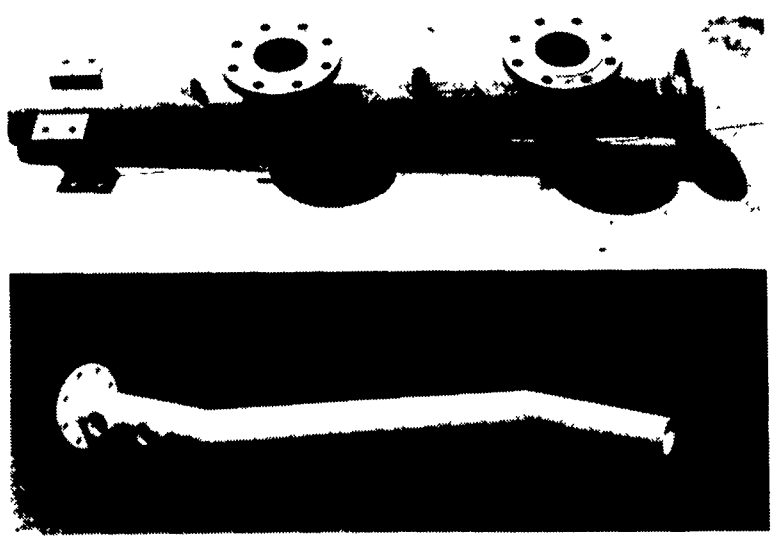
Cornell, which already meets federal and state regulations for animal care, is engaged in a voluntary program for accreditation by the American Association for the Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care. The New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell and the New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center are already accredited, and the grant from NIH could help Cornell receive accreditation for the remainder of its animal research facilities, officials say.

Since 1980, the university has spent more than $20 million on construction and renovation of animal research facilities. The NIH grant will be used as part of a $1.5 million program to upgrade Cornell's animal care facilities. Other funds will be provided by New York State and various university offices.

Work will include improvements in facilities for domestic livestock and laboratory research animals in several locations at the university. These include various central campus buildings, Cornell farms, and the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, according to Richard G. Warner, professor of animal science and principal investigator for the project.

NIH's Holman said the grants are intended to help institutions upgrade their animal research facilities and improve centralized programs in animal care. The NIH evaluation of the Cornell proposal noted "the ongoing laboratory animal program is comprehensive and well-documented. No specific weaknesses are noted."

Pump manifolds marketed



Lake Company of Bakersfield, CA announces the availability of custom pump manifolds for agricultural, construction or commercial applications. Manufactured in 2,3,4,5,6,8,10 and 12" diameters, the manifolds are constructed of schedule 40 black iron pipe and are available in either epoxy, black or galvanized.

These manifolds reduce the expense of combining output from numerous pumps into a common line.

Ranck to head Lanco farmers

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Farmers' Association has elected a new president to succeed outgoing president Earl Newcomer.

Donald Ranck, a dairyman from Paradise, was elected president. Former secretary Gordon Hoover, a dairyman from White Horse, was elected as vice president. Treasurer is Esther Stoltzfus, a dairywoman from Gap, and Joan Yoder, Narvon, is secretary.

Ranck's cabinet consists of four directors, each having a specific group of committees and chairmen in the organization. Ginny Ranck, Paradise, is member relations director. Her responsibilities are membership, advisory councils, Young Farmers & Ranchers, education, information, and womens committees.

Director of Governmental Relations is James Hess, Quarryville. His committees are policay development, PA. House, PA. Senate, National Legislatuve, local affairs, and political education.

Dennis Weaver, Lititz, is Member Services director. His committees are Farm Management Service, Insurance, and Safemark.

Paul Hartz, Morgantown. is director of PROFITS which consists of marketing, dairy, livestock, and poultry committees.

In other action, Ranck, Newcomer, Hess, Hartz and James G. Kreider, RD 4, Quarryville, will be the official delegates to the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Annual Meeting this week in Hershey.

Highlights will include programs on tax reform, food irradiation, dairy herd health & nutrition seminar, guest speakers, and election of state officers. The purpose of the statewide meeting is to adopt policy positions. Proposed policies and changes range from seat belt legislation proposals to tax reform to water problems to studying Amtrak's financial standing for subsidization. As businessmen and farmers, the statewide membership is concerned with more than just how deep to plow his field.

Also attending from this county are Gordon Hoover, Gap; Earl Martin, Ephrata; Shirley Garner, Mount Joy; Ruby Bollinger, Manheim; Dennis Weaver, Lititz; and Virginia Hess, Quarryville.

Meat output up

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's red meat production, dressed weight basis, during September totaled 75.0 million pounds, up five percent from September 1984, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Beef slaughter, at 92.7 million pounds liveweight, was up five percent from September 1984. Total head slaughtered was 80,600, up two percent, and liveweight averaged 1,151 pounds, an increase of 36 pounds. Veal slaughter was 4.6 million pounds liveweight, 20 percent above last year. Calf slaughter of 27,900 head was up 21 percent. The average liveweight increased one pound to 165 pounds.

Hog slaughter, atg 29.1 pounds liveweight, was down eight percent from a year earlier. Total head slaughtered was 126,200, down five percent; average liveweight decreased eight pounds to 230 pounds. Lamb and mutton slaughter was 1.1 million pounds liveweight, down 17 percent. The number slaughtered was 9,900, down 24 percent. However, the average liveweight increased 10 pounds to 109 pounds.

U.S. commercial red meat production in September totaled 3.25 billion pounds, up five percent from September 1984. Comparing September 1985 with September 1984, beef production at 1.99 billion pounds was up four percent. Cattle kill at 3.0 million was down one percent, while the average liveweight increased 43 pounds to 1,109. Veal production, at 42 million pounds, was up eight percent from a year ago. Calf slaughter at 292,000 head was up nine percent, and average liveweight increased two pounds to 243.

Pork production totaled 1.20 million pounds, up five percent. Hog kill totaled 6.94 million head, up four percent, and average liveweight was unchanged at 242 pounds. Lamb and muttom production, at 28 million pounds, was down three percent. slaughter totaled 497 thousand head, down nine percent, but liveweight averaged 112 pounds. five pounds heavier than a year earlier.

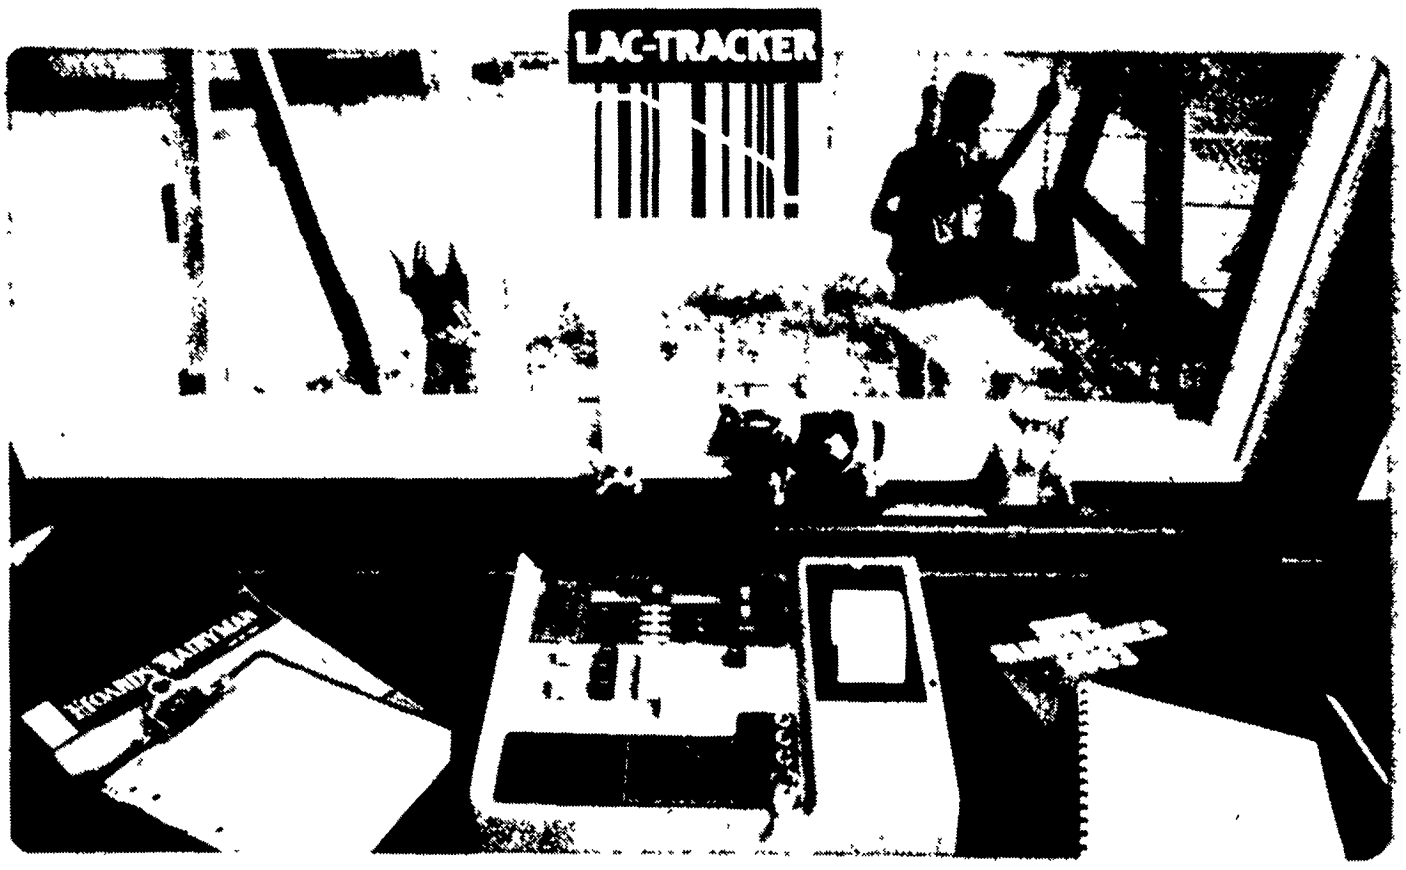
COMPUTE THE BENEFITS WITH A LAC-TRACKER®!

COMPUTER FEEDER TOUR

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20



Meeting Place: Highway Shed at the Rheems Exit of Rt. 283 10:30 A.M.
Lunch Provided

Lester M. Hawthorne & Sons Doug & Phil, Elizabethtown - Since installation of their Lac-Tracker in 1984, they have experienced excellent results with feed savings and increased milk production. H.M. ear corn is fed through six feed stations. Haylage and corn silage are fed on the bunk to the 120 milking cows. All grain is fed through the computer system on this farm.

Lytle Farms, Inc., Middletown, PA - The Lac-Tracker system used by these 100 registered Holstein cattle is one of Penn Jersey's newest installations. H.M. shelled corn and supplement are fed through the four-station system. A large poly bin with an agitator delivers feed to the stations. T.M.R. with a small amount of H.M. shelled corn is fed on the bunk; the balance of H.M. corn and supplement are fed through the computer system.

Mark L. Copenhaver, Lebanon, PA - The Lac-Tracker was installed this past July. T.M.R. is fed on the bunk to 85 cows. Dry ground ear corn and supplement are fed with the computer through automatic bin switches and drop tubes. Four feed stations and a dry cow station are used to deliver feed to this excellent herd. A large poly bin with an agitator delivers corn to the stations.

Dollar-for-dollar, your family deserves LAC-TRACKER® computer dairy feeding over any other system!

LAC-TRACKER® lets the knowledgeable dairy farmer feed according to production and cut costs! When the dairy family invests in LAC-TRACKER®, they invest in:
Feed-savings! Each cow receives the exact amount of feed based on milk production and lactation curves. Daily automatic challenge feeding is followed by decreased feed during declined lactation curve.
Increased milk production! Each cow can achieve maximum potential during the early days of lactation. More milk days per cow!
Reduced feeding labor! Computer grouping of individual cows allows for efficient operation of the entire dairy.
Improved herd health! Daily cow documentation and three-level display of off-feed status.

Dairy farm wife takes an active role in public education as school director

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

GAP — "They're our future. What's more important than young people?" These words are Svea Hoover's as she discusses her views on the necessity of providing a good education to young people. Nov. 17 through 23 marks the celebration of American Education Week, a recognition of the important role education plays in a society.

She adds, "Everyone should support our schools. Education is the best bargain in the world."

Svea is the wife of Raymond M. Hoover, R1, Gap, and spent 25 years helping on the dairy farm, milking, taking care of calves and helping with all the other chores. When son Gordon graduated from college and returned home to farm, she gave up her chores, and has since taken on the demanding position of school director in the Pequea Valley School District.

She can still be counted on to help out with the cows when necessary, but she is no longer needed on a regular basis. She continues to do the bookwork for the farming partnership for the 85-head dairy herd.

Being a school director was a new direction for Svea, but she said she enjoys being involved in worthwhile work. "I don't like busywork, but I feel there is nothing more worthwhile and I am pleased they asked me."

She became a member of the Board by appointment when a member retired. That was six years ago, and since then she has run for election three times - and won. It's a little unusual to have to run three times in six years for a position which is normally a four-year term, but Svea ran first when the position she was filling expired. Then she drew a two-year term and just last week was elected to a full four-year term. Having to stand for election is something she doesn't enjoy, by Svea recognizes the necessity of it.

Svea says candidly that there are many people capable of doing the job if they have the desire. "It's a position a lot of people could do well if they truly wanted to, but you have to want to do it." Despite the fact that her three children have already graduated from school, Svea remains convinced about the benefits of a good education, and therefore is willing to give the necessary time. In addition to Gordon, the Hoovers have two married daughters, Lisa High, Intercourse, and Audrey Smiley, now in Houston, Texas.

School directors, of course, do not receive pay for the countless hours they spend, and for the most part they hear only the negative. During this interview, Svea received a positive report on a problem she had been working with, and she said it is just that sort of thing which makes the job really worthwhile.

The amount of time the job consumes varies, but Svea says, "It is almost a full time job." Being a homemaker she frequently goes to school during the day to attend meetings and participate in other activities because she is more available than some board members.

"The rewarding part of the job is seeing the scholars achieve, and feel good about themselves." She identifies "scholars" as being all kinds of students who achieve in different areas. "The child is the whole reason we are there. We want them to have small achievements." The most difficult part of the position is student hearings involving drugs and other unacceptable behavior, Svea states.

She says it took her about two years to feel really comfortable in the position, although in that time she asked many questions. She said the state School Boards Association provides much helpful information, and there is sharing of information between schools so that they can learn about programs that work and problems that they all share.

Svea comments, "I try to get to some musicals and a few soccer games." She also attends several of the banquets, but adds that members try to divide activities up according to their particular interests, since it is difficult to get to every activity on the school calendar.

She's also proud of her attendance record, having missed just one work session during her tenure, and that was because of the birth of a grandson.

Recently elected to the position of board secretary, Svea said that she now receives a lot of information which she must disseminate to other board members. Actual minute taking is done by a recording secretary.

Parents expect the school to do more and more for the child, including babysitting, and providing for their physical and emotional needs. Svea comments, "The key to a good child still is the home." She has also observed that "farm children have the advantage, because they know what it's like to work. Students have to be (self) disciplined."

In her six years on the Board, Svea has observed some changes and improvements in the school district of 1,900 children. She says, "When I first went on the board we had 17 percent going on to higher education, and now we have 35 percent." She said they are also coordinating the curriculum from kindergarten through 12th grade and have weekly teacher's meetings so they can share information about their programs. The Write to Write program, designed to encourage creative writing in children, has also been incorporated into the curriculum. The printing of a district calendar has also been well received because families are more aware of activities within the school.

While Svea has no specific goals to achieve as a board member, she encourages input from parents. She said the schools should not be one-sided, but should be working together with parents and the community to accomplish the best education possible. "Communication between the district and the home can always be improved."

Pequea Valley School District has involved parents through advisory groups which work within each building. "It is nice imput," Svea comments. "Interested parents can contribute in a positive manner. I think it is wonderful."

Although she indicates that she had reservations about her ability to handle the job when first asked, it becomes quite clear that she has done her own homework well, and can speak articulately about education in general and her own school district in particular. She maintains that one big asset is her ability to see both sides of a problem.

Money is always a problem with school districts, and Svea says she cannot imagine that taxes will do anything but go up. As salaries and benefits increase, so must the tax revenues to meet those increases. Svea said, "You try to give the best salaries you possibly can, keep the buildings in good repair and keep taxes as low as you can." State mandated programs also often add a lot to the cost of certain programs and construction projects.

She comments, "It is often a no-win situation, but good management helps a lot. We have to do it all with taxes. A good business manager is worth his weight in gold."

The district itself has goals each year, and Svea said many of those need to be reinforced every year. Good discipline is one continuing goal, and the board tackles a different subject area each year.

Although there are horror stories about children not being able to read, Svea feels for the most part Lancaster County schools are doing their jobs. "We're very fortunate here. There are places in the United States where that is the case, and it's very scary. We have a lot to be thankful for in this area with the diversity in industry and agriculture."

Svea enjoys the interaction with the other board members, saying, "The board is filled with reasonable people who can compromise and can get along well, and are not terribly opinionated. The board works well together."

As the first woman on the board, Svea says she was welcomed by other board members who told her she was "bringing something they

Being a school director means Svea spends lots of time on the telephone.

Homestead Notes

"The key to a good child still is the home," says Svea.

Svea's own musical interests encourage her to attend many of Pequea Valley's musical activities.

couldn't. The men were wonderful." She has since been joined by one other woman.

Although heavily committed to the school at this stage of her life, Svea finds time for church work and other community activities. A member of Mt. Zion Methodist Church in Cambridge, Svea will be chairman of the administrative board and chairman of the board of ministries during the coming year.

Music is very important to her, and in addition to singing in the church choir, she enjoys playing the piano and the violin. Playing the violin is something she loves to do, but admits she doesn't do often.

She spends one day a week with her parents and has been helping her daughter with a new grandson.

Living on a farm, she has the requisite garden, and says, "I do my share of freezing and canning." She enjoys cooking and baking, and having her family visit for dinner.

A recent hobby for Svea and Raymond is playing golf, and she likes taking aerobic exercises twice a week. There is not much spare time. Indeed, as she contemplates her activities, Svea has a hard time explaining where her time goes, but says, "I am busy all the time."

Asked if her organizational skills and interest in the community are new, Svea responds. "What you are when you are young is what you are as you get older. I was a very involved young person." She also considers herself a well-rounded person, and enjoys the ability to contribute to the community in this way.

About her service as a school director, Svea says, "It is a learning, growing experience to be on the board. It is the most worthwhile thing I could do."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I sit down to write this morning my mind is in a helter-skelter condition. I can't decide whether to write about my day at the polls or when the voter turnout was so light that we had to drink coffee to keep alert, or about the cow that died on Sunday.

Sometimes it seems as though we are the sole support of our veterinarian. But, my grandmother always told us to remember that we were lucky if our trouble stayed at the barn.

Another subject on my mind is the vast degree of traveling that our children do in our jobs. I guess I'm just a worrier, but when a child travels on 10 different airplanes in one week, I do worry a bit even though I know it doesn't help. I suppose I'm telling myself that if I think something might happen then it won't happen.

Also my children move from one place to another quite often. First a shared apartment and then one of their own. First a rented house and then a house of their own. I'm sure it is all a progression of "onward and upward" but it keeps me busy noting new phone numbers and addresses.

And, I find it hard to believe that I buy over $100 worth of stamps for our personal use in less than a year. Although, I do admit that I like to write letters and receive them. Then again, it is probably a cheaper way to communicate than by phone. My children tell me their telephone bills are astronomical as they like to keep in touch with family and friends scattered all over the United States.

With winter on the way, we had to get the first of two $500 loads of coal. When we first lived in this house, $100 worth was enough for a whole year. Of course, then we only heated three rooms instead of twelve as we do now. Oh well, the eight ton will give me exercise this winter as I carry it to the furnace.

Farm Women Societies

Berks County Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met recently at the Ag Center with 22 members attending.

Joyce O'Brien showed a slide presentation of the Berks Heim County Home. The home is in the process of redecorating 166 resident's rooms with the Farm Women helping in this project.

The Farm Women are busy making Christmas stockings for the residents of Berks Heim.

All groups are reminded to have their recipes typed up for the the State cookbook.

The 1986 Spring Rally will be hosted by York County on May 28.

The 1986 State Convention will be held on Jan. 13 and 14 at Harrisburg.

The next County Board meeting will be on Jan. 6, 1986 at the Ag Center.

Lancaster Farm Women 19

Lancaster Society 19 and husbands and friends met recently at Kreider's restaurant for a Thanksgiving banquet. Romaine Sala provided musical entertainment.

Nut orders were turned in and nuts will be delivered after Nov. 19. The group will be taking orders for nuts to be delivered in December.

The next meeting will be Dec. 14 at the home of Martha Musser.

Bucks County plans 4-H awards night

DOYLESTOWN — "International Friends & Flavor," will be the theme for the 1985 Bucks County 4-H Awards program on Saturday, Nov. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at Doylestown Methodist Church.

Bucks County 4-H has participated in International exchange programs for twenty years. Displays from various countries will set up at the program.

"Young People of the World," an international folk dance group from Southampton, will provide entertainment.

A dessert buffet will offer a taste of international dessert recipes.

During the evening, 4-H members will be recognized for their participation in events throughout the year. The 4-H Clover Award will be presented to 4-H'ers based on their leadership skills, citizenship, and personal development.

Thirteen 4-H volunteer adult leaders will be recognized for a combined total of 90 years of volunteer service.

The 4-H Youth program is sponsored by the Bucks County Cooperative Extension Service. For more information, call 345-3283.

The public is invited to attend 4-H Awards Night. Doylestown Methodist Church is located along Route 313, Swamp Road, Doylestown.

Treat your family to homemade doughnuts

Are you tired of eating the same old cardboard-like cereal for breakfast? Even more exciting breakfast fare like bacon and eggs, pancakes or French toast loose their appeal after a while. But doughnuts — those melt-in-your mouth puffs of sweetness — always delight even the most finicky palate.

And while the local doughnut outlet may boast a host of "fresh baked" varieties, it just won't be able to compete with doughnuts you make yourself.

Whether you're a new or experienced doughnut maker the recipes below should pique your interest.

RAISED POTATO DOUGHNUTS

Mix in evening:
1 quart mashed potatoes
2 cakes yeast (put in ¾ cup warm water and ½ cup sugar)
2 tablespoons salt
1¾ quarts water

Mix well and put in warm (72°F.) place overnight. In the morning put these ingredients in a large bowl:
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk, scalded
1½ cups sugar
1 pint or 1 pound butter
9 pounds flour

Mix with mixer or knead until well blended. (Dough should be sticky). Let rise until double in size (about 1 hour), then roll and cut with doughnut cutter and let rise until double in size. Fry in deep fat until light brown on both sides.

DOUGHNUTS

1 heaping cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
Pinch of nutmeg
3½ cups flour
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon heavy cream or 2 teaspoons hot lard or shortening
2½ to 3 cups lard or shortening for frying

Mix the dry ingredients and add to the egg, milk, and cream or lard, using enough flour so the mixture will not soak. Knead well. The consistency should be like bread dough.

Roll out to about ⅓-inch thick, cut with a doughnut cutter and let sit for 5 minutes. Heat the frying lard or shortening to near smoking. The doughnuts should be fried quickly on each side so they will not soak up the fat. Drain on brown paper.

Note: if you like, roll the doughnuts in confectioner's sugar.

FASTNACHTS

1¼ cups milk
¼ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 small yeast cake
3 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
4½ to 5 cups sifted flour

Scald the milk. Add shortening and salt. Cool milk until it is lukewarm, then add crumbled yeast cake and stir. Gradually add 2⅔ cups sifted flour, beating batter thoroughly. Put in a warm place and allow to stand until full of bubbles. Mix sugar and nutmeg and combine with beaten eggs. Stir in to first mixture and add remaining flour.

Knead well, cover and let rise in a warm place for about 1 hour. Turn out lightly on floured board and roll ¾ inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter.

Cover with a thin cloth and let rise on board until top is springy to touch of finger. Drop into hot fat (365°F.) with the raised side down so the top side will rise while underside cooks. Drain on paper towels. Makes 3 dozen.

BANANA DOUGHNUTS

5 cups sifted enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs. well beaten
¾ cup mashed bananas
½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
1½ teaspoons vanilla
½ cup flour for rolling
Melted fat or oil

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and nutmeg

Beat shortening until creamy. Add sugar gradually and continue beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well.

Add combined bananas, milk and vanilla to creamed mixture and blend. Add flour to mixture and mix until smooth. Turn a small amount of dough onto a floured board. Knead very lightly. Roll out to 3/8-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2½-inch doughnut cutter.

Heat fat to 375°F. or until a 1-inch cube of bread will turn golden brown in about 40 seconds. Slip doughnuts into fat with spatula. Fry about 3 minutes or until golden brown, turning them frequently. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 3½ dozen. Sugar the doughnuts if desired.

Doughnuts make a great breakfast treat, especially when they're homemade!

FRENCH CRULLERS

¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup water
1 cup sifted enriched flour
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, salt, shortening and water in heavy saucepan and heat. When briskly boiling, add flour all at once, stirring vigorously with a wooden spoon. Beat until mixture forms a smooth ball whcih leaves sides of pan clean.

Place in a bowl. Beat in thoroughly one egg at a time then continue beating until mixture is smooth and shiny and breaks off when spoon is raised. Add vanilla. Chill.

Force through a pastry tube in the shape of rings onto strips of oiled waxed paper. Carefully turn the paper upsidedown so that the crullers will drop into deep hot fat. Fry at 380°F. until golden brown on all sides. Drain. Cool. Brush with confectioners' sugar icing. Makes 10 crullers.

BUTTERMILK DOUGHNUTS

3⅓ cups flour
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons shortening
2 eggs
¾ cup buttermilk

Heat fat or oil (3 to 4 inches) to 375°F. in deep fat fryer or kettle. Measure 1½ cups flour and the remaining ingredients into large mixer bowl. Blend ½ minute on low speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in remaining flour.

Turn dough onto well-floured cloth-covered board; roll around lightly to coat with flour. Gently roll dough 3/8 inch thick. Cut with floured doughnut cutter.

With wide spatula, slide doughnuts into hot fat. Turn doughnuts as they rise to surface. Fry 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown on both sides. Carefully remove from fat; do not prick the surface. Drain. Serve plain, sugared or frosted. Makes 2 dozen doughnuts.

OLD FASHIONED FASTNACHTS

3 medium potatoes - water to cover potatoes
2 cups flour
1 yeast cake
2 cups flour
2 cups lukewarm milk
4 beaten eggs
½ cup melted butter
1 cup sugar

Boil potatoes in enough water to cover. When soft, remove potatoes and mash. With potato water, scald flour, add mashed potatoes. When cool, add yeast cake dissolved in a little lukewarm water. Later mix flour with milk, making a batter that will drop easily from a spoon. Add first mixture and let rise overnight. In the morning add eggs, butter and sugar. Knead stiff enough to roll and let rise until dough has doubled in size. Roll, cut out and let rise again. When light, fry in hot fat. Makes about 10 dozen.

"A simple hot meal" is how Svea Hoover describes her Texas casserole. She found the recipe on a calendar and it intrigued her because she has a daughter who lives in Texas. She also likes it because it uses dairy products and as a dairy farm wife Svea likes to use dairy products whenever possible. She said she often makes it for company and always gets requests for it.

To learn more about Svea and her involvement in her local school district, turn to the story featuring her on page B2.

Texas Casserole

1 medium onion, chopped
1 pound ground beef
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1 8-ounce package egg noodles
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, room temperature
4 ounces sour cream
¾ cup grated Cheddar cheese

Brown the onion and ground beef. Add the sauce, salt and sugar and cook on low heat. While that mixture is cooking, prepare noodles according to package directions.

Using a fork, mash the cream cheese and sour cream together. Grease a medium-sized casserole dish. Layer noodles, then meat, then cream cheese and sour cream mixture. Top with grated cheese. Bake at 350° F. for 45 minutes or until heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

QUESTION - Mrs. Leonard Martin, Myerstown, would like a recipe for any kind of bread make without yeast.

QUESTION - Mrs. Hank Velkoff, Warriors Mark, would like a recipe for butter cake like Danish bakeries sell. It has a thin melted buttery topping.

QUESTION - Pat Bartow, Conestoga, would like a recipe for a whipped topping similar to Cool Whip.

QUESTION - L. Lucille Groff, Denver, would like a recipe for canning apple pie filling.

QUESTION - Mrs. Jerry Hershey, Conestoga, would like a recipe for cheese danish similar to the ones sold by fast food restaurants.

QUESTION - Mrs. Paul Hoover, Ephrata, would like a cheese recipe that tastes like Velveeta cheese.

QUESTION - Betty Biehl, Mertztown, would like recipes that use hot farina cereal.

ANSWER - Mrs. C.K. Edgin, Sewell, N.J., asked for a spice cake recipe. Thanks go to Betty Biehl, Mertztown, for the following recipe.

Spice Cake

2 cups light brown sugar
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
2 cups raisins boiled for 15 minutes in water, undrained
3 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons soda, dissolved in warm water
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Mix all ingredients together. Makes high 9-inch layer cake. Bake at 350° F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until tests done.

ANSWER - Mrs. Herbert Todd, Winthrop, N.Y , asked for a sauerkraut recipe. The following recipe comes from Lancaster County Extension home economist Doris Thomas.

Glass Jar Sauerkraut

Remove and discard outer leaves from firm, matured heads of cabbage. Wash, drain, cut in halves or quarter and remove and discard cores. Shred 5 pounds of cabbage at a time with a shredder or a very sharp knife. It should not be thicker than a dime. In a large container, thoroughly mix 3 tablespoons canning salt with the 5 pounds of shredded cabbage. Let the salted cabbage stand for several minutes to wilt slightly; this allows packing without breaking or bruising. Repeat shredding and salting until all cabbage is ready for fermenting. 25 pounds of cabbage will yield approximately 9 quarts.

Pack into clean glass canning jars, pressing cabbage down, firmly with a wooden spoon. Fill to within 1-½ to 2 inches from the jar top. Be sure there is enough juice to cover the cabbage. A quart jar holds about 2 pounds of shredded cabbage.

Wipe off the jar top. Cover cabbage with pads of cheesecloth, edges tucked down against inside of jar. Hold the cabbage down by criss-crossing two dry wooden strips so they catch under the neck of the jar. Wipe off the outside of the jars, put on lids, but do not seal tightly.

Set the filled jars in shallow pans or on folded newspapers because they may overflow during fermentation. Keep the jars where the temperature will not exceed 70 degrees F. for top quality sauerkraut.

Skim film every few days if it forms. If directions have been followed accurately and correct temperature maintained little or no film should form. Keep cabbage covered with brine. If necessary add more weak brine made by dissolving 1-½ tablespoons salt in one quart of water.

Allow to ferment about 10 days, or until liquid settles and bubbles no longer rise to the surface. Remove the lids, cheesecloth and wooden strips and add more weak brine if necessary to fill jar to within ½" of the top.

Place jars in a pan of cold water. Pan should be deep enough to allow water to extend to neck of the jars. Bring water slowly to the boiling point. Remove jars; wipe off rims; adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath, 15 minutes for pints and 20 minutes for quarts.

Chester Co. gets new 4-H agent

WEST CHESTER – Laurie A. Sicko-Sandow has helped youngsters get involved as a YMCA director in Silver Bay, NY for the past five years. She'll continue to help youngsters now, but in a different way-as Chester County's new 4-H youth extension agent.

"Extension 4-H and YMCA programs are similar. The words are different, but the philosophies are basically the same," she says. "Both organizations are helping kids grow and develop similar goals in different ways."

Laurie is responsible for planning, expanding, executing and evaluating educational programs for adult volunteer leaders and 4-H youth. Her program content will involve leadership development, youth program development and communication skills.

Her appointment was announced by W. Wayne Hinish, acting dean of Penn State's college of agriculture and director of the University's Cooperative Extension Service.

Homemade doughnuts

CREAM-FILLED DOUGHNUTS

Scald 1 quart whole milk. Then add:
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar

Let cool to lukewarm. Prepare 3 packages dry yeast in ¾ cup warm water and add 1 teaspoon sugar. When yeast becomes alive, add to above mixture. Then add:
2 beaten eggs
1 tablespoon salt
9 to 11 cups flour

Mix well. Let rise until double. Knead well. Roll out ½-inch thick and prepare filling.

Filling

1 cup vegetable shortening
1 cup margarine
Pinch of salt
1¼ pounds confectioner's sugar

Cream well. Add 2 egg whites and enough milk to make a smooth paste. Beat in 1 cup marshmallow whip. Makes 80 to 90 doughnuts.

OLD FASHIONED DROP DOUGHNUTS

Mix together and let stand: ½ cup warm water and 2 packs yeast
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup lukewarm milk
4 cups flour
1 cup raisins
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Combine sugar, salt, nutmeg and shortening. Pour over scalded milk, cool to lukewarm; add the beaten eggs and yeast. Add 2 cups flour and beat until smooth. Add raisins and remaining flour. Let rise in warm place for about 45 minutes. Drop by teaspoons (not too full) in hot fat, turn to brown on both sides. Drain. Glaze while warm with scant ½ cup warm water and about 4 cups confectioner's sugar, 1 teaspon vanilla. Makes about 4 dozen.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Fred, what are you doing here?" queries a youthful, innocent-sounding voice.

C'mon, kiddo. You know full well why this hairy hunk of fur is gliding through the house. It has something to do with the draft that wafted across the back of my neck as the front door stood open for a extraordinarily long time.

And I know full well that what it stood open for was this four-footed mop of fluffiness, which will proceed to ooze across the kitchen floor and plop down smack in the middle of the kitchen sink rug, sort of like a puddle of dark oil. When I accidentally step on the blob's tail, my reward will be a whining howl of accusation.

Fred's a cat, coal black, combination of Persian ancestry from some distant, debatable liason, and part pure, unadulterated barn cat. Fred is but a smidgeon of the epidemic that has overrun this farm the last few months.

Spell that epidemic C-A-T-S. Not just cats, though. Soft, fat, fluffy, silky, loveable and huggable. Indeed, this year's explosion of affectionate feline friends has evolved to the point of interfering with my barn work.

It goes like this: halfway out through the yard, I'll be greeted by Stripe. Stripe likes to be held, upside down in your arms like a baby, while he gets his belly fur tickled. By the time Stripe's had his morning hugs, the feeling of paws wrapped around my ankle says that Ace has shown up.

Now, Ace is a living "stuffed" animal, all you could want in a soft toy. Wiggly, but round and firm, with the softest of fur, Ace is a "kisser," and rubs your chin with his cold nose as a greeting. Less than enthusiastic cat lovers don't take kindly to this.

Ace's greeting through, I've probably reached the yard fence, where the local kitten mob lies in wait. This means a lineup of Rhett, Slick, Verne, Gloves and two other names that elude me. This assortment is further joined by an earlier pack of half-brothers and sisters, plus six or seven additional pussycat drop-ins and drop-offs.

It is at this point that barn work battle tactics become crucial: if I make the short side trip to the milk house to pick up the pipeline runoff at the end of milking, I can feed the restless rodent-catching army and proceed to the calves in some sort of peace.

If not, conditions in the calf barn border on hazardous. For until they're fed, the retinue of cats draws around the feet like the proverbial renegade band encircling the wagon. Plus, Stripe will alternatively have to be plucked from the depths of the feed barrel and rescued from dangling precariously over the edge of the calf milk storage containers.

Even if all others are diverted at the cat dish, I can expect that sooner or later all chores will come to a halt when Rhett comes rolling in. Picked as the junior farmer's special pet before the kitten could even toddle a straight line, Rhett with his adorable tiger-striped face has reduced all of us to occasional blubbering baby talk.

Rhett can most commonly be found draped around the neck of the youngest as he rips around the dairy barn on his bike. I worried about how the kitten liked this dubious perch until one recent day when I knelt on the ground storing away gladiolus bulbs. Little footsteps walked up my backbone, soft fur settled in against my neck and a rumbling purr erupted in my right ear.

Thus, you can imagine why barn chores sometimes take a little longer to complete.

And you can also understand why I was less than enthusiastic a few weeks back when I received a call from an old high school acquaintance who just happened to think of me:...and who happened to have a few adorable kittens in need of a home.

No thanks! I'm stumbling over the crowd as it is.

All you relatives out there: guess what you're getting for Christmas.

Monarch butterflies set out of fall migration

Monarch butterflies stop for a rest during their migration. Monarchs from the United States and Canada converge every fall to make the two-month journey to their wintering grounds in Mexico. Buffeted by strong winds that can blow in the wrong direction, the monarchs have developed elaborate strategies to reach their destination.

WASHINGTON — The ultimate flying machine may be neither bird nor plane, but the monarch butterfly.

Every autumn, millions of them prove it. Most of the monarch population east of the Rocky Mountains travels south, funneling through Texas on a 2,000-mile journey to wintering grounds in central Mexico. On the way they overcome wind turbulence that could turn on the "fasten seat belt" sign on a passenger jet and certainly would overwhelm an ultralight aircraft.

Dr. David L. Gibo, associate professor of zoology at the University of Toronto, can verify that. He put together an ultralight–a hang glider with an engine–in hopes of chasing monarchs through the skies to learn their secrets of flight. After a few attempts to tail them, he retired to the ground to observe them with binoculars.

Butterflies Are Free

"Once we were waiting for them down in Texas, and a cold front came through–thousands of them were riding it," Gibo recalls. "If we had stayed up, we'd have been risking our lives. We went up the next day and were bounced around like leaves."

Gibo's observations, in Canada and along migration routes on the East Coast and in Texas, have shown the monarch to be a master at exploiting wind currents. Monarchs save energy by riding thermals–rising air masses that lift them to favorable altitudes. They will fly anywhere, from ground level up to 7,000 feet, above many light airplanes. They will flap like birds, at an average 10 to 12 mph, or soar to conserve energy. When threatened, the butterflies can accelerate to 25 mph.

"Nobody imagined the flight strategy of an insect could be so complicated," Gibo says. "It's as complex as anything a bird does."

The monarch isn't bothered by wind shear; its four-inch wingspan is too small to be affected. The hurricanes that terrify people are opportunities for monarchs. Hurricane Gloria, which roared up the East Coast in late September as the butterflies were beginning their southwesterly trip, probably saved many of them time and energy.

"The counterclockwise spin of the hurricane spawned wind currents in just the direction the monarchs needed to go," says Gibo, whose work is partly supported by the National Geographic Society. "Gloria acted as a warm merry-go-round that could easily have taken them for a 100-mile ride."

Across the Atlantic

Though they have an uncanny ability to find their way, monarchs occasionally find themselves in the wrong place. Strong winds have transported a few of the orange-and-black butterflies all the way across the Atlantic to England, where they don't occur naturally.

Some scientists believe they navigate by cues from earth's magnetic field, though it's not certain. Another monarch mystery–exactly where do they go in winter–was solved 10 years ago when a lofty, wooded site, its trees dripping with resting monarchs, was discoverd in central Mexico. It was already known that most monarchs west of the Rockies spend the season in southern California.

None of the millions of monarchs that embark every September for Mexico has ever been there before, and none will return there. Flying by day with stops for foraging on blossoms, they converge each night to rest, sometimes extending their stay if winds are unfavorable. If they've reached a barrier, such as Lake Ontario, they may build up in large numbers, turning trees orange.

Their soaring skills are so efficient, Gibo says, that they arrive in Mexico fat and healthy, having gained, not lost, weight on the trip. They huddle by the millions on the chilly Mexican hillsides, sometimes breaking off fir-tree branches with their weight. No one knows exactly why they have chosen that area, in mountains northwest of Mexico City.

From November to March they remain there in semi-dormancy, resembling masses of pale, dead leaves, but when warm breezes stir, they begin to mate. The males will stay in Mexico to die; the females depart for the journey north, many settling in Texas to lay eggs on emerging milkweed plants. The butterflies born in Texas will continue north, possibly all the way to Ontario. The offspring of those in Ontario will eventually migrate to Mexico, several generations from those that preceded them.

Monarchs appear to have the most complex migration and flight strategies of all butterflies, but Gibo has learned from ground observation that at least two other migratory species–the red admiral and the mouring cloak–soar to save energy. He hopes to learn whether they share any other skills with the monarch, to gain insight into how the monarch's sophisticated flight strategies evolved.

His own flying techniques evolving, Gibo plans to take wing again in the ultralight, wind currents permitting.

Homemade Gift Wrap: Creative and Economical

Create your own gift wrap and give your gifts an extra personal touch this holiday season. Here are some suggestions:

• For a seamstress' gift, sew fabric scraps together to design a patchwork wrapping and use a tape measure as a ribbon.

• Wrap a traveler's gift in a colorful road map.

• Use comic sections from the Sunday paper to wrap gifts for children.

• The sports section of the newspaper can serve as a gift wrap for an athlete.

• For an earthy look, try brown paper bags. Decorate with leaves, pine cones or dried plants or nuts.

• Plain construction paper, shelf paper or white freezer paper can be decorated and used as wrapping paper. String pulling is a very ancient method of decorating paper. Dip about 24 inches of string is poster paint, lay it in swirls and loops on the paper. Lay another piece of paper over the coiled string and pull the string out in one continuous motion.

If you're the kind of person who really likes to get your hands into a project, dip the palm of your hand in poster paint and make handprints all over the plain paper.

Home-Baked Cookies Keep Best When Stored Right

Did you ever bring out a tin of home-baked Christmas cookies and offer them to your guests only to find they'd gotten as limp as a wet dish towel?

If so, you're not alone. Because time spent baking cookies is considerable, protect your investment by storing cookies properly so they'll stay as delicious as they're meant to be.

• Cool all cookies completely before storing. Don't overlap or stack cookies until they're fully cooled.

• Store soft cookies separately from crisp cookies. Put the soft ones in a tightly covered container. The crisp ones keep best in a container with a loose cover.

• If crisp cookies soften, place them on a baking sheet and pop them into a 325 degree oven for three to five minutes.

• If soft cookies dry out, try the same strategy you use with hard brown sugar–place a slice of apple, or orange or bread into the container and cover tightly.

Nail Down Your Christmas Gift List

If you're puzzled about picking out the perfect gift for some of those hard-to-buy-for adults on your Christmas gift list this year, a good basic tool may be just the right choice.

We all need tools for a variety of home repairs–to put up drapery rods, nail boards together for inexpensive bookcases, fix door knobs or leaky faucets, assemble knock-down furniture and even construct built-ins. Many of us need tools for craft activities. Hammers, saws, a set of screw drivers with a variety of tips, a mitre box, a wrench, a jig saw, a hand or electric drill, and a steel retractable measuring tape are just a few of the most obvious

One way to find out if someone has a tool you're thinking about buying for them is to ask to borrow it. You may have to ask for several items before you find one they don't have and that you can afford.

When buying a tool, you will want to buy the best you can afford to suit the job it most probably will be used to do. Good tools last a long time when used and taken care of properly. Shop carefully and compare features and warranties.

If you don't own a lot of tools yourself or don't know a lot of buying them, find out from friends who the most reliable and reputable dealer in your area is. That way, you can ask questions, and the person who receives the tool can have it repaired or replaced later on, if necessary.

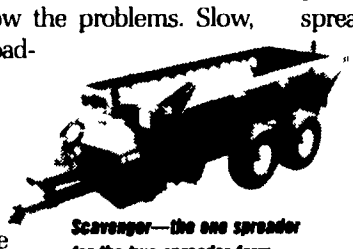
You should spread manure as efficiently as you store it.

Modern manure storage systems may have rendered your conventional spreader obsolete.

You know the problems. Slow, sloppy load-outs from storage. Uneven spreads that leave "hotspots" all over your fields. And design limitations that let your system's benefits run right out your spreader's leaky endgate.

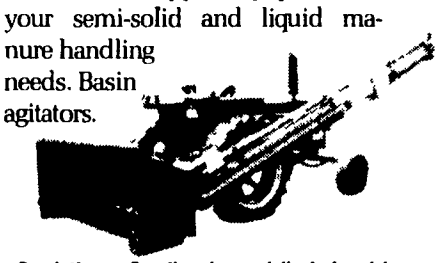


Scavenger—the one spreader for the two-spreader farm.

Now you need equipment to handle your manure as efficiently as you store it. Equipment that gets you into the field faster. And lets you spread when it best suits you and your crops.

Hedlund/Martin manufactures specialized equipment for today's manure handling needs. Tough Scavenger spreaders with unique, patented, square-auger design to spread most kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack, even hog and poultry—all year 'round. The Vanguard spreader and Equalizer loader, specially-designed to make fast work of loading and hauling semi-solid manure. Or the large-capacity LT to spread liquid manure quickly and evenly over all kinds of terrain.

And Hedlund/Martin offers a full line of support equipment for your semi-solid and liquid manure handling needs. Basin agitators.



Revolutionary Equalizer is specially-designed to efficiently and easily load semi-solid manure.

Basin pumps. Submersible pumps. All designed for convenient operation and low maintenance. Ruggedly built to stand up to hard use—year after year.

Stop by your local Hedlund/Martin dealer for a demonstration or write Dept. H-2, Hedlund/Martin, Inc., 841 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067, for free information.

York Farm Women present check to 4-H program at annual meeting

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — The 4-H program of York County is once again a recipient of the generosity of the county's Society of Farm Women.

Long-time supporters--both financially and otherwise--of the extension youth program, the York County Society of Farm Women presented a check for $1,167 to Marcey Seckman, home economist representing the 4-H program. Presentation of the donation was made during the Society's 46th annual meeting, Nov. 7 at Wisehaven Hall.

In accepting the contribution, Mrs. Seckman thanked the more than 300 Farm Women attending for their continuing generous support. To date, Farm Women contributions to the 4-H have totaled more than $28,000, representing over $6,300 from individual groups and the remaining monies from county fundraising efforts. The bulk of the Farm Women contributions has gone toward the creation of a smaller, demonstration kitchen area.

Amid the amenities of fellowship, food and flowers, Ruth Santiago was installed as the county Farm Women's newest president. A member of Group 37, she is a third-generation Farm Women member. Her daughter recently joined the Society, extending the family involvement to a fourth generation.

Mrs. Santiago accepted the leadership gavel from outgoing president Arlene Miller, Group II. One of the final highlights of Mrs. Miller's tenure in the Farm Women president role was the establishment of the county's Group 38, organized in October. Farm Women in the county now numbers 579 members.

Mrs. Mabel Rishel, founder of the York Society of Farm Women, and at age 94 the county's oldest member, accepted a bouquet of roses from president Arlene Miller.

Other officers heading the York Farm Women are Susan Lehman, Group 9, vice-president; Carolyn Rishel, Group 1, second vice-president; Elaine Kroft, Group 30, secretary; and Miriam Young, Group 34, treasurer.

In her compilation of the county's group report, Mrs. Santiago lauded the Farm Women for their charitable efforts, ranging from donations to Ethiopian hunger victims to local fire companies, and fundraisers running the gamut of house tours to homemade peanut butter.

Other reports included the county president's report by Arlene Miller and state president's report from Naomi Bupp, former York County president and member of Group 11.

Six former members were memorialized during a special service conducted by representatives of Group 26. Devotions were offered to the memory of Esther Lehman, Group 2; Mary Fin, Group 6; Gladys Mummert, Group 9; Ida Hinkle and Arzula Bose, Group 20; and Anna Mansberger, Group 26.

Members reaching their 80th birthday during the past year received special recognition. The octogenarians honored were Beatrice Leib, Group 4; Cora

It's time to enter Chicken Cooking Contest

ANNAPOLIS, MD – Your favorite chicken recipe could be just what you need to win a 10-day vacation for two to Hawaii plus $1,000, a Frigidaire microwave oven, Sunbeam mixer, Wear-Ever cookware, LP gas grill, and a collection of McCormick/Shilling spices. That's the grand prize package in the 1986 Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest and now is the time to enter.

Held on an alternate-year schedule, the contest is open to residents of 12 northeastern states (Virginia to Maine) and the District of Columbia. Two finalists from each eligible state will be chosen to receive an expense-paid weekend at the Delaware coastal resort, Rehoboth Beach, to participate in cook-off finals scheduled for June 6 and 7, 1986.

Recipes will be judged on appeal, taste, appearance and ease of preparation. Broiler-fryer chicken, whole or any combination or parts is the only required ingredient. Recipes should make four to eight servings and total preparation time must not exceed three hours.

Deadline for entering is March 1, 1986,

The contest is sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the trade association representing the poultry industry on the Delmarva Peninsula. For Further information and official entry forms, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Chicken Cooking Contest, Public Affairs Office, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland 21401.

York Farm Women annual meeting

Keiser, Group 11; Mae Forman, Group 19; Ethel Zeigler, Group 20; Mabel Miller and Maybelle Kilgore, Group 21; and Greta Burgard, Group 23.

Included on the program of the day-long session were alternate dairy princess Kelly Kilgore, the Gloryland gospel singers, and featured speaker Dr. Catherine Bene.

Dr. Bene, an eye specialist in the diseases of the retina and vitreous, is the daughter of a county Farm Women member and related having attended the meetings as a child. She is a graduate of Eastern High School and Franklin and Marshall College, served an internship at York Hospital and holds her medical degree from Temple University.

Her slide presentation explained the latest in treatments for the retina and inner eye, especially problems created as side effects of diabetes. Diabetes, said the eye specialist, is the leading cause of blindness in the under-65 population and second leading cause of sight loss in all ages.

The newest high-tech treatment of such eye problems involves a process called laser photocoagulation. A type of magnifying glass is placed before the eye, and a laser beam directed through it to dissolve blood clot and scar tissue, side effects of diabetes. While some slight vision loss may occur, it is far less than that resulting from allowing diabetic-related eye problems to go untreated.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Cranberry Nut Cake

Cranberries are coming into season soon, and the fresh berries add zing and color to cakes. For a holiday brunch, lunch or tea, this Cranberry Nut Cake would be perfect. With its creamy white icing and flecks of nuts and red berries, it is pretty and festive, not to mention delicious!

Buy fresh cranberries when they are plentiful and inexpensive. They freeze well, either whole or chopped. I freeze them, chopped, in 1-and 2-cup bags to match my favorite recipes. When using frozen berries in recipes, microwave briefly for 2 to 3 minutes per cup on medium low (30, 3, defrost) before adding to the batter.

Bundt cakes are wonderfully easy to make in a microwave. The plastic 12-cup bundt pans will hold two-layer cake recipe or mix. A bundt cake cooks in 20 minutes or less, rises higher and is moister than a range cake.

Here are a few pointers for a perfect microwave bundt cake:

1. I have had good luck with both scratch recipes and mixes in the microwave. The pudding cake mixes are especially moist and delicious. I've noticed, however, that one brand mix tends to dry out quickly. If you have a dry cake, try a different brand, or cook the cake less time.

2. Use a little less liquid than called for in the mix or scratch recipe. For two layer cakes, I take out two tablespoons of the liquid called for. This gives you a slightly thicker batter which is easier to cook in the microwave, where there is less evaporation during baking.

3. Don't grease and flour the bundt pan. Grease it with about one tablespoon of solid shortening. Then sprinkle granulated sugar, cinnamon sugar, finely ground nuts or graham cracker crumbs on the shortening.

Remember that baked goods don't brown in a microwave, so use nuts or cinnamon sugar to make a light colored cake look brown on the edges. Finely ground nuts are available in supermarkets in bags called Pecan Meal or Walnut Meal. Look for these in the stores' baking aisles near the whole or chopped nuts.

4. If your microwave doesn't have a turntable, rotate the cake frequently (every 3 to 5 minutes) if the cake rises unevenly. If you bake a lot of cakes in your microwave, a wind-up or battery powered turntable would make baking easier.

5. If you have trouble getting the bottom of food cooked evenly, try raising the pan about an inch in the oven, as suggested below in the cake directions (Step 3.).

6. Bake bundt cakes, uncovered, for 15 minutes on medium (50,5) for even cooking. (Use medium low or defrost (30,3) for 19 to 20 minutes if your oven doesn't have medium.) Then cook on high for 2 to 5 minutes more to finish it quickly.

Most cake mixes are done in two or three minutes on high. Scratch cakes are heavier, and may need up to five minutes on high. A very moist or dense cake may need a longer time, most will not.

7. A cake is done when a toothpick comes out clean, or when it starts to pull away from the edges of the pan. There may still be moist looking spots on the top or edges of the cake. These will dry up during standing time. A Bundt cake needs 10 minutes standing time, then can be turned out to finish cooling.

Cranberry Nut Bundt Cake

1 tablespoon solid shortening
1/3 cup walnut meal
1 18-ounce white pudding cake mix
1 cup water
1/3 cup oil
3 whole eggs
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup chopped cranberrries

1. Grease a 12-cup plastic bundt pan with shortening, sprinkle nut meal to coat pan.

2. Combine cake mix, water, oil and eggs and beat 1 minute. Scrape bowl, add chopped nuts and cranberries and mix 1 minute longer. Spread batter evenly in prepared pan.

3. Raise pan about one inch off the bottom of the oven by putting it on rack in lowest position, or by setting pan on top of an upside down plate or pie plate. (Raising the cake lets more microwaves underneath to help the bottom of large items cook more evenly.) If your oven has a turntable, this is not necessary.

4. Microwave on medium (50,5) for 15 minutes, rotating the cake every five minutes if it rises unevenly. Then microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes until it tests done. Let stand for 10 minutes, then turn out on a serving plate. Cool before icing.

TIP: To make a Cranberry Orange Bundt Cake: Add 1/4 cup packed brown sugar and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind to cake mix before adding other ingredients. Substitute 1 cup orange juice for the water. Other directions and cooking time remain the same.

This bundt cake icing can be dribbled over any flavor bundt cake. If you prefer, sprinkle powdered sugar over cake.

Bundt Cake Icing

1 1/4 cup confectioner's sugar
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
4 teaspoons milk
1/4 teaspoon vanilla, optional

Melt margarine (use 20 to 30 seconds on high) and stir milk, margarine and vanilla into the sugar, stirring until smooth. Dribble spoonfuls all around the cake. If icing is too thick to dribble, add a few drops more milk, or warm icing for 20 to 30 seconds on medium low (30,3, defrost).

The icing can be made into a glaze by adding 1 to 2 teaspoons more milk and brushing all over slightly warm cake.

NOTE: The times above are for microwaves with 600-700 watts of cooking power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500, add 20 seconds.

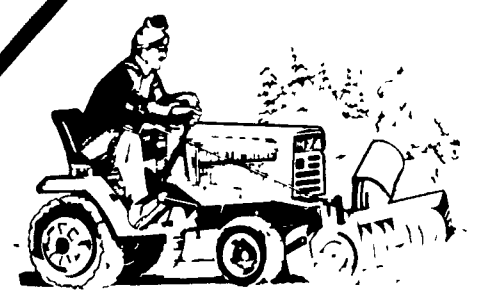
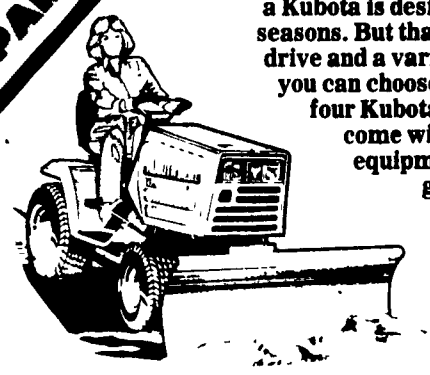
MORE THAN A MOWER

Kubota has a whole new way to cut the grass. It's the first diesel lawn and garden tractor in the country. Kubota's G-Series lawn and garden tractors come with water-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder diesel engines. They're built to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons. There are four G-Series models, from 10 to 14 horsepower. They all have live front PTO shaft drive to the mid-mount mower. You can choose a hydrostatic transmission. And you can choose a variety of implements including a snowblower, tiller or front blade. So don't let the grass grow under your feet. See the G-Series soon.



KUBOTA
Nothing like it on earth.™



Of course, a Kubota G-Series lawn and garden tractor is a great way to cut the grass. And with a liquid-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder engine, a Kubota is designed to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons. But that's not all. A Kubota G has a live front PTO shaft drive and a variety of hard-working implements. For example, you can choose a snowblower, tiller or front blade. There are four Kubota G models, from 10 to 14 horsepower. Some come with hydrostatic transmission as standard equipment. A Kubota G-Series diesel lawn and garden tractor. There's more to it than you think.

For the avid gardener

Ready or not winter weather is coming and it's time to think about protecting your landscape plants. Bright sun, dry winds and low temperatures are the main culprits.

Evergreens are especially susceptible to winter damage. Ornamental evergreen plants such as arborvitae, pine spruce, fir and yew are frequently injured by low winter temperatures.

Dry winds during periods of bright sunshine, as well as unseasonable warm weather late in winter when the ground is still frozen can inflict injury as well.

The ability of evergreen plants to resist winter injury depends on the hardiness of the plant, its exposure to prevailing winds and sunlight, soil characteristics and the plant's location.

Symptoms of plant damage may not appear until late winter–and sometimes not until mid-summer. At these times, needles become tan, red or brown and may fall from the plant. In severe cases, the entire plant may be killed. Evergreens growing on the south, southwest or western side of your house are especially vulnerable to winter damage.

You can avoid this damage by using windbreaks, lath houses, shade screens, and mulches in December. Spraying in mid or late winter with an anti-wilting formulation should reduce water loss from leaves.

When it's impossible to erect specially built frames and screens, remove snow and ice immediately with a broom, using an upward motion. Heavy snow can physically damage plants.

During the spring, give extra attention to cultivating, fertilizing and watering winter-injured evergreens.

York 4-H'ers plan capon roundup

YORK– After more than 20 weeks of dutiful caring and feeding, York County 4-H members will be giving up their capons when they sell them to the highest bidder at the Annual 4-H Capon Roundup.

The Roundup is scheduled for Nov. 19 at 9 p.m. at Wisehaven Banquet Hall and will be held in conjunction with Agway's Annual Banquet. The dressed capons will be judged and a champion will be selected.

Dressed capon is known as high value poultry for it is more juicy, tasty, tender and more expensive to produce, process and market than most other kinds of poultry.

The average capon weighs 10 pounds and will serve approximately 10 people.

Newcomers earn KILE breeding swine championships

HARRISBURG — A few newcomers broke into the winners' circle and unseated the usual show winners during Tuesday's breeding swine competition at KILE. Judging the shows was Dick Nash of Sharpsville, Ind.

Duroc's were the first breed through the ring, and Merle Hess, of Hess Durocs, Smithsburg, Md., showed entries that captured the champion boar and the champion gilt titles.

"This is the first time we've ever shown breeding stock here," said Hess, "so we're tickled to death." Standing second to the Hess entries were a gilt shown by Smith's Hog Farm, exhibitor of both of last year's champions, and a boar shown by a York County exhibitor, David C. Holloway.

And in Yorkshire competition, a first-time KILE swine exhibitor picked up two championships. Bill Hoewischer, of Hoewischer Farms Inc., Sidney, Ohio., had previously shown cattle at Harrisburg, but this year he decided to add pigs to his KILE show string. The decision paid off for him when he picked up both the champion gilt and the reserve champion boar ribbons.

The champion Yorkshire boar was exhibited by Henry Holloway of Darlington, Md., and the reserve gilt honors went to Wilson's Yorkshires, New Freedom.

Hampshire honors were split between Greg Knight of Martinsburg, W. Va., and Franklin Feeser, Taneytown, Md. Knight had both champion boars and the reserve champion gilt. Feeser, who also showed a Hampshire to the over-all championship of Monday's barrow on-foot competition, had the champion gilt.

In Chester White competition and in the Spotted Swine show, Jim Parlett of Airville followed up on last year's KILE wins and recaptured some championships. Parlett had the two champion Chester White gilts and the champion boar and champion gilt in the Spotted Swine show.

Rodger Bankert, Hanover, had the champion Chester White boar, while Charles E. Griest, Abbottstown, had the reserve.

The reserve champion Spotted Swine boar was shown by Lazarus Brothers, Germansville, and the reserve gilt was the entry of Gregg Christman Jr., Chambersburg.

Entries were down in this year's Berkshire show. Gregory and Beth Innerst of Red Lion picked up both the champion boar titles and showed the winning Berkshire gilts as well.

With only two entries in the Poland China show, Denton J. Griest, Abbottstown, handily won the gilt championships.

Following are the top three placings in each of the KILE breeding swine shows.

Maryland, Illinois breeders win top barrow honors

HARRISBURG — Franklin and Julie Feeser of Taneytown, Md., copped the top barrow on-foot honors during this week's KILE competition.

Their 243-pound heavyweight Hampshire defeated the competition all along the way, first winning the class and breed competition, then earning the open championship and finally capturing the overall championship of both open and junior shows.

The Feeser's were pleased with their win, which was their first over-all KILE barrow championship, but they were still modest about their good fortune. "We'll wait and see what he does on the rail," they commented on the day of the on-foot judging.

They said that the championship does mean a lot to them because they know their winning June pig was grown in a commercial atmosphere and ate from self-feeders right up to show time.

The Feesers run about 200 Hampshire and Yorkshire sows and sell a lot of commercial crossbred gilts and boars.

After taking top honors in the Duroc barrow show, Lavern Weller's 217-pound middleweight entry found himself in the winners' circle for open show reserve honors, and finally for reserve grand champion honors over both open and junior shows.

It was the barrow's soundness, cleanness of top and free movement that put him in reserve position, said Weller, a Duroc breeder from Dwight, Ill., and veteran of two decades of KILE barrow shows. The May-farrowed Duroc was out of a son of the 1983 national champion Duroc boar.

Junior Barrows

In junior barrow competition, a Spot-Hampshire cross shown by Kristen Hazlett of State College took top honors. The 11-year-old daughter of Vernon and Jean Hazlett, Kristen also showed a heavyweight that placed first in its division. Her 215-pound reserve champion was purchased from Keith Bard of Lewistown.

Show judge Wayne Yake of West Lafayette, Ind., went to another lightweight entry for his reserve champion, a 215-pound Hampshire shown by Matthew Horchler of New Wilmington.

"I guess I should quit while I'm ahead," quipped the son of Ralph and Esther Horchler, who also showed last year's KILE reserve champion. The 16-year-old exhibitor purchased his barrow from Donald Helmke of Defiance, Ohio.

Following are the results of the KILE open barrow on-foot competition.

Proven performers

Patz hook-and-eye links have proven their value over the years. The forged steel links provide strength and durability. The Patz link design provides chain flexibility that takes sprocket, corners and elevations smoothly for layout flexibility and minimum wear.

Choose the Model 400 (blue) link with more than 2 pounds of steel, or choose the thicker XH (red) link for longer pulls and heavier loads.

Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increased hardness, strength and wear resistance. Patz links withstand corrosion for long chain life.

Holiday stencils an age-old craft

Copley News Service

The season of gift giving soon will be upon us, offering a splendid opportunity to create handmade treasures for our loved ones.

Selecting quality projects that are not too time-consuming can be the dilemma that keeps some people from getting started. Stenciling may be the solution for the timid crafter. And companies like Illinois Bronze have introduced self-sticking prepunched Christmas stencils that ensure failure-proof results.

You can enjoy accenting your gifts with whimsical designs created exclusively for Country Colors by Joyce Howard. Her suggested ideas for the Christmas season include: wooden boxes, pillows, aprons, ribbons, stockings, tablecloths, tree ornaments, place mats, trays and toys.

The unique quality of the self-sticking stencil is that a tight seal is made with just about any surface (except paper) that minimizes the possibility of paint seeping. However, the stencil can be used with the backing in place, thereby allowing it to be used in a mirror-image motif. The stencil adapts easily to curved surfaces, wood, fabric or glass.

There are eight Christmas Stencils available at your craft shop or by writing to Illinois Bronze, 300 East Main St., Lake Zurich, IL 60047. Be sure to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If you are looking for something a little different in stenciling, Adele Bishop's "Creative Tile Collection of Pre-Cut Stencils" will be a new adventure for you. This stenciling concept allows you to create the realistic look of ceramic tiles on any surface and develop a totally coordinated look for any room. Each of the six designs include motifs for tile, border and corner. If you work with real ceramic tiles, you will open up new creative channels for home decor.

Adele Bishop offers a colorfully illustrated 24-page book that includes 4 pages of additional designs. The stencils retail for $7.95; the book for $8.50. For more information write to Adele Bishop's Consumer Department, P.O. Box 3349, Kingston NC 28501.

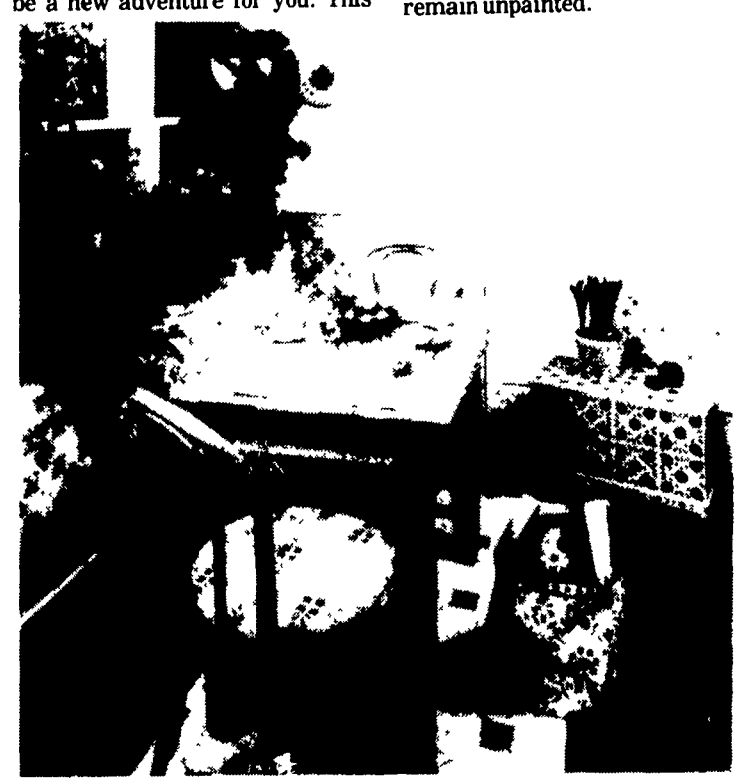
Whether you select the Christmas stencil, tile stencil or both, the creative effects that follow will give delightful results.

Textured Look: Cut sponge to fit the palm of your hand. Dip it in paint and dab on paper towels until semidry. Dab or swirl on the stencil opening to achieve a variety of textures. Or lift off paint from a wet painted surface by dabbing at it with a clean, semidry sponge. Practice first on a scrap.

Soft Pastel Effect: Wrap a piece of velvet or velour around your fingertip and apply color with a dabbing motion. Vary the technique further by making circular strokes.

Light Shaded Effect: Use spray paints. This technique is perfect for gift paper and large surfaces.

Speed and Efficiency: When stenciling large areas, apply color with a mohair paint roller or a large glue brush. Apply paint with a semidry brush or roller using paper towels to remove excess paint. Take special care to mask off adjacent areas that are to remain unpainted.



Stencil motifs are a wonderful way to create a coordinated country look, but they also work well in contemporary and traditional room settings.

The Office Works can help you with your agricultural problem solving.

We have been helping farmers for three years now. That's because we know farming. Jim Landis, our agricultural computing specialist grew up on a farm and now he has a 200 acre cash crop farming operation. Our satisfied customers include dairymen, poultrymen, beef and hog farmers, county agents, feed mills, Vo-Ag teachers and other farming specialists.

Let us show you what a computer can do on the farm. We offer seminars that provide a hands-on learning experience. We'll teach you how to use a computer and show you what a computer can do for you. You'll see how a computer purchase for the farm would pay for itself! The cost for seminars is modest - $15 per couple which includes all class materials and lunch. Plus, you'll get a coupon for $100 off a computer purchase! The schedule is below. All seminars are Tuesdays from 10am-3 pm.

Oct 8	Agricultural Software on the Macintosh
Oct. 22	Agricultural Software on the IBM
Nov 5	Layer Management on the IBM
Nov 12	Agricultural Software on the Macintosh

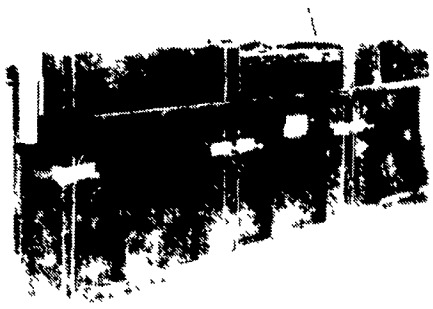
MARYLAND TOBACCO



"The Art of Baling Becomes A Reality" over the course of history. Maryland tobacco has found its way to market in a variety of forms. From barrels to burlap sheets, to tied leaves. Now, a new method has been designed which makes packed tobacco more manageable.

A baling box machine can be used which puts up tobacco in 22 inch bales that weigh 75 to 80 lbs. These can easily be stacked or stored.

The basic machine is a three-bin model where tobacco is laid in according to grade. The tobacco is compressed into bales by use of an hydraulic cylinder powered by air. A jack type system can be used for those who may not have electric available. After the bale is compressed, it must be tied with cotton twine.

The use of the three-bin press allows more tabacco to be processed in less time.

For more information and details on these new tobacco press units - Call LANCASTER SILO CO., INC. We have units in stock for sale.

COMPAK
Stake Body

Increased hauling capacity for your down-sized pickup.

Your energy-saving, small pickup, teamed with the versatile Omaha Standard Compak stake body, is a smart combination. Available with wood or steel floors in platform lengths of 7' or 7'6" and widths of 72" or 78".

Corner and rear identification lights are built into the platform. All steel stake racks feature a two-section rear, spring-loaded rack connectors, and automatic spring-loaded rack hold downs.

Underbody steel tool boxes with lockable paddle latch, rear step bumper and steel bulkhead with full-width mesh window are sensible options.

Compak platforms and stake bodies are ideal for delivery services, contractors, electricians, nurseries and other trades.

THE GINN FARM
St. Georges, Delaware

The Ginn property is a 146 acre farm that fronts on U S Highway 13 south of St Georges, Delaware

The main house is a 15-year old Georgian style residence designed after the original farm house that stood on the property 300 years ago The home is elegant and lends itself to gracious living and entertaining

Besides the beautiful residences, there are a number of outbuildings which are used in the three stage feeder pig operation The operation which is capable of supporting 2200 head in one cycle utilizes the nursery growing unit and finishing unit, each of which is a separate, well maintained building These units offer thermostatically controlled gas heaters automatic feed and water systems, concrete slate floors over a five foot deep pit and exhaust and ventilation systems There are two 12-ton feed bins and two electrically controlled loading chutes Several other implement buildings are included

The land can be easily farmed because of the moisture retention and high nutrient density Besides farming, there are many other potential uses The beauty of the land would lend itself well to a horse farm

The Ginn Farm is an excellent opportunity as a working agricultural operation or could be modified to suit individual buyer needs The farm is available for inspection by appointment For more complete information, please contact

Huge Tractor Savings
with John Deere IRAs (Inventory Reduction Advantages)

Right now you can buy anybody's tractor at a pretty good price. But John Deere offers you something better: John Deere IRAs Inventory Reduction Advantages like:

- Our 40-85-hp utility tractors, 100-190-hp row-crop tractors and rugged 4WD tractors are value-priced like never before. John Deere factory-backed programs enable us to make very competitive deals, horsepower for horsepower, dollar for dollar.
- John Deere IRAs apply to all new tractors, not discontinued models. We're out to sell the best product we've ever built, at the best possible price
- A variety of finance options are available* including waiver of interest charges until June 1, 1986. Or you may wish to take a discount worth up to thousands of dollars in lieu of finance waiver The John Deere finance waiver may actually give you an effective A.P.R. lower than competition's "low-rate" financing We can give you the details
- Besides a great product, you'll get great support — the best in the business. Our factory-trained technicians provide prompt, competent service John Deere's parts back-up is legendary with a communications network that can locate and ship a vital part fast!
- The best IRA of all is John Deere quality. Because our high quality is what will ultimately make the difference between a "cheap" deal and a great deal

Allebachs dominate KILE Draft Horse Show

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — Perhaps the most majestic of all the animals exhibited at this week's Keystone International Livestock Exposition, the draft horses were the last to take their place in the showring.

Winding up a full week of livestock shows on Wednesday morning, the Draft Horse Show featured Percherons, Belgians and Clydesdales.

The Abraham Allebach family of Spring Mills was singled out for four of the six championships awarded in the show. In the Percheron division their two-year-old Blackhome Duke was named champion stallion by show judge Robert Mischka.

The Allebachs purchased Blackhome Duke as a foal from Reg Black of Moorefield, Ontario.

Another Allebach entry received the reserve grand champion mare rosette.

Show judge Robert Mischka like the appearance of the Allebach's Clydesdales as well, selecting the family's entries for both champion stallion and mare.

The Clydesdale winners, both homebred entries, are a full brother and sister. The yearling stallion, Ambassadors Danny Bo, was sired by Bardrill Ambassador.

The champion mare, Ambassador's Tina, was a May foal. She received a fourth place out of 14 entries in the Clydesdale Show at the Royal Winter Fair.

The reserve champion mare, Pattie Mac Lightfoot, was a three-year-old entry owned by Gene Emswiler of Union Bridge, Md.

For the reserve champion stallion show judge Lee Eller went to OHF Master's Jazz, entered by Lewis and Gail Biddle and Family of Boalsburg.

Arthur Reist, Lititz, showed the grand and reserve grand champion mares. A two-year-old sired by Double M Jake, J-K Congress Ladys D, was named champion.

The reserve championship went to the Reist's one-year-old Rosette Finality Pre.

Cut winter soil erosion

DEKALB, IL. — One way to reduce costs and maintain soil productivity is by minimizing winter soil erosion says Bill Arndorfer, DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS Regional Agronomist. "When soil erosion occurs, more is lost than just soil. Fertilizer and future crop productivity are also involved."

With harvest underway, many farmers will be deciding if any fall tillage is necessary and the type to use. "Before performing any fall tillage, ask if this tillage trip is really necessary," suggests the agronomist.

"If there is not a clear benefit for performing the tillage operation, then don't do it," he states. "Leaving the soil surface undisturbed and covered with crop residue will reduce the likelihood of wind and water erosion. Delay necessary tillage until spring, unless there is potential for a severe yield reduction for waiting."

Arndorfer offers the following alternatives for reducing water soil erosion: NO TILLAGE involves leaving the soil undisturbed with crop residue left on the soil surface. This allows the greatest protection against soil erosion. No fall tillage of any kind is recommended for soybean land.

CONSERVATION TILLAGE: This form of tillage incorporates up to two thirds of the crop residue, while leaving the soil surface rough and remaining crop residue on the soil surface. Chisel plowing and deep disking are the most common types of conservation tillage.

CONVENTIONAL TILLAGE: Moldboard plowing incorporates up to one hundred percent of the crop residue, leaving the soil surface bare and prone to wind and water erosion. Moldboard plowing is not recommended for sloping fields or highly erodable soils.

"When tillage is performed on a sloping field, drive on the contour to minimize soil loss associated with up and down tillage," the DEKALB-PFIZER agronomist warns. "Establish grass strips or waterways to further reduce erosion on sloping soils."

Practicing conservation tillage or no tillage in the fall reduces winter soil erosion while saving time, machinery wear, and money Arndorfer concludes.

Chore-Time develops alternative to chain feeding for poultry

MILFORD, Ind. – For many years, the caged layer industry has looked for an economical alternative to the chain feeder. With the release of the new ULTRAFLEX™ Cage Feeding System by Chore-Time Cage Systems, the industry may now have that alternative.

According to David Newman, general manager of Northeast Agri Systems, distributors of Chore-Time Cage Systems in the Northeast, the new ULTRAFLEX System is designed for use with caged layers and brood-grow systems. The unique system delivers feed to the birds in cage rows up to 600 feet in length by using a round, flexible steel auger pulled through the feed trough by a sprocket drive. The "coreless" auger permits easy access to the feed–even for poorly debeaked birds. The auger also helps guard against the bird's natural instinct to bill or pile feed in the trough, which can cause feed to spill out and be wasted.

"Actually, the ULTRAFLEX was designed for several reasons, with differences in feed formulations being the primary consideration," Newman noted. "The system quickly moves fresh feed around a continuous circuit at 80 feet per minute without feed separation, roll back or skipping. The auger speed also prevents birds from 'selectively eating or 'high-grading' the feed as it passes by them."

"The system is simpler to operate than most other systems and is easily adaptable to most existing cage systems. ULTRAFLEX is also more forgiving of factors such as feathers and corn cobs in the feed and house managers who will not tend to and adjust equipment," he added. And, the ULTRAFLEX auger glides around corners in heavy duty galvanized steel elbows eliminating the need for power shoes, corner wheels, wear plates, or shear pins. Both the ULTRAFLEX auger and 20 gauge high tensil steel feed trough feature a five-year warranty.

The ULTRAFLEX System also uses Chore-Time's advanced microprocessor time clock to provide various features, Newman pointed out. "The feeder's running time can be set to the second, matching the exact time it takes the feeder to move feed completely around the cage row. The clock can also be set to provide one or more "stimulation cycles" between feedings. Each stimulation cycle allows the ULTRAFLEX to run 10 seconds, moving the auger to stir feed and stimulate birds to eat between feedings.

Newman also notes that while the system has just been released by Chore-Time, the ULTRAFLEX System has been tested on poultry farms for over five years with several million birds being fed on systems already installed in the United States, Canada and Europe. During the past year Northeast Agri Systems has sold and installed several ULTRAFLEX Systems in Pennsylvania, Virginia and New Jersey and currently has more installations in progress.

The ULTRAFLEX cage feeding system developed by Chore-Time cage System and distributed in this area by Northeast Agri Systems.

Soil meeting planned

NEW HOLLAND – The Adult Farmer Program of the Eastern Lancaster County School District will conduct a Soil Fertility Meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m., in the all-purpose room of the Blue Ball Elementary School. The meeting will center on the results of the most recent studies on soil fertility completed in eastern Lancaster County.

Work done by Drs. Baker, Fox, and Lanyon of the Pennsylvania State University Agronomy Department and Mitch Woodward, regional manure management specialist, are revealing valuable information that can save fertilizer dollars, make more efficient use of manure and fertilizer nutrients, and help reduce ground and surface water contamination.

How do corn yields respond to various amounts and types of manure or commercial fertilizer when the fertility is already high from previous applications? What is a nutrient management plan and how can you develop an effective one? How do heavy manure applications effect no-till stands? The answers to these soil fertility questions and many more will be discussed and their implications to fertilizer management decisions will be explained.

All interested persons are invited. The Blue Ball School is located on Ewell Road, one mile east of Blue Ball between routes 23 and 322. For additional information call the Adult Farmer Office at 354-4525

Announcing two new additions to the Deutz-Allis line.

New 6250 and 6260 tractors.

We're widening our line with two new additions. The 51 pto hp 6250 and 57 pto hp 6260 are powered by 3-cylinder direct air-cooled diesel engines. These skillfully engineered power plants have a world wide reputation for fuel economy and efficiency, low maintenance, and dependable long-life performance.

Choose from two-wheel drive or traction-grabbing all-wheel drive for added efficiency. A 12-speed transmission is standard with 8 forward speeds and 4 reverse. Plus high-performance hydraulics, 3-point hitch and 540-rpm pto. A front hitch and pto are also available for greater efficiency and versatility with front mounted implements.

October lamb prices stable

DENVER — During October, marketing in the intermountain region winds down. As winter approaches, producers either send their lambs to slaughter or to the feedlot for finishing out to slaughter weight. By the end of October, approximately 90-95 percent of the lambs in the intermountain region had moved out of producer hands.

Although feedlots in major feeding areas appear to be full at this time, if slaughter continues at a normal pace through December, the number of lambs on feed at the end of the year will be down. The number of farmer feeders in the Midwest appears to be higher this year.

There are indications that the number of lambs which moved into the Imperial Valley this year may be down as much as 10 percent over last year as a result of fewer lambs marketed from the intermountain region.

Overall, wholesale prices were pretty stable throughout the month of October. Prices on the East Coast during the first week of the month fell 5 cents, settling at $1.35. Lingering problems from Hurricane Gloria, which hit the East Coast during the end of September, contributed to the fall.

The average price for wholesale lamb on the East Coast was $1.40 at the end of October, 5 cents higher than the beginning of the month, and 5 cents higher than at the same time last year.

During the first week in October, an oversupply of heavy weight carcasses started to show up in the marketplace. This situation really took hold during the second week of the month when a 5 cent discount was placed on heavy weight carcasses. During the last half of the month 5 cent spreads appeared between light and middle weight and middle and heavy weight carcasses.

On the West Coast, wholesale prices were steady to firm during the month. At the beginning of the month, there was a 3 cent spread between light ans heavy carcasses in Los Angeles and a 1 cent spread in San Francisco. By the month's end, the spread had widened to 6 cents in both cities. The average wholesale price in Los Angeles and San Francisco rose 1 cent during the month, ending at $1.40 and $1.43 respectively.

Although wholesale prices on the East Coast were stronger during October, cut prices, particularly on middlemeat, were noticeably weaker. The downward price trend for middlemeat began in August. Before the price decline, racks had been as high as $4.60 and untrimmed loins as high as $2.82. At the end of the month, the average price for racks was $3.25 and $2.25 for loins. Although the price declines for racks and loins was quite pronounced, the decline follows trends from past years (see charts).

Legs and chucks were steady to stronger during most of the month with legs being quoted as high as $1.50 and chucks as high as 95 cents. Prices for both cuts softened a bit at the end of the month.

Live prices were fairly steady during October with the bulk of the prices in the $65-70 range. Some prices were a bit higher than this range in the East and Texas and a bit lower in the West, depending on the weighing conditions.

A few contracts for feedlot lambs were confirmed during October. The majority were out of Texas with delivery through January contracted at $74 with a 4 percent shrink, and $72-73 with a yield guarantee of 51 percent. Other lambs were contracted for January through March delivery at $72-72.50 with a guaranteed 51 percent yield. The only other contract confirmed was feedlot lambs from Minnesota for January delivery at $71 with 3 percent pencil shrink.

The wool market was quiet during October with only a few sales reported. Some graded original bag 62's sold for 72 cents with territory 60's at 70-73 cents grease FOB. A couple of loads of graded 62's went for $1.65 and 54's went for $1.25 clean delivered. A couple of fall clips with 58/60's from Idaho sold with a 53-55 percent yield for an average of 67 cents. Another clip the same grade and a 45 percent yield sold at 57.7 cents grease FOB.

There has been little shearing of feedlot lambs this year with prices for feedlot lamb wool down compared to last year. A few sales occurred during October with crossbred wools going for 55-62 cents and whiteface wool up to 65 cents with a few clips as high as 70 cents.

Australian wool auction prices continued to slip during the month with the market indicator falling 7 cents per kilo clean, due primarily to the steep downward trend of fine wool. Since the end of the 1984/85 marketing season the 19 micron category has fallen 301 cents per kilo clean (approximately 95 cents per pound).

The Commerce Department reported imports surged once again in September causing the merchandise trade deficit to swell to $15.56 billion. This means the decline of the dollar has not eased U.S. trade problems. Some experts feel the effects from a lower dollar will not be felt in the marketplace until late next year.

Case International 94 Series Tractors

Exclusive Intelligence Center makes you and your tractor more productive

The exclusive Intelligence Center enables you to work more efficiently by monitoring vital tractor functions. Travel speed, engine and PTO RPM, total acres worked, acres per hour and much more are available in instant digital readouts. The optional True Ground Speed Sensor even tells you the percent of the wheel slip so you can select the most efficient gear and weight your tractor properly. It all adds up to getting more work out of each hour of time and squeezing more work out of each gallon of fuel.

All this, plus: High-torque power that's teamed with a smooth 12-speed power shift transmission for a job-right speed on every job (24-speed power shift is optional for the 2394, 2594); CON TROL PFC hydraulics that reduce parasitic hp loss; and the comfort and convenience that only the Silent Guardian cab can provide.

Case International 1896 & 2096 Tractors

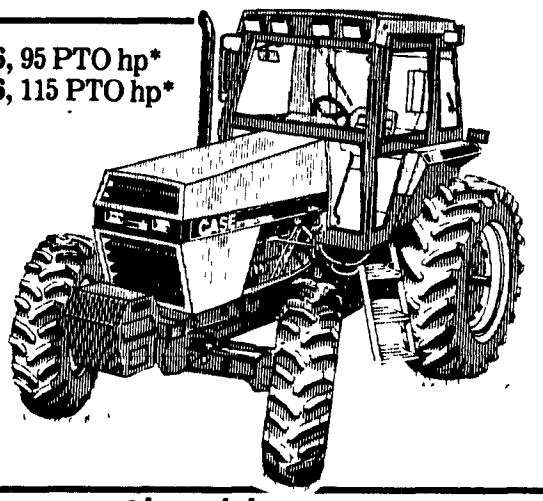
1896, 95 PTO hp*
2096, 115 PTO hp*



Field efficiency begins with modern engines that are the combination of proven diesel and turbocharging technology, computer-assisted design and advanced manufacturing techniques. The result: Exceptional lugging ability, excellent fuel efficiency, long-term reliability and very smooth operation.

Optional Mechanical Front Drive (MFD) provides extra traction and bonus pulling power in marginal conditions. It allows you to get many jobs started earlier and to finish sooner. You'll get more output from your implements; you'll accomplish more every day and squeeze more work out of each gallon of fuel.

All this plus advanced instrumentation that helps you work more efficiently and the extra convenience that only a Silent Guardian cab can provide are yours in Case 1896 and 2096 tractors.

Several In Stock!

Case International 4WD Tractors - Not Articulated

They offer more with 4-way selective steering and exclusive monitoring system that conquers any condition.

All four Case International 4-wheel drive tractors have the exclusive Intelligence Center This advanced monitoring system tells you engine and PTO RPM ground speed, acres worked per hour and much more at a glance Optional True Ground Speed Sensor tells you the percent of wheel slippage so you can weight your tractor correctly and choose the most efficient gear and speed

Exclusive Four-Way Selective Steering Is Also Standard
(1), Front-wheel steer as easy as your car (2), Rear-wheel steer for quick implement hook-ups (3), Coordinated steering lets you make sharp, full-power turns (4), Crab steering puts each tire in a separate track for maximum traction, especially important in sloping terrain

Silent Guardian Cab increases efficiency and productivity by providing a more comfortable environment Makes long days seem shorter

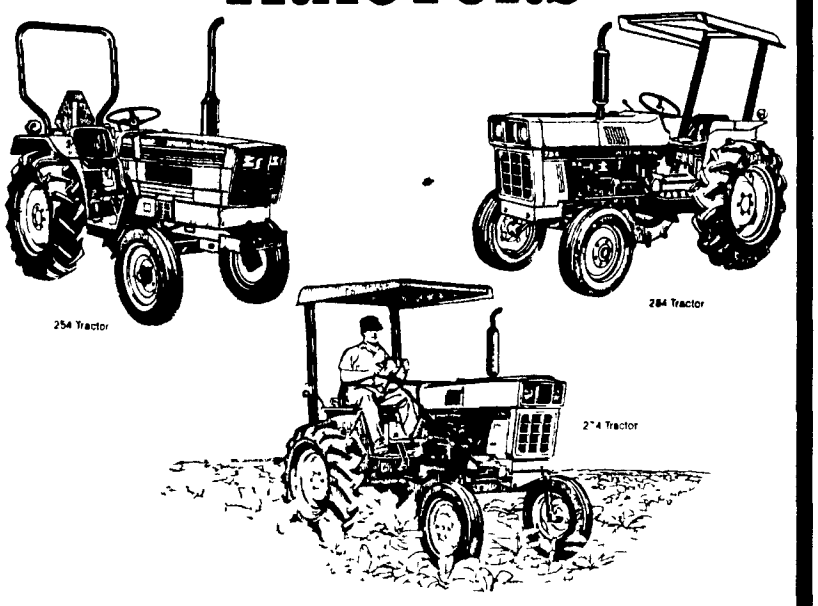
Every Farmer Should Have One

CASE IH 200 SERIES TRACTORS



They're compact, but surprisingly powerful to save you a lot of back-breaking work. Husky, 3-cylinder diesel engines give you the power and economy you need around the farmyard or in the city, to do all types of jobs.

These are true farm-style tractors with 3-point hitch, smooth shifting transmissions, hand and foot throttles, plus complete lighting and instrumentation packages.

The 540 RPM PTO is standard on all three models. The 244 and 254 also have an optional 1250 RPM front PTO. For extra power and flotation, Mechanical Front Drive (MFD) gives you full all-wheel power for greater traction.

A fresh team for today's farmer

See us for 200 Series tractors, plus a full line of matching equipment!

CORN DOWN? Worried About Custom Operators Getting Around To You?

CONSIDER THIS...

- Why spend $1,000's for custom combining and have nothing but your crop to show for it?
- Buy a combine priced below wholesale from Hoober's this year and harvest your own crop.
- This combine is already depreciated, so sell it next year for what you paid for it this year - all you're out is the interest.

Make Sense?

CALL US TODAY & BE HARVESTING YOUR CROP TOMORROW!

Mr. Cattleman:

We are about at the end of the growing season for Master Mix Beef Feeds Growing Ton Promotion. If you have not taken advantage of the program look at it again.

GROWING TON PROMOTION

Growing Season: September 1, 1985 - December 31, 1985

Yield Information:
Purchased at one time of qualifying feeds.

2.) 3.0 - 17.99 tons — 100 lbs./ton free
3.) 18 tons and above (one feed - one form) = 150 lbs./ton free

Harvesting Information:

1.) Free feed will be given at the time order is delivered.
2.) Free feed must contain the same medication as qualifying feed.
3.) The cost of medication in the free feed will be paid by the customer.
4.) This program may be discontinued without notice.

Now put a pencil to it. A 5 ton load of one feed in one form (unmedicated) earns you 100 lbs free with each ton. A feed selling at $160 per ton actually costs you only $152.40 for a savings of $38 on the 5-ton load. Can you use the money? Don't wait any longer. See your Master Mix dealer today.

* Check with your participating dealer for more details on qualifying products

LIVESTOCK LATEST

Will L-A-M-B spell relief?

With a depressed agricultural economy–and let's not be remiss by passing over our number one industry, dairying–Pennsylvania farmers are searching for relief, not to mention, a few bankers as well.

Until six months ago, lamb was no different than any other commercial red meat producing enterprise. For certain, there is reason to exercise caution, a time to become well informed, seek the facts, know your trade, establish some realistic interprise goals, and then be bold enough to invest and take action based on your confidence of successfully applying the principles of risk management. In essence, this is a capsule summary of what has evolved recently with Rocco Further Processing, Inc., an integrated poultry firm in Timberville, Va.

The firm has carefully surveyed and established the potential for lamb products, like poultry and fish, as a food that enjoys a positive image with the health professionals. Second, and as a consequence, "It is a favorite food with the young urban professionals who have the money to buy what they like," company president, Charles Strickler notes.

Following are comments and observations made from a recent regional meeting that myself and seven other Pennsylvanians attended and participated in October 21 and 22, in Harrisonburg, Virginia. Representatives from 15 eastern and mid-western states were present. The program focused on "Strategies for Expanding Sheep Production in the Eastern United States."

Brief Company History & Meeting Comments

The Rocco Further Processing Company is a family business started in the early 1940's as a local feed mill in Timberville, Va. Expansion during the mid-1950's involved integrating a poultry and later a turkey industry to where they are presently processing annually, approximately 12 million chickens and eight million turkeys. They attest to being the largest turkey processor in the world, reporting over 200 million pounds marketed annually.

In the fall of 1984 they purchased a local bankrupt hog and beef processing facility for the purpose of both expanding certain turkey convenience food items and the possibility of investing in lamb processing.

Their decision to move into lamb processing was based on two factors: 1) "Potentials" or deficient supply relative to demand revealed by the recent Winrock International Executive Summary, and 2) after analyzing consumer trends the company is confident lamb products are applicable to the recent, Yanklovich, Skelly and White study on "Red Meat Consumption Trends in the United States." Briefly, the study revealed there are five major meat consumer types. The following identifies each group and the precentage change between consumer types over a 3 year span.

Type Consumer	Lamb Consumption Potentials	Percent Change 1982		1985
1. Meat lovers	—	22%		10%
2. Creative cooks	+	17	(+ 6)	23
3. Price driven	–	25		23
4. Active lifestyle	+++	16	(+10)	26
5. Health oriented	++	17	(+ 7)	24

Rocco is projecting that, with their existing poultry processing technology, they can make lamb products appeal to three of the five categories listed. At the present per capita consumption of 1.5 pounds, they need only to increase that level to 0.5 pounds in order to market some 112 million extra pounds annually. They believe that volume to be a conservative estimate yet adequate to make the venture profitable in their judgement. They firmly believe the present red meat consumption trends are real and will continue to spread even more than indicated by the mentioned study. They predict lamb will replace, rather than add to, any calculated increases in total per capita red meat consumption.

The plant started processing lamb in July, 1985, and presently is up to 600 head per day, and hopes to reach 1000 per day by the end of the year. The facility has the capability of handling 10,000 lambs per week, which they hope to meet within the next three years.

What kind of lamb do they want? A market lamb with a live weight of 110-117 lbs., having 0.15" backfat, less than three percent kidney fat, and a yield grade 2 carcass weighing 50 to 55 pounds. To give producer an incentive for breeding and marketing quality lambs, company policy is to purchase market lambs only on a quality and yield grade basis. This approach has not been advocated in lamb marketing and processing, yet it is surely needed if we are to respond as an industry to producing lambs with a higher red meat-to-fat ratio; something the consumer has been telling us for some time.

What kind of breeding ewe should you use? Seasonality of lamb production, and low lambing rates are two major production traits that need attention in developing a profitable sheep enterprise. For this reason, they are encouraging producers to select commercial ewe breeds that have out-of-season breeding capability and are prolific. Such ewes would be predominantly crossbred whiteface sheep with a major percentage of Rambouillet, Dorset, Targhee or Merino blood one-quarter Finnsheep. The Finnsheep breeding adds reproductive potential to the ewe breed. The terminal mating with a blackface breed such as Suffolk, Shropshire, Oxford and Hampshire rams, would produce your market lamb.

Commercial sheep producers owning other whiteface breeding stock (wool or dual-purpose breed types) that do not transmit out-of-season trait back to their flock by crossbreeding with one of the wool breeds mentioned earlier. Some Finnsheep breeding (25 percent) would be introduced using performance tested percentage rams from purebred parents to produce the desired prolific crossbred ewe. The same ram breeds would be used as mentioned earlier to produce the terminal crossbred market lamb.

Dennis Miller sheep procurement manager, shared concern that certain purebred lines were too extreme, and presently useless to the commercial sheep industry. He stated that Rocco was in the "business of promoting and producing lamb products defined to be marketable in today's meat counter. To be of service, the purebred sheep industry, as a whole, must work harder at breeding more functional sheep and give less attention to the unproductive traits such as height, ear shape, body style and attractiveness.

"How many of our industry's 'purebred sports fans' have taken time to read and make a serious commitment to the genetic improvement needs outlined in the recent ASPC industry report? Industry growth will parallel the application of genetic factors that focus on producing a winning product in the commercial market place, not abstract show ring rhetoric," Miller said.

The company is presently offering five different contracts, three which provide Rocco-owned sheep: 1) breeding ewes, 2) lamb stocker and 3) a lamb finishing contract. The remaining two are independent, open market/forward price contracts for feeder and market lambs. Miller stated that their present producer list requesting contract sheep since opening this past July now exceeds 2,000 persons, making present producer requests greater than their available contract sheep supply.

"If this is any indication of what is to come, we are doing something right," commented Miller. "When Rocco started a similar expansion effort with turkeys we had less than 100 percent requests within the same time span."

A 200-mile radius has been defined as the primary working area for the first three years. The projected lamb numbers necessary to maintain peak processing is estimated at 500,000 head. The corresponding ewe number was quoted at 300,000 head. Taking into account the existing regional ewe numbers there remains a 220,000-head deficient. It is estimated that 65,000 to 70,000 additional breeding ewes could be located in the western, south central and eastern regions of Pennsylvania. Corresponding market lamb numbers could exceed 118,000 head annually.

The company is investing two million dollars in the sheep expansion program over the next three years. An evaluation at that time will determine any future decision to either continue or abandon the project.

Extension's Educational Role

Considerable discussion both within the open forum and a more private meeting with company president, Charles "Chip" Strickler centered on institutional program support relative to research and Extension educational needs. Instutional leadership in the areas of sheep related research and Extension education were viewed as important to the total effort of bringing profitability back into agriculture. Farm management and animal production records programs, predator control, establishing animal/forage systems, animal health, animal breeding and selection programs, fencing and facilities, ewe and lamb nutrition, and proper sheep management were some areas defined for Extension education and demonstration-type programs.

The necessary ingredients needed to put the sheep industry into a growth phase are either present or being developed: 1) a market, 2) an interested and cooperative clientele, 3) readily applicable technology and 4) assigned time and professional staff commitment.

The Pennsylvania sheep industry leaders in cooperation with agri-business and Penn State Extension Service have organized a special meeting to be held on December 10 and 11, in Harrisburg. The primary objective is to inform all interested agriculture industry leaders, PDA departmental officials, legislators, educators and agri-business personnel on strategies for expansion of the sheep production in the eastern United States. Details on this meeting are available by calling Clair Engle, PSU, (814) 863-3669.

Labor Management with Sheep

In the Northeast, sheep farming is generally a part-time enterprise. Sheep farms are established to satisfy a number of needs varying from a simple desire to work with livestock to a mechanism by which family income can be supplemented using available resources. No matter what the reason for getting into the sheep business, labor input should be kept at a minimum.

There are many reasons why labor must be efficiently used in these types of operations. Since one or possibly both owners have a non-farm job, there is very little time available for extensive daily tasks. Most extra chores, if possible, will be delegated to either weekends or vacations. If the routine work can be kept to a minimum this will permit more time for critical activities such as lambing, planning, record keeping and marketing.

Not having several hours of chores facing an individual when he returns to the farm makes the operation more pleasant and definitely more feasible. Sheep are animals which can thrive in a properly managed low-labor operation. If labor, probably even more than capital, can be kept under control, there will be a much higher probability of a successful and long-term sheep operation.

In most sheep operations, the two large consumers of labor are feeding and lambing. If these two areas are properly managed there can be a significant reduction of labor without major capital expense.

Feeding is the greatest labor consumer and is usually the main daily task. Whenever possible, sheep should be permitted to gather their own feed. Alternate-day feeding during certain periods of the production cycle should be considered. It is labor saving and may greatly improve the efficiency of feed utilization. Intensive grazing systems continually demonstrate that sheep become considerably less discriminating when grazing pressure is high.

Lambing is an area of high labor intensity and is the most critical period in any sheep operation. Knowing when lambing will start and end is extremely important in allotting labor efficiently. Lambing should occur between two set points in time, with four to six weeks being a satisfactory goal. Proper planning and preparation before lambing will also help reduce the hectic activity of this chore. Having all the equipment ready will reduce frustrations and improve lambing success.

Efforts put forth to reduce labor will pay dividends. Lower labor requirements will permit more time for critical management activities which will improve the profitability of the enterprise. Reduction of routine-type chores will make the sheep enterprise more enjoyable and insure its long term success, claims Dr. James W. Hayes, Professor of Animal Sciences with the State University of New York at Cobleskill.

Dry milk sold to Austria

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced a sale of more than $6.3 million worth of surplus U.S. dairy products to Austria.

"This is an indication of the Administration's intensive effort to stimulate U.S. agricultural exports," Block said.

The sale of nonfat dry milk was made by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), Block said.

The sale to Austria consisted of 39,682,800 pounds of standard grade nonfat dry milk. It was sold to the Osterreichischer Molkereiund Kasereiverband (OEMOLK) for use as a calf milk replacer. OEMOLK has an option under the sales agreement to take an additional quantity of up to 33,069,000 pounds.

Deliveries, to begin in December, will be made through March, Block said.

Borderland Black available nationally

BUFFALO, NY. — Borderland black bird repellent, used by corn growers to protect some three million pounds of corn hybrids last year, is now available nationally, according to Arthur C. Reimherr, vice-president of Borderland Products.

Marketed for the past several years to corn growers in the East and South, on-farm use has shown Borderland Black to be extremely effective in discouraging crows and other seed-eating birds. The product, easily applied in the seed box at a grower cost of less than $2.50 per acre, is packaged in convenient 8 oz. units, each sufficient to treat one bushel of seed corn.

New AI federation choses name, marketing directors

LANCASTER, PA – Federated Genetics has been selected as the name for the marketing partnership of AI cooperatives that includes Atlantic Breeders of Lancaster, PA; Eastern AI of Ithaca, NY; and Louisiana Animal Breeders of Baton Rouge, LA. Headquarters for Federated's operations will be Atlantic's marketing/distribution center constructed six years ago at 1581 Apollo Drive, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Plans are progressing for the three-member federation to be functioning in January 1986, when new sire information will help determine the combined offering of AI-proven sires. Federated will present a unified selection of bulls identified by stud code number 8.

A federation Council–consisting of the Presidents, Vice Presidents, and General Managers of the three member cooperatives–guides formation of the new organization. Detailed plans and administration are being handled by an Executive Committee composed of the three General Managers.

Council Chairman Jim Mellinger of Eastern has announced that Peter Dupuis is the Director of Marketing for Federated Genetics. Dupuis has been Member Sales Manager for Eastern since 1980, following earlier experience as regional manager, California division manager, area manager, and AI technician at Eastern. He received his bachelor of science degree, majoring in animal science, from the University of Massachusetts in 1969 and has done post-graduate study in reproductive physiology. He is a native of Chicopee, MA.

Dupuis will be responsible for carrying out the federation's marketing program outside of member service areas. His duties include domestic and international sales, fiscal planning, and administering advertising, inventory, and shipping.

Michael Sleeper, Atlantic's Marketing Director for nearly four years, has been appointed Federated's International Sales Manager. He will be responsible for export sales and will assist Dupuis in directing the marketing program. Born at Rochester, Minnesota, he earned a bachelor's degree in animal science from the University of Minnesota and was Marketing Specialist for the former Minnesota Valley Breeders' Association.

Federated Genetics represents combined sales of 2.5 million breeding units. In addition to traditional membership areas of the three cooperatives, domestic sales representatives now serve central and southern California, southern Wisconsin, northern Illinois, northeastern Iowa, southeastern Minnesota, and Florida. Additional sales representative areas will be developed in the U.S.

Distributors of Federated semen include: 21st Century Genetics, Shawano, WI; General Genetics, Sand Lake, MI; and Topline AI Service, Knoxville, TN. Federated semen will continue to be marketed through World-Wide Sires in Europe, Asia, and Africa, and through representatives in Central and South America.

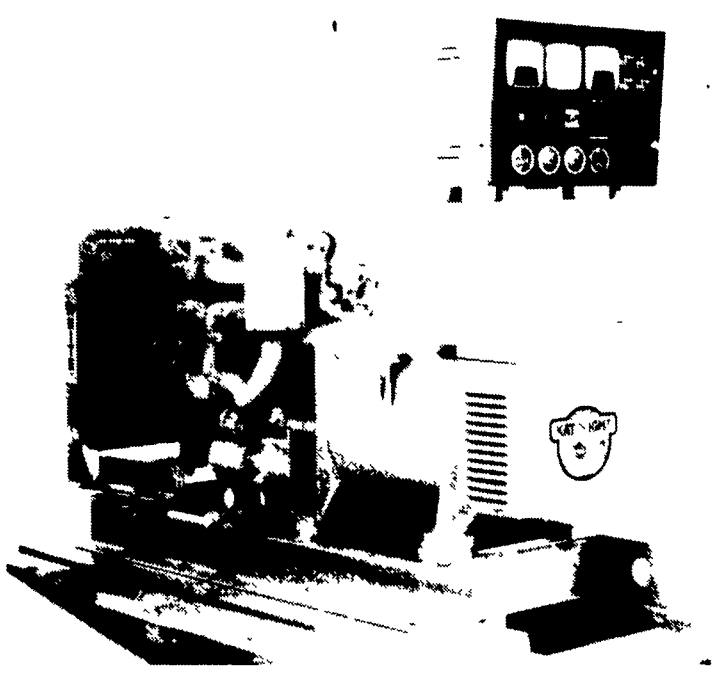
Katolight adds 'Guardian'



MANKATO, MN. — Katolight Corporation introduces "The Guardian", a 42 KW, 3600 RPM liquid cooled; Gasoline/Natural Gas/or LP Gas engine/generator set.

The Guardian is an economically priced, technically advanced, engine/generator set designed to perform as a standby AC power system.

Its 3600 RPM operating speed helps it to achieve a 15% greater motor starting capacity, less voltage fluctuation and faster voltage and frequency response than a conventional engine/generator set.

The Guardian weighs up to 30% less, by combining a new 65 HP, industrial duty, White engine with a 42 KW, single bearing, close coupled, 3600 RPM generator.

Katolight Corporation backs the Guardian with the same warranty offered on 1800 RPM units in standby applications. In addition, the Guardian is PAC certified (Performance Assured Certification), assured to perform as rated under typical field conditions.

The Guardian is serviceable by a network of Katolight sales and service stations throughout the United States.

Gehl adds manure-spread machinery

WEST BEND, WI — Gehl Company has announced the acquisition of one company and certain assets of another which will broaden the company's product line to include manure spreaders and waste management equipment.

Being purchased by Gehl is Hedlund Manufacturing Company, Inc., with plants based in Boyceville, WI, and Myerstown, PA, and certain product lines of Kasten Manufacturing, Allenton, WI.

The products produced by Hedlund are marketed under the name Hedlund/Martin. Equipment involved includes a series of manure spreaders designed for general waste handling as well as liquid types of manure and sludge. Also included in the product group is manure loading equipment.

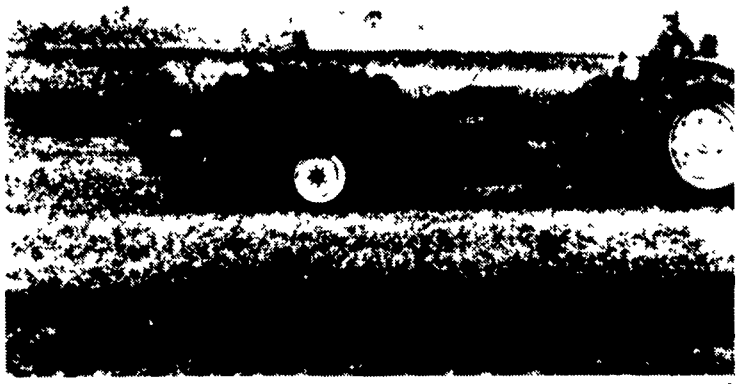
The purchase of certain Kasten Manufacturing assets includes a line of box-type manure spreaders. They will be in production at the Gehl Company, West bend plant by the end of this year and will have new design features such as a specially constructed floor with Gel-coat™ protection.

"Both of these product lines are highly engineered equipment, designed and built to handle manure efficiently and economically under a wide range of conditions," states Gehl President/CEO Bernard L. Nielsen. "It's equipment that allows farmers to improve the cost/benefit ratio of their manure management system. These acquisitions are more than just an expansion of our product lineup. They're an extension of the service that Gehl dealers can offer farmers."

The company unveiled the new product lines to its field sales force during a week-long North American sales meeting held recently in West Bend. All new products are in production or will be for the forthcoming use season. "In addition to these new products, we're also introducing a complete new line of three forage boxes, a new 2,050-pound rated industrial skid loader and new fingerwheel rakes, giving our sales force a total of 23 new products," Nielsen continued.

Nielsen refers to the acquisitions and new product introductions as "complements to our growing line of equipment for livestock producers. This line already includes forage harvesting, feedmaking, materials handling and havmaking equipment. The additions of the Hedlund and Kasten products, as well as our own new products, is tangible evidence of how Gehl Company is standing behind its creed - 'Investing today in the future of agriculture.'"

Gehl Company has announced the addition of manure spreaders to its total product line as a result of acquisitions of Hedlund Manufacturing Co., Inc., and particular assets of Kasten Manufacturing. The unit shown here is one of the new "300" series machines, designed to spread manure of all types of consistencies. Gehl Company manufactures a complete line of forage harvesting, materials handling, feed making and haymaking equipment and is based in West Bend, WI.



The new Gehl "100" series features a special gel-coated floor liner that reduces force needed to break loose apron frozen to the floor, and keeps frozen manure moving smoothly.

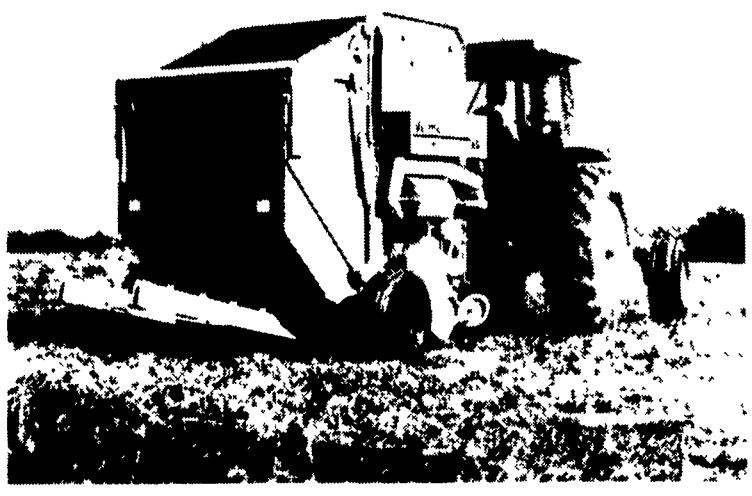
PELLA, IA. — A giant round hay baler that automatically distributes hay evenly across the full width of the bale is now being offered by Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

The new Vermeer 605J Baler utilizes a computerized monitoring system (VCS system III) that receives sensory data as the bale is being formed and then signals the weave pattern of the baler, the automatic twine tie, "near full" and "full bale" indicator lights and the automatic gate close indicator. As a result, a tractor operator can drive the entire length of a hay field straddling the windows...without weaving the tractor and without worrying about hay formation, size of bale, start up, unloading, closing the date or clearing the bale.

"Essentially, what we have designed is a baler that thinks," according to Lyle Borg, Vermeer vice-president in charge of marketing. "We've taken the worry and guesswork out of baling and replaced it with a system that's designed to produce perfectly-formed, solid, round bales everytime."

The Vermeer 605J features a positive drive chain-type kicker that rolls out the package of hay eliminating the need to back up the baler to drop a bale. Air cylinders on both sides of the unit offer an infinite range of pressure settings ensuring uniform density throughout the entire bale. The unit also comes equipped with Waltersheid PTO, 4-ball twine box, rubber-mounted pickup tines, an instand-start feed opening and 6½" wide/2-ply belts that twist to eliminate build up on the ends.



The 605J baler from Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

The 5,075 lb. machine is built with heavy gauge unibody side panels, a split tail gate section that's totally reinforced with formed steel channel, 3560 lb. rated axles, and 6-bolt-hubs/spindles. A #80 roller chain runs the mechanical drive; 1½" sealed, radial ball bearings are built into all drive and idler rollers, the bottom drum, the starter roller and pick up pivot (1¼" on the pickup spider). A rugger lower drive knife handles all types of crops, including soybean residue or corn stalks.

The 605J is capable of producing a bale that weighs up to 2200 lbs.*, measuring 5 ft. wide, 6 ft. in. diameter

Company to back dairy research

WAYNE, N.J. — American Cyanamid Company has established an annual award for "significant research and/or educational contributions, including technology transfer and extension, in the field of milk production."

The first Cyanamid award, which carries a $1,500 stipend, will be presented next year at the American Dairy Science Association's 1986 annual meeting to be held June 23-26 at Davis, Ca.

Award recipients will be selected by the ADSA.

"We want to recognize outstanding scientists and their achievements, and advance the scientific stature of the dairy industry and ADSA," said Alberto E. Adam, DVM and Cyanamid Agricultural Division vice president.

Adam explained that the Cyanamid award would recognize achievements in the development and application of new technologies, including biotechnology; nutritional and management programs applying new technologies; application of advances in milk synthesis and lactational physiology; and identifying appropriate applications and economics of use for new technologies. This award also provided an opportunity to recognize those involved in determining or aiding socioeconomic adjustments in the dairy industry resulting from the application of new technologies.

To be eligible for the Cyanamid award, ADSA members must have made their contributions advancing industry knowledge within five years of nomination, and have been a member for the last five years.

Nominations for the Cyanamid dairy science award can be made by ADSA members, and should be submitted to the American Dairy Science Association, 309 West Clark Street, Champaign, Illinois 61820.

Purina sponsors FFA judging

KANSAS CITY, MO. — This month 132 FFA youths have the unique opportunity to participate in the National Livestock Judging Contest sponsored by Purina Mills, Inc.

The judging, to be held during the 58th National FFA Convention this week in Kansas City, Mo., allows 44 three-member judging teams representing as many states to test their knowledge of livestock selection and grading using animals provided by farmers in Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska.

Purina Mills, a long-standing sponsor of the event, will provide funds for the administration of the contest, travel expenses, an awards breakfast, trophies and medals and cash awards to winning teams and high scoring individuals.

"The future success of agriculture and of the livestock industry depends on these young leaders," says W.M. Jones, president of Purina Mills. "Our interest lies in developing this leadership and the livestock judging provides an important training ground for potential leaders. The more they learn about the industry and develop leadership qualities, the more the industry itself is enhanced," by emphasized.

"The young people are the leading edge of the future of agriculture," Jones continued, "and Purina has a solid commitment to enhance their growth. We are pleased to serve as the sponsor of this important program."

In addition to the recognition the members will receive, the competition will enable them to get hands-on experience in judging marketing and breeding animals. "As in all national contests," says Ted Amick, Program Specialist for FFa, "this contest provides incentive to all vocational ag students to take a serious look at the livestock industry as a future career. Especially now, when youth involvement in agricultural careers is declining, the industry welcomes efforts by companies like Purina to reverse this trend."

In order to reach the national competition level, FFa members have been involved in contests at both local and state levels. The average team members have spent 50 hours preparing for this national contest, in addition to at least 100 hours spent in training for the local competitions. The contest will consist of judging beef cattle, sheep, hogs and market cattle.

AMCO introduces 'SUPER-TILL'

YAZOO CITY, MD — AMCO Products, Portable Elevator Division, has introduced three new series of do-alls and seedbed conditioners for one-pass reduced tillage operations in perparing fields for planting. In sizes from 13' to 26', these "SUPER-TILL" models are designed to save time, fuel, and labor by performing several tillage operations at the same time.

Farmers wishing to economize their operations will have a choice of three basic series and twelve models from which to choose. The STO series is designed to work on bedded or ridged fields.

This pull-type do-all features a five-bladed spiral reel for chopping residue, pulverizing clods and incorporating chemicals in the bed. The reel is followed by five independent rows of heavy spike tooth harrows for additional incorporation and pulverizing action.

Two series are available with either "Live Leaf" heavy duty field cultivator shanks with five-year warranty of S-Tine Danish shanks with three-year warranty. The ST2 series offers a choice of either shank on two rows mounted forward of the spiral reel. The ST3 offers the shank choice on three rows mounted forward of the reel. Both shank models offer the greatest trash flow clearance available on the market. All shanks are mounted on 3" frame members.

All models feature "UNI-RAIL" tubular main frames with integral construction for frame strength with up to 60 times greater torsion resistance than some competitive models. SUPER-TILL main frames are fully adjustable for fine tuning performance to achieve desired field results.

The new SUPER-TILLS offer the greatest advancement in seedbed conditioner designs in many years. For more information contact Mike Hodgson, AMCO Products, P.O. Box 1107, Yazoo City, MS 39194.

Savings Bond sales up

WASHINGTON – Sales of Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds increased 62 percent in September, to $460 million, compared to September, 1984. Redemptions totaled $380 million, 20 percent below last year. It was the third consecutive month--and the fourth month in five–that sales exceeded redemptions.

Bond sales increased by 29 percent during Fiscal Year (FY) 1985, to a total of $5.03 billion. It was the highest total sales year for Bonds since 1979. Redemptions for the year declined by six percent, to $5.68 billion. With the addition of accrued interest on outstanding Bonds, the total value of Savings Bonds held by Americans increased six percent, to $78.24 billion.

The end of FY 1985 also marked the conclusion of the 1985 payroll savings effort in 43,000 workplaces nationwide. Preliminary results show that campaign has succeeded in adding more than 1.6 million new savers and savers that increased existing Bond allotments.

"I am delighted with the success of the 1985 campaign, both in terms of dollar sales and payroll savings activity," said Katherine D. Ortega, Treasurer of the United States and National Director of the Savings Bonds program. "The results show that Americans are getting the message that today's Savings Bonds are a good deal for both savers and investors. We in Treasury are grateful to the thousands of volunteers who worked so hard in the campaign, and to the media that did so much to alert Americans to the value of Savings Bonds."

James F. Bere, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Borg-Warner Corp., Chicago, and 1985 Chairman of the U.S. Savings Bonds Volunteer Committee, also hailed the results. "I firmly believe that today's Savings Bonds are an investment of unmatched security and offer a return competitive with the most sophisticated savings vehicles. I am glad to have had that view endorsed by the American people."

New Series EE Bonds earn market-based interest rates if held five years or longer. The current semiannual interest rate, in effect through April 30, 1986, is 8.36 percent. The latest rate information is available on the toll-free Bondline, 1-800-US BONDS. In metropolitan Washington, DC, the number is USA-8888.

Sheep from Maine to Illinois win in Open Show

STAFF

HARRISBURG — Breeders from Maine to the Midwest flocked to Harrisburg's Farm Show Complex on Nov. 8 for the kick-off of the Keystone International Livestock Expo's massive breeding sheep show. Competition was stiff, with many state fair champions from the East and Midwest vying for top honors.

Friday's action saw five breeds in the running, with a Lancaster County ram taking KILE's first champion rosette.

Hampshire

Bo Jangles, a Hampshire ram bred and owned by Tim and Sarah Fleener of Lancaster, showed judge Bud Westlake of Marysville, Ohio, what he was looking for in a blue-ribbon Hampshire ram.

Bo Jangles toppled both the Maryland and Ohio State Fair champs in Friday's competition. His dam was KILE's 1983 reserve champion, as well as the 1983 and '84 Farm Show champion.

The show's top Hampshire ewe was shown by Krista Bedinger, daughter of Charles and Nancy Bedinger of Catlin, Ill. The top ewe was sired by Perkins, Bedinger's well-known 1983 International Hampshire champion.

Corriedale

The champion Corriedale ram and ewe were both owned by Hal and Carole Walker of Valley Lamb and Wool Co., Middletown, Del. Shown by Bob and Suzie Leib, the champion ram was a March yearling that had taken top honors at the Maryland State Fair.

Walker Corriedales also placed number one and two in ewe competition, with the two ewes swapping their Virginia State Fair champion and reserve honors. Both ewes were part of the third-place breeders flock at this year's Eastern States Expo in Massachusetts. Judging the Corriedale show was G.L.M. Chappell of Lexington, KY.

Oxford

A yearling Oxford ram owned by Clarence Williamson of Xenia, Ohi, repeated his 1984 KILE championship win. "My grandfather started with Oxfords in 1884," said Williamson, pointing out that the family is into its second century of breeding Oxfords. A homegrown entry, the top ram also took the champion rosette at the Ohio State Fair.

"We did pretty well today," summed up Williamson after judge Chappell singled out his ewe for champion honors as well. "She hasn't been doing too well, but I've felt all along she was a good ewe," said Williamson. Williamson's top ewe was also a homebred entry.

Dorset

Birchwood Farm came all the way from Hinckley, IL, to win the Dorset ewe competition. Beaten only once, this ewe was also the West Virginia and Maryland State Fairs bred-and-owned champion.

For his top Dorset ram, Bud Westlake went to an entry owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Downsbrough of Windswept Farm, State College.

Shropshire

A north country ram made his mark at KILE when the February Shropshire lamb owned by Peter D'Ambra of Skowhegan, Maine was singled out for champion honors by judge Chappell. The ram was also champion at the New York and Ohio State Fairs.

Last year's Farm Show champion Shropshire ewe came back to Harrisburg to win top honors in her breed show at KILE. The homegrown yearling was owned by Kenneth Moore of Rome, the durable Shropshire breeder who showed KILE's first champion Shrop in 1957.

Rambouillet

Two Pennsylvania exhibitors garnered all the champion honors in Sunday's Rambouillet competition.

A Bradford countian, Kenneth T. Moore showed his homebred spring and fall ram lambs for the champion and reserve ram titles. His fall ewe lamb also received the judge's nod for the reserve champion ewe honors.

Of course Moore and his daughter, Doris Powell, have won champion honors many times in KILE competition, but this year the veterans were beat out in the Rambouillet show ring by young Billy George Leib, who showed his Casley's 2837, the top yearling ewe, to the division ewe championship.

Following the show, his mother, Suzie Leib, said that four-and-a-half-year-old Billy was also premier exhibitor in breed competition at this year's Big E in Massachusetts. While his parents also breed Dorsets and Columbias, the Mechanicsburg youngster has 16 Rambouillet ewes in his name.

Southdown

The Southdown competition once again came down to an exhibition by perennial "premier exhibitor" W.G. Carpenter and Sons of Jefferson, Md. In addition to capturing the champion ram and reserve champion ram ribbons, the Carpenter clan also swept three ewe classes and the reserve champion ewe rosette.

Doreen FitzPatrick of Shamrock Farms holds the champion Suffolk ewe.

Suffolk

Meanwhile, judge Bud Westlake awarded the champion ewe ribbon to Shamrock Farms of Wayland, NY while giving reserve champion ewe and premier exhibitor honors to Dr. Huntingdon Sheldon of South Forks Suffolks, Shelburne, Vt.

Cheviot

Open breeding sheep competition continued on Monday, with judge Ron Guenther naming champions in four divisions.

In the Cheviot division, he selected a ewe owned by Mike Koehler of Schnecksville. "She hasn't been beaten yet," Koehler said of his champion, purchased in June at the National Cheviot Sale from the Homer Long Family of Ballard, W.Va. Koehler has about 20 Cheviots and 60 Dorsets at home.

The champion ram belonged to Kevin and Malcolm Koontz of Bedford. Judge Guenther selected this homebred ram out of a Homer Long Buck over a ram owned by Kenrick and Kathy Smith of Jeromesville, OH. The Koontz brothers have about 60 Suffolk and Cheviot ewes on their Circle K Farm.

Columbia

Richard and Mary Ann Johnson of Lakewood, NJ, dominated the Columbia division, taking champion ewe and ram. Both homebred lambs, the winning pair had claimed top honors at the Flemington Fair earlier this year.

The Johnsons have about 40 head of Columbias and Hampshires on their Hyline Farm. The family was especially pleased with their performance at this year's KILE, since it is the first year they have exhibited homebred Columbias.

Merino

Following their reserve win in the Cheviot show, Kenrick and Kathy Smith went on to bigger and better things in Monday's Merino competition. The Smith's led their homebred fall ram lamb into the championship spot and also earned the premier exhibitor honors in the Merino show.

With champion and reserve ribbons from the Ohio and Kentucky State Fairs, the Smiths were pleased to add KILE trophies to their showcase. The Jeromesville, Ohio, family has three purebred flocks of Cheviot, Dorsets and Merinos.

Showing the champion Merino ewe were Charles and Barbara Platt, Gettysburg. Their Platt 398 yearling was also champion ewe at this year's York Fair. "But this is the first time we've had a champion here," remarked Barbara about their KILE win.

Romney

Rounding out the open breeding sheep competition at KILE, the Romney competition was dominated by John and Jean Woodward of Sabillasville, in Frederick County, Md. Their homebred Hemlock Hill entries took the champion ewe, reserve champion ram and premier exhibitor honors.

G. Bellairs and Family, Clarkston, Mich., showed their spring lamb for the Romney ram championship. As president of the eastern Romney breeders organization, Gloria Bellairs was instrumental in having the Romney show added to KILE competition about four years ago.

Youthful breeders take championships in sheep show

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — Junior sheep breeders got their chance to exhibit their finest animals in the Keystone International Livestock Exposition showring Sunday, when they competed for championships in six breed divisions.

Pennsylvania's Margaret Herr topped the Dorset show again this year, claiming champion ram and ewe, as well as reserve champion ewe. The 18-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon R2, Margaret is a familiar face in Dorset competition and has been showing sheep for as long as she can remember.

The champion ewe, a homebred yearling ewe, was last year's Farm Show champion. Also a homebred animal, the champion ram came to KILE with champion laurels from the Ohio State Fair. Margaret will exhibit him at Farm Show early next year.

The reserve champion Dorset ram went to Wade Brothers of Greenville, Va.

In the Hampshire division Rebecca Hope of Knoxville, Md. took home the champion ewe ribbon with a homebred spring ewe lamb. The 14-year-old daughter of Marvin and Betty Hope, Rebecca also showed the reserve champion ewe and reserve champion ram.

However, Traci Bacome of Columbus Grove, Ohio, edged out Rebecca to claim the champion ram with her homebred spring ram lamb. The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bacome, Traci said earlier this year her ram was named champion in the open and junior shows at the Ohio State Fair. Her family has about 60 Hampshire and Suffolk brood ewes on their farm.

Another Ohio youth claimed the top spot in the Oxford division of Sunday's junior show. Thirteen-year-old Billy Dean of Jamestown, Ohio, showed his yearling ewe to the championship. The ewe was purchased at the National Oxford Sale last year from Jack Kochert of Ovine Acres, Tippecanoe, Ind.

The champion ram belonged to Anita Stoddard of Kingston, N.Y. The 15-year-old daughter of Marvin and Marguerite Stoddard, Anita edged out Kurt Johnson for the top spot with a homebred spring ram lamb.

Kurt Johnson, Alliance, Ohio, took home both the reserve champions in the Oxford Show.

Robert Dinsmore, Jefferson, Md., dominated the Shropshire division, claiming both champion ram and ewe. The 10-year-old son of Bob and Charlotte Dinsmore, Robert said he was very pleased his entries did so well.

Robert's ewe was a homebred yearling ewe, while his champion ram, a spring ram lamb, was purchased from Harvey Miller, Damascus, Md.

Tracy Frantz, Schnecksville, showed both reserve champions in the Shropshire show.

In Southdown competition, Lehigh County FFA claimed the champion ewe for the second consecutive year. The chapter purchased and raised 42 lambs this year. They bought their champion ewe from W.G. Carpenter of Jefferson, Md.

The champion ram belonged to Aaron Humes of Allentown. The 17-year-old son of Mary Ellen Humes, Aaron owns four Southdown lambs which he keeps at the vo-tech school. He also showed the reserve champion ewe.

This year's Suffolk show saw top honors bestowed on Rachael Hixenbaugh of Beaver. The 17-year-old daughter of Joe and Kathy Hixenbaugh, Rachael showed last year's Farm Show champion ewe to the show's top spot. Although she has received a lot of offers for her homebred yearling ewe, Rachael said she plans to hold onto her winner for at least a while longer. Next week, Rachael will take her champion on to competition in Louisville, Ky.

She also showed the champion ram, and the reserve champion ewe and ram.

Show judge was G.L.M. Chappell of Lexington, Ky.

Hesston to sponsor rodeo

HESSTON, KS – Hesston Corporation and its participating farm equipment dealers will present a two-hour, prime-time telecast of the National Finals Rodeo from Las Vegas, Nev., with same day coverage. Viewers will be seeing the final world championship round, Sun., Dec. 15, via a special live tape delay on most U.S. stations. More than 200 stations across North America will participate in this special Hesston Rodeo TV Network broadcast.

For the first time, the NFR–the "Super Bowl" of ProRodeo–will be held in Las Vegas at the Thomas and Mack Center sports arena. The telecast will feature top Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (P.R.C.A.) contestants vying for world champion titles in six standard rodeo events, plus Women's Professional Rodeo Association (W.P.R.A.) barrel racing. The 1985 NFR purse exceeds $1,800,000, the largest in rodeo history.

This 27th annual NFR will feature the season's top money winners in calf roping, steer wrestling, saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, bull riding, women's barrel racing and the world's top team roping duos.

This is the 12th consecutive year that Hesston Corporation and nearly 1,000 participating Hesston Farm Equipment dealers across the United States and Canada have sponsored coverage of the NFR final championship round.

Penn State, Virginia 4-H'er secure market lamb honors

Andrea Sellers, a 4-H'er from Churchville, Va., swept the junior market lamb championships at KILE. Helping Andrea is Greg Hevner.

Open Market Lambs

Dick Kuzemchak, shepherd for the Penn State University flock, was modest, but admittedly pleased, when judge Ron Guenther of Columbus, Ohio, selected the college's first-place Suffolk as the 1985 open market lamb champion.

"We had a lot of hopes for him," said Kuzemchak about the winning wether. "He was exceptional, a pretty good lamb."

The university maintains three flocks, a commercial, and one each of purebred Suffolks and Dorsets. Because the flocks are used primarily for teaching and research, a show win like the KILE championship is a real bonus.

"We're not geared to showing," said Kuzemchak, "so it's a good opportunity if we can get out and do well (in a show)."

As well showing the champion individuals, the Penn State shepherd also exhibited the top pen of three Suffolks for the open reserve championship.

The reserve champion market lamb was a Hampshire shown by KILE veteran Russell Johnson, of Johnson Brothers, Hillsboro, Ohio. They had the champion market lamb last year.

An exhibitor at KILE for 26 years, Johnson estimated that he's earned the champion lamb honors or had the champion carcass at least half of those years.

The champion pen of three market lambs came from Maple Grove Farm, Washington Court House, Ohio. Kevin and and Sarah Kuykendall showed the three winning Dorsets for owners Phil and Mary Grover, and daughters Carole and Cathy.

Although they exhibited the reserve champion at the Ohio State Fair this year, this is the first time the Grovers have picked up a wether championship in KILE competition.

Junior Market Lambs

Andrea Sellers, a 13-year-old 4-H'er from Churchville, Va., was excited about the laurels she earned in the junior market lamb competition. Her first time at KILE, she collected both the champion and reserve individual ribbons, as well as the top spot in the pen of three class.

Andrea is the daughter of Nancy and Dennis Sellers, who own about 70 commercial and purebred ewes. Although she has exhibited mainly homebred entries, Andrea's KILE winners were purchased from Buster Wilson, also of Virginia.

Earlier this year she exhibited the reserve champion pen of three at the Virginia State Fair.

Following are the KILE market lamb placings.

- Try Our New Concept In Penetration And Adhesion.
In 1985

To earn a dollar - give a dollars worth of service and work. Pay only $750 for the best kind of barn painting on an average barn - if you pay more you paid too much

Being self-employed, enables me to take the time to properly apply my barn paint & sealer at prices below suggested retail cost Proper application requires adjusting the viscosity of the paint to attain the best penetration and adhesion — thereby assuring you an excellent paint job

I will share helpful guidelines on roof maintenance of steel roofs by brushing on at prime time

Velsicol backs FFA delegation

CHICAGO — Agriculture from a global perspective will be the focus of the World Congress of Young Farmers scheduled to be held in Christchurch, New Zealand, Nov. 11 to 16.

Representatives from 55 nations will gather together to discuss ways in which agriculture of tomorrow can be structured to meet the food production and distribution demands of a growing world population, which promises to total six billion by the year 2000.

Funding for the U.S. delegation's attendance at the World Congress, as well as their tour of Australia, is being provided by Velsicol Chemical Corporation. Eight of the nation's top Future Farmers of America (FFA), selected to represent the nation's farm youth, will be among the U.S. delegation to the Congress.

The theme of the 5th World Congress, organized by the New Zealand Young Farmers Federation, is "The Vocation of Agriculture." Dale Miller, vice president of Velsicol's Agricultural Business Group, stressing the need for agriculture to become a global industry, will challenge the Congress in an address on November 14 at Lincoln College.

Speaking out on the critical issues of hunger, world food supply and agricultural production needs, Miller will call for a global approach to agriculture wherein political interests are transcended by an overriding international perspective.

According to Lennie Gammage, FFA international director, "The goal of the Fifth Congress will be a permanent structure for the World Congress of Young Farmers as a private non-profit organization, able to seek its own funding sources and to speak out in an advocacy role for young farmers from around the world."

The Congress, Gammage notes, will also examine the role of young farmer organizations in industrialized countries around the world and how their organizations might be adapted to service the agricultural needs of developing countries.

Enthusiastic about the importance of the World Congress, Miller states that: "As a sponsor, no pursuit in which Velsicol might engage could have greater significance. Just as we are engaged in the business of providing the technology for cultivation of agricultural products around the globe, so is the company committed to cultivating and nuturing the agricultural leaders of today and tomorrow."

The FFA delegation to the World Congress will include: Star Farmer of America Larry Nielson, of Tulare, S.D.; regional Star Farmers Steven Rogers, Speedwell, Tenn., John Kline, Myerstown, Penn., and Mark McKay, St. Paul, Ore.; along with Star Agribusinessmen of America Rex Wichert, Fairview, Okla.; and regional Star Agribusinessmen Michael Fuhler, Trenton, Ill., and Mark Anderson, East Berlin, Penn. Accompanying the Star Farmers and Agribusinessmen will be Lennie Gammage, FFA international programs director, Ron Wineinger, immediate past national FFA president and Steve Greene, assistant executive director of the FFA Foundation.

Ag scholarship

WEST CHESTER – The Board of Directors of the Southeast Farm Credit Service is pleased to announce the availability of its fifth annual $500.00 scholarship toward the higher education of a student planning to pursue a career in agriculture. The Southeast Associations have offices in Avondale and Silverdale with an outpost office in Creamery; the headquarters office is located in West Chester. They serve over 1,600 members of the agricultural community in Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties with long and short term financing.

One of the requirements of the applicant is that his or her parents (s) or guardian (s) must reside in one of those counties. The applicant must be a high school senior planning to attend a four year college on a full-time basis with agriculture or agri-business as the major emphasis of study.

Notification of the availability of the scholarship is being sent to the Administrators of the secondary schools in the five county area. Southeast Farm Credit intends to reach as many of the private schools in the area as possible; the scholarship is not limited to the public school systems. Anyone whose educational institution was not contacted should not consider himself or herself excluded from requesting an application form. He/she is encouraged to contact the Southeast Farm Credit Service, Administrative Office, P.O. Box 514, West Chester, PA, 19381 or telephone (215) 431-1257.

The Board of Directors of Southeast Farm Credit is pleased to offer this scholarship and view it as an investment in the future of agriculture.

Wolmanized®

Pressure-Treated Lumber

Wolmanized pressure-treated wood and Outdoor wood have built-in chemical protection that provides resistance to decay and termites. This material has been pressure-impregnated with Koppers Wolman® CCA wood preservative which meets or exceeds federal, state and industry specifications for this type of wood preservative. The chemicals are fixed in the wood and, although toxic to termites and fungi, they are not present in sufficient quantity to be toxic to animals.

Litterguard paper patented

Kieffer Paper Mills, Inc. of Brownstown, IN., and their international distributor, Papillon Agricultural Products, Inc. of Easton, MD., have been awarded a U.S. Patent on LitterGuard brooder paper. LitterGuard has been used extensively in the poultry industry since 1983 as a complete litter cover for the brooding area in broiler houses. Significant improvements in feed conversions, weight gains, and reduced condemnations result from the use of LitterGuard. LitterGuard disintegrates during the grow out period.

'PennAg PAC'

EPHRATA – PennAg Industries Association has recently formed PennAg PAC–PennAg Industries Political Action Committee.

PennAg PAC is completely independent in its activities which will seek to involve agribusinessmen in recruiting, financially backing, and supporting candidates for statewide office and the state legislature which support the goals and interests of agribusiness in Pennsylvania.

The purpose of PennAg PAC is to increase the advancement of agribusiness, the promotion of the general welfare of agriculture, the improvement of state government, and the organization of like minded individuals in the political arena.

PennAg was formed to meet an important need to support the candidates who support PennAg. We also will support candidates for political office at the state level and will employ campaign techniques and select candidates with great care. The PennAg PAC is a non-partisan organization, and will support candidates of either party who best represent our goals, values, and aspirations.

REAL ESTATE

Real Estate consists of 3 plus acres in Monroe Twp., Juniata County, Pa. whereon is erected a 1½ story frame dwelling with 3 bedrooms on second floor. On first floor there is a kitchen plus two more rooms. There are presently storm windows on house except for 2 east windows. There are no modern conveniences such as bathroom or water, however, there is a hand pump well just off to the east side of the house. This could make for full-time residence, or it would be great for summer home in country, or cabin with good hunting area surrounding it in the winter. Deed recorded in Juniata County Deed Bood 65, Page 587.

Terms: 10% down payment day of Auction. Balance due in 30 days. For inspection of Real Estate phone 837-2388 or 694-3738. Real Estate to be offered at 12 noon. Further terms and conditions will be given by attorney on day of Auction.

Now, get the economy of a 40% supplement with Purina® quality.

Swine Concentrate 40E. The hog supplement that can be used instead of soybean meal and a premix. The addition of synthetic amino acids gives you a quality Purina® product at a lower price per ton.

The nutrients in Swine Concentrate 40E match well with the amino acids in corn to provide quality growing and finishing rations.

Of course, the Purina name means you always get a high-quality product backed by sound nutritional research.
